St. Joseph Residents Grant Higher Tax Ceiling Easy Win

By STEVE SAGER
Staff Writer

By a decisive margin of more than 2 to 1, St. Joseph voters Monday approved an amendment to the city charter that city officials say increases the property tax limit by 6.1 mills.

City Clerk Patrick Phelan said unofficial totals showed the millage limit increase was approved 1,418 to 646, and won majorities in each of the city's 10 precincts.

Phelan said the city board of canvassers will review the totals today or tomorrow before certifying the results as official.

The total vote of 2,064 represents about 31 per cent of all registered voters in the city, according to Phelan. It is almost 20 times the number of votes cast in an uncontested commission election with no other issues last year but well below the total of 5,334 votes cast in the city during the 1972 general election.

Also in yesterday's election Mayor Franklin Smith and Commissioner William Gillespie, both running unopposed, were re-elected to three-year terms on the city commission.

It was the first time Gillespie had sought a full term on the commission since being appointed to fill a vacancy two years ago. He received a total of 1,603 votes and Smith received 1,509. One write-in vote was cast for Eugene Serpe.

Both Smith and Gillespie were re-elected to commission seats, with the mayor to be chosen by a vote of the full commission at a future meeting.

Prior to yesterday's election the city commission went on record as saying not more than one mill of the limitation increase would be levied this year. The increase approved by voters, according to city officials, boosts the tax limit from 13.9 mills established by city charter in 1928 to a maximum 20 mills permitted under state law.

Both Smith and City Manager Gerald W. Heppler, after learning the millage increase had passed, said they would stand by the commission's statement and the tax limit would not be raised more than one mill during the upcoming year.

Smith said, "We'll stick with what we said. We'll levy no more than 1 mill this coming year." Heppler added, "We are committed and the budget will be prepared on the basis that in the upcoming year there will be only a one mill increase."

Smith commented further, "We're very pleased with the vote. It shows the residents have confidence in the commission. We needed the charter change to keep St. Joseph a good place to live."

Both Smith and Heppler credited a number of people for helping in the publicity campaign to get information to the public on the tax limit increase. Both men singled out former Mayor Clifford Emlong, who headed a citizens group called "Citizens for a Better St. Joe", for his work in the campaign.

Smith noted the area news media was also instrumental in getting information to the public about the election.

Following is the millage vote by precincts with yes votes first (the city has no fifth precinct):

1. City hall, 109-25.
2. City hall, 65-41.
3. Washington school, 99-51.
4. Washington school, 87-65.
6. Milton junior high, 210-110.
7. Jefferson school, 182-40.
8. Lincoln school, 189-98.
9. St. Joseph high school, 194-93.
10. Lincoln school, 190-96.

Voter Turnout Beat Most Guesses

Not only did St. Joseph Commissioner William Gillespie win re-election yesterday, but he also won a friendly side bet with fellow city officials. After last night's commission meeting each commissioner, City Atty. Arthur Preston and City Manager Gerald Heppler put not less than 25 cents in a pool to see who could guess closest to the number of total votes in the millage election. Gillespie won with his guess of 2,200. All others in the pool guessed under the actual total of 2,064. The other guesses were Preston, 1,693; Heppler, 1,625; Mayor Franklin Smith, 1,500 and Commissioner Lee Selent, 788. Commissioners Warren Gast and Joseph Hanley were absent from the meeting. Gillespie won $1.30.

BH Recall Election Scheduled May 18

An election seeking the recall of Benton Harbor Mayor Charles Joseph and four city commissioners will be held May 18.

Deputy City Clerk Barbara Talley announced Monday night that she had certified sufficient signatures on petitions calling for the recall of Joseph and Commissioners Winston Minott, Barbara Huckaby, Charles Shepherd and Alfred Williams. She added she had been informed by Berrien County Clerk Forrest H. Kesterke that the recall election would be held May 18.

Joseph later charged that Mrs. Talley had been pressured by members of the recall committee to rush through certification of the petitions and called for a legal opinion regarding her qualifications to perform such a function.

The city commission also approved a resolution recommended by City Atty. K. Morris Gavin calling for a special election to increase millage for garbage and rubbish collection "on or before May 10" — eight days before the recall election.

Kesterke later told The Herald-Palladium that the recall election date had been set by the county elections scheduling committee and that the recall election would be held May 18 regardless of any other elections.

Michigan's controversial presidential primary also is scheduled for May 18, which Kesterke said was the reason for setting the recall election for the same date. He cited a state law that says if an election is sought within 90 days of a primary or general election it is to be held on the same date.

He added, however, that the recall vote now definitely will be held on May 18 even if the presidential primary should be cancelled by court action.

He also said that Benton Harbor must request an election date for the special rubbish millage vote from the county elections scheduling committee and expressed doubt that a May 18 vote would be approved.

Kesterke did suggest that if Benton Harbor requested millage vote on May 18 that it might be permissible to bend the rules and grant the request since "an election already is scheduled that day." He explained state law says the county committee shall not schedule an election less than 45 days from the time it gets.

Following Monday night's commission meeting, Joseph said the date for the millage election was based on Atty. Gavin's opinion and shrugged off any possible conflict with the recall vote. "I'm aware pressure was applied to the deputy city clerk. Until tonight she wasn't even aware she was working for the city commission....and I'm not sure she's aware of that now."

Hughes' Death Caps A Legend

By B.F. KELLUM
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — In his death, Howard Robard Hughes was as much a mystery as he was in life.

Hughes, billionaire industrialist and aviation pioneer, died of a stroke Monday on a private jet en route from a seaside Mexican resort to a hospital in Houston, where his parents are buried and where he was born 70 years ago.

From the age of 19, when he inherited his father's tool company, until his death, Hughes was an enigmatic figure.

Even after Hughes' death, the staff in the beachfront Acapulco Princess Hotel could not say for certain that he had been there, though he was said to occupy the entire top floor. The pilots who flew him on his final flight did not know he was to be their passenger until shortly before takeoff. And an unmarked ambulance met the plane.

Hughes amassed an empire valued at more than $2 billion. His holdings over the years included hotels, gambling casinos, airlines, movie studios, spacecraft and electronics.

As Hughes body lay under guard in Methodist Hospital, a board of directors continued to run Howard Hughes' far-flung financial empire "as in the past," said Arein Sederberg, spokesman for Summa Corp.

Summa was the umbrella corporation that was wholly owned by Hughes.

"It has been run by the board of directors and a three-person executive committee," Sederberg said. "It will continue to be run by that group. The company will continue to be a company."

The committee is composed of S.W. Gay, executive vice president of Summa; Nadine Henley, Hughes' long-time secretary now a senior vice president of the firm; and Chester Davis, general counsel for Summa.

He said he did not know who would be named executors of Hughes' estate or if the elusive billionaire had even left a will.

Sederberg disclosed that Hughes died of a stroke — "a cerebral vascular accident."

After a fling in Hollywood and a stint as an daredevil pilot during the 1930s and 1940s, Hughes became more and more retiring.

He disappeared from public view in the 1950s, conducting his businesses from a series of sealed-off hotel suites.

Methodist Hospital in Houston was told Monday morning at 9 a.m. that Hughes was flying there for treatment.

Two doctors, two nurses and four assistants came to Houston Intercontinental Airport in an unmarked ambulance to await Hughes.

The pilots who flew the ailing Hughes from Acapulco to Houston were hired Sunday night in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Roger Sutton and Jeff Abrams said a Florida doctor chartered the Lear jet from an ambulance aviation service. They arrived in Acapulco early Monday morning, but only after

Union To Erect Building

The Hagar township planning commission last night approved plans for a $125,000 to $150,000 combined office building and auditorium for Whirlpool Local 1918, International Association of Machinists, AFL-CIO, union.

The proposed building is to be constructed on the east side of US 31-33, about a block north of the flasher light, across from Nadeau Real Estate.

The proposal must now be submitted to the township board for final approval, according to Erich Kerlikowske, planning commission chairman. He said the plan requires no zoning change, as the land is already zoned commercial.

Kerlikowske said the union building would be 50 by approximately 120 feet, and contain two suites of offices and an auditorium for use of union members and their families. He said the building is to be located 100 feet back from the road and contain a park-like landscaping in the front. The building will have a stone front, he said.

Saluto Founder Gets SBA Award

James DeLapa, founder and president of Saluto Foods, Benton township, today received the U.S. Small Business administration's "Small Businessman of the Year for Michigan" award. The presentation was during a Small Business administration conference in Kalamazoo.

Controlling interest in Saluto Foods has just been acquired by the Minneapolis-based General Mills Corp. Saluto will be operated as an autonomous subsidiary with DeLapa remaining as president. The announcement of the acquisition was made last week. The award was not associated with the sale.

The award was presented to DeLapa by SBA Administrator Mitchell P. Kobelinski and Raymond L. Harshman, Michigan district director for the administration.

DeLapa and his wife, Judy, began a pizza business in Benton Harbor in 1963, using savings and a $2,000 loan. Mass production of frozen pizzas followed, along with a $100,000 SBA loan for expansion in 1968. The firm now employs nearly 250 people at its Benton township plant and reported sales of over $13 million during the past fiscal year.

During the awards ceremony, Saluto Foods was cited as an inspiration to all small businesses.

Roger Curry, executive vice president of the Twin Cities Area Chamber of Commerce and chairman-elect of the SBA Michigan Advisory Council, said Saluto was the first to master the art of mass production of a high quality frozen pizza.

The U.S. Department of Commerce last September approved a $1.5 million loan for a new Saluto plant at Watervliet. Plans for the plant are not yet resolved. A $2.6 million Saluto pizza-making plant is scheduled for completion in July at Montgomery, Ala.

Agreement Under Gun Will Send Prices Up

Before Jimmy Hoffa went to prison, later to disappear from view entirely, it was fashionable to personalize him as representative of all that is wrong with any union exerting life or death control over the nation's economy.

Remove Hoffa from his dictatorial control over the Teamsters Union, ran the argument, and commercial transportation would become a more manageable factor in the cost of goods and services exchanged between 200 million Americans every day of the week.

The provisional settlement worked out this past weekend between the Teamsters and the major trucking groups is pretty clear evidence that the successor to Hoffa, Frank Fitzsimmons, and his lieutenants are very bit as effective for their membership and as devastasting to the economy as were their predecessors in office.

Since some details in the pact put together at an Arlington Heights, Illinois, motel are not yet fully disclosed and because its major provisions operate prospectively rather than immediately, it is difficult to estimate with total accuracy what its final cost will be.

Its negotiators and immediate onlookers approximate it at a 30 per cent gain in wages and fringe benefits spread about equally over three years.

This increment very shortly will spread its way through the country's price structure, starting from Chicago which is the nation's transportation hub and eventually fanning outward to such remote spots as Cutback, Montana, DeTour, Michigan, and Limestone, Maine.

Another potential side effect may be a reduction in the competition offered by the small, regionalized freight lines whose 1 million employees, while not signatory to the Arlington Heights master contract, nonetheless have every expectation of adjusting upward proportionately.

The financially precarious situation in which many of those small lines find themselves predictably portends their failure and with it will decline the shippers' bargaining power. The fewer in business the more the survivors will charge their customers.

While the public is the loser at Arlington Heights, it has to be admitted influential segments of it are the gainers in the new contract which seems to confer something upon everyone immediately concerned with it.

The $20,000 a year truck driver is now a $21,000 man in the pocketbook and backed up by an equal bout in fringes.

Frank Fitzsimmons who was having difficulty impressing some elements in his union that he is every bit as good as Hoffa should be a cinch for re-election as the Teamsters' president.

The Ford Administration is spared the embarrassment of invoking the Taft-Hartley 80-day cooling off period as a last ditch effort to break what until a few days ago appeared to be an absolute deadlock between the bargaining parties.

Except for one plant which General Motors had to shut down last Friday, there should be no disruption in deliveries to the grocery and meat markets, general mercantile outlets, manufacturing and fabricating factories, and the other types of activity which in total are 60 per cent serviced by truck.

In a word, things were smoother on Monday morning than it appeared they might be on Friday night.

Breathing easier, though, will come a bit tougher.

Just Another 'Old Friend' Talking Over The Rent

In its role as "policeman of the world" over the last few decades, the United States has established numerous "police stations" in the form of military bases in far corners of the globe. At one time these bases were almost universally welcomed by their host countries. But today, in light of the American defeat in Vietnam, spreading Communist initiatives, and rising nationalism in many countries, some American bases overseas are feeling the local heat. Thailand, Japan, Spain, Turkey and Greece are among nations which have questioned the presence of U.S. forces on their native soil in recent years.

Another reappraisal is under way in the Philippines, the archipelago nation that occupies a strategic position in Asia and the Pacific, lying only 600 miles from China. The major American military bases in the Philippines are Clark Air Base north of Manila, the largest U.S. overseas air base, and Subic Bay Naval Base, the largest U. S. naval facility in the western Pacific. Both saw heavy use during the Vietnam War, and are considered crucial front lines of defense as the largest American facilities between Asia and Hawaii. Currently, rent-free lease agreements for the bases run until 1991.

After the fall of South Vietnam, however, Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos — recognizing a new power balance in East Asia — took a trip to China to sound out Communist Chinese leaders about the American bases facing them across the South China Sea. The U. S. military brass held its breath, but Marcos returned from Peking with the pledge that America "shall remain our good friend and ally," although he thought his country should have more control over the bases.

When President Ford went to China last December, he stopped in Manila on his way home and together with Marcos issued a joint communique in which the two leaders agreed to discuss the base arrangements in more detail. On Monday, April 12, in Washington, D.C., Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will begin formal talks with Philippine Foreign Minister Carlos P. Romulo on the base issue. It is considered possible that the Philippines will ask the United States to pay rent on the bases, which our government has been reluctant to do.

Actually, U. S. military aid and related spending could be considered an indirect form of rent. The United States invests about $250-million in the bases each year, and much of the money trickles down into the Philippine economy through the 18,000 U. S. military personnel and their dependents. The bases also employ thousands of Filipinos on an annual payroll of about $150-million. It has been estimated that U. S. military spending and employment account for nearly 10 per cent of the Philippines' gross national product.

'Talk To Someone' On Closing St. Joe Schools, Reader Urges

Editor's Mailbag

Editor,

There have been a lot of letters written against the closing of any St. Joe schools, I would like to say something about this. I grow up in St. Joe and graduated from S.J.H.S. We have three children who have graduated and the youngest is a 10th grade student there. My husband and I support the St. Joe school system. We feel we have the best there is and the best teachers, the cream of the crop of the nation here in St. Joe.

I'm sure many parents of the St. Joe-Benton Harbor Catholic students were upset, at first, when they merged. The high school students went one way and the grade school students another for practical purposes. But people do adjust.

After living all this time in St. Joe, I hated to see the passenger boats stop running between St. Joe and Chicago. My family used them. I hated to see the Whitcomb Hotel cease to exist with all the crowds and activity gone. I worked there. But comes a time....think about it.

I can say these things because I've been through this, too. When North Lincoln was overcrowded a few years ago before E. P. Clarke school was built, some of our children were bused one school year into St. Joe to Lincoln grade school. It didn't hurt any of us. They went from one good school to another good school.

What will happen if these schools stay open with empty classrooms? Talk to a teacher, talk to a coach, talk to a principal, but talk to someone before we get ourselves into a mess. Let's keep our high quality education.

Brown School Parent's Views On St. Joseph School Closings

Editor,

It seems to me that maybe the "Brown School Parents" should be heard on the issue of closing Jefferson and Milton. We are very sympathetic on the point of property values — ours suffered when the voters turned down the millage for buses. We are also very sympathetic on the point of safety — their children will have sidewalks, crossing guards and stoplights, ours have an unsafe berm, a hill with poor driver visibility and an often-used railroad track to cross.

Maybe the real issue is the education of our children. Rather than cut back on programs that enrich our children's lives just to save an outmoded neighborhood school concept, we should consider saving money to use for other more important phases of education. As an example, if keeping the schools open will necessitate cutting staff, what help and guidance will your child get in a room with 35 to 40 children! Not as much as if there were only 25 certainly! You might also consider having 3 or more 2nd grades (or 3rd, 4th etc.). What a wonderful opportunity to match your child to the teacher that will be the best for growth and development. A larger teaching staff with all the additional education and experience under one roof could only benefit the children. After all, we are all concerned about the children, aren't we?

— am sure as a parent and a taxpayer we all would like nothing better than to have it all — buses, neighborhood schools, safety, the best facilities for growth and development — but this is a time of sacrifices. We all must make them — but I can't help but feel the children's actual education should be the one thing we won't give up. Many of the parents I have spoken with support the board in their choice to cut services and not the education of our children.

We all regret losing dollars on our property value and we regret having to see our children safely to school but the facts are clear and I believe we would live to regret the loss of actual education for our children much, much more.

Sincerely,
Judy Schick

WANTS JEFFERSON TO STAY OPEN

Editor,

We feel strongly that Jefferson Elementary School should be kept open. The neighborhood school is primarily important for the Kindergarten and early elementary ages. The size of a school is important to a child's feeling at ease about going to school. To us, a school of 420 is too large to qualify as a neighborhood school.

Furthermore we ask the Board of Education to think very carefully about small children crossing a four lane state highway twice or four times daily. We sincerely hope that it will not require serious accidents, possibly fatal, to impress the gravity of this course on the public.

The Twelve Corners Community Methodist Church will be dedicated on Sunday, April 8. The dedication should be a happy occasion for the residents of the Twelve Corners Community who have all cooperated in many ways in remodeling the church. The old church, which was built in 1896, had to be moved because both US-12 and Hicks Avenue had been widened. Mr. J.O. Cunningham moved the church about a year and a half ago when Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dukesherer gave a long term lease on a large lot on the corner of Hicks Avenue and the Benton Center Raod to the trustees of the church. During the past year the men of the community have been donating their services in remodeling the building which has a basement with a modern kitchen.

A Rotary host of 600 is in Benton Harbor and St. Joseph today for a two-day conference of the 35th Michigan Rotary district. Membership of some 4,600 in 23 clubs of western Michigan and the upper peninsula was represented this morning when District Governor Percy V. # Sunshine Law In The Dark

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — When the U.S. Senate passes a self-policing measure, look for the gimmick.

The other day toward closing time Sen. James B. Allen (D-Ala.) introduced an amendment to the newest version of the fair election law. It would require that all government employes earning more than $25,000 a year report in detail their sources of income and their assets and liabilities every year for public inspection. The rule would apply to Senators and Representatives, federal bureaucrats, military men and women and judges. An amendment to the Allen amendment would require the same information from all candidates for national office. The Allen proviso was overwhelmingly approved, 76 yeas to 13 nays.

So far so good. But the word passed among those who know their way around the Senate is cynical. The Senators agreed to this hard-nosed — but worthy — amendment, the inside story goes, because they knew from past experience with similar measures that the House of Representatives was certain to oppose it vehemently. In the resulting conference between the two chambers to work out compromises, the Senate could then use this "bargaining chip" to get the House to agree to certain loopholes in the election law wanted by some key Senators but opposed in the House.

One objective, I'm told, is to secure as high a limit as possible on honorariums allowed lawmakers when making speeches before various groups. At several thousand dollars a shot, these fees, in many cases, have become an important source of side income for better known legislators, particularly in the upper house.

The same Senators who asked David Packard to sell his interests in Hewlett-Packard, a company he had helped found and spent his life building, before they would agree to ratify him as Secretary of Defense, have conflicts of interest in the law firms they're connected with, in contribution services for their campaign and personal office and travel expenses, in the fees they're paid by special interest groups, in the bills they push or oppose which would aid and assist or penalize personal investments and those of their friends and business partners.

Specifically, they derive indirect income from law firms which represent special interests before the Senate and House. They take free trips and use airplanes and hotels rooms without cost, often arranged by lobbyists for companies with an interest in the bills before their committees. They accept payments for speeches or other services so large they are nothing more than disguised payoffs. They invest in land, banks or industrial firms and vote bills designed to up the value of their investments.

The one and only answer is publicity. If all income, investments and business relationships are on the public record, flouting the public interest for private gain, which is stealing, would become more difficult.

Engels, Bakunin On 5th Avenue

You cross Madison Avenue at 44th Street and walk past Brooks Brothers and then past its slightly more collegiate rival J. Press, Inc. You turn north on Fifth Avenue. On this cool and clear spring morning, the heart of high bourgeois culture glitters. Commercial, yes, but it has style.

The neighborhood bookstore here is the venerale Brentano's, a huge establishment, full of all sorts of books, selling objets d' art too, replicas of everything from medieval crucifixes to African carvings. The continents and the ages have been scoured for ideas.

You stroll into the huge, crowded paperback department, over to the "politics" section, then to the "political theory" subsection. Hundreds of paperbacks, yards of them, alphabetically arranged by author. Strange. You look again. What's going on here? Judging by this display, "political theory" in the year 1976 is around 80 per cent revolutionary and Marxist. Here! In what must be the bourgeois capital of the universe!

The Marxist proportion is absolutely overwhelming, even though you notice a slim volume by Martin Buber among the B's, and something by Edmund Burke, and a slim edition of the U.S. Constitution. But then on to the dissident Marxist works of Milovan Djilas; the not so dissident Raya Dunayvshkaya's "Philosophy and Revolution"; and a long stretch of Frederich Engels: "Dialectics of Nature," "Anti-Duhring," and much else.

You notice that a helluva lot of political theory ancient and modern is simply missing here. You wonder what all this socialist revolution stuff has to do with Brentano's or the high-bourgeois scene out on Fifth Avenue. You pick up a paperback volume at random. There's an ink drawing of the author's face on the cover. The fellow looks like a slavic Charles Manson and you wonder where his bomb is.

Fascinated, you continue across the shelves. You touch reassuring ground with the single volume of David Greene's "Greek Political Theory." Ah, the Western tradition. As Goethe's Faust said to the delicious moment, "Linger awhile, thou art so fair."

But no! There beside Greene and the Greeks is none other than Gus Hall, the chairman of the Communist Party, U.S.A., with a book called — surprise — "The Crisis of U.S. Capitalism."

I never got through the M section.

What an extraordinary display, here, on this floor just below the street level of Fifth Avenue. Is it conceivable that a market exists that would justify such stupefying redundancy? Much of that stuff is, quite frankly, unreadable. It sounds like a translation from the Hungarian. Perhaps it is all merely "decoration," like the medieval crucifix and the African figurine. But perhaps these books reflect what the upper bourgeoisie now considers "serious politics." A chilling thought.

On my way back across town I bought a fine new necktie at Brooks Brothers and I considered this a symbolic act.

Agreement Under Gun Will Send Prices Up

Before Jimmy Hoffa went to prison, later to disappear from view entirely, it was fashionable to personalize him as representative of all that is wrong with any union exerting life or death control over the nation's economy.

Remove Hoffa from his dictatorial control over the Teamsters Union, ran the argument, and commercial transportation would become a more manageable factor in the cost of goods and services exchanged between 200 million Americans every day of the week.

The provisional settlement worked out this past weekend between the Teamsters and the major trucking groups is pretty clear evidence that the successor to Hoffa, Frank Fitzsimmons, and his lieutenants are very bit as effective for their membership and as devastasting to the economy as were their predecessors in office.

Since some details in the pact put together at an Arlington Heights, Illinois, motel are not yet fully disclosed and because its major provisions operate prospectively rather than immediately, it is difficult to estimate with total accuracy what its final cost will be.

Its negotiators and immediate onlookers approximate it at a 30 per cent gain in wages and fringe benefits spread about equally over three years.

This increment very shortly will spread its way through the country's price structure, starting from Chicago which is the nation's transportation hub and eventually fanning outward to such remote spots as Cutback, Montana, DeTour, Michigan, and Limestone, Maine.

Another potential side effect may be a reduction in the competition offered by the small, regionalized freight lines whose 1 million employees, while not signatory to the Arlington Heights master contract, nonetheless have every expectation of adjusting upward proportionately.

The financially precarious situation in which many of those small lines find themselves predictably portends their failure and with it will decline the shippers' bargaining power. The fewer in business the more the survivors will charge their customers.

While the public is the loser at Arlington Heights, it has to be admitted influential segments of it are the gainers in the new contract which seems to confer something upon everyone immediately concerned with it.

The $20,000 a year truck driver is now a $21,000 man in the pocketbook and backed up by an equal bout in fringes.

Frank Fitzsimmons who was having difficulty impressing some elements in his union that he is every bit as good as Hoffa should be a cinch for re-election as the Teamsters' president.

The Ford Administration is spared the embarrassment of invoking the Taft-Hartley 80-day cooling off period as a last ditch effort to break what until a few days ago appeared to be an absolute deadlock between the bargaining parties.

Except for one plant which General Motors had to shut down last Friday, there should be no disruption in deliveries to the grocery and meat markets, general mercantile outlets, manufacturing and fabricating factories, and the other types of activity which in total are 60 per cent serviced by truck.

In a word, things were smoother on Monday morning than it appeared they might be on Friday night.

Breathing easier, though, will come a bit tougher.

Just Another 'Old Friend' Talking Over The Rent

In its role as "policeman of the world" over the last few decades, the United States has established numerous "police stations" in the form of military bases in far corners of the globe. At one time these bases were almost universally welcomed by their host countries. But today, in light of the American defeat in Vietnam, spreading Communist initiatives, and rising nationalism in many countries, some American bases overseas are feeling the local heat. Thailand, Japan, Spain, Turkey and Greece are among nations which have questioned the presence of U.S. forces on their native soil in recent years.

Another reappraisal is under way in the Philippines, the archipelago nation that occupies a strategic position in Asia and the Pacific, lying only 600 miles from China. The major American military bases in the Philippines are Clark Air Base north of Manila, the largest U.S. overseas air base, and Subic Bay Naval Base, the largest U. S. naval facility in the western Pacific. Both saw heavy use during the Vietnam War, and are considered crucial front lines of defense as the largest American facilities between Asia and Hawaii. Currently, rent-free lease agreements for the bases run until 1991.

After the fall of South Vietnam, however, Philippine Presdent Ferdinand E. Marcos — recognizing a new power balance in East Asia — took a trip to China to sound out Communist Chinese leaders about the American bases facing them across the South China Sea. The U. S. military brass held its breath, but Marcos returned from Peking with the pledge that America "shall remain our good friend and ally," although he thought his country should have more control over the bases.

When President Ford went to China last December, he stopped in Manila on his way home and together with Marcos issued a joint communique in which the two leaders agreed to discuss the base arrangements in more detail. On Monday, April 12, in Washington, D.C., Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will begin formal talks with Philippine Foreign Minister Carlos P. Romulo on the base issue. It is considered possible that the Philippines will ask the United States to pay rent on the bases, which our government has been reluctant to do.

Actually, U. S. military aid and related spending could be considered an indirect form of rent. The United States invests about $250-million in the bases each year, and much of the money trickles down into the Philippine economy through the 18,000 U. S. military personnel and their dependents. The bases also employ thousands of Filipinos on an annual payroll of about $150-million. It has been estimated that U. S. military spending and employment account for nearly 10 per cent of the Philippines' gross national product.

New Belscot Store Opens On Thursday

The new Belscot department store located in the former Shoppers Fair store on M-139 in Benton township will open at 10 a.m. Thursday with a grand opening sale, according to Edward J. Kleckner, president of the Chicago-based discount department store chain.

Remodeling of the former Shoppers Fair store building, located across M-139 from Fairplain Plaza, began in January and cost approximately $50,000, according to Kleckner.

Belscot Retailers, Inc., operates 15 discount stores in Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana. The new store will be the first for the company in Michigan, according to Kleckner, and will employ approximately 150 people.

Kleckner said the new full-line discount store will sell "virtually everything for the home" including apparel for the whole family, hardware, appliances, health and beauty aids, toys, automotive supplies, sports equipment, records and jewelry. The new store features wide aisles, bright lighting and bold graphics directing customers to the department they're looking for, Kleckner said.

The grand opening, which continues through Sunday, will include specially-priced items in every department, according to Kleckner.

The store will be open seven days a week, from 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., Sunday.

General manager of the store is Edward Cytacki, who has been in the retail discount store business for more than 30 years. Cytacki was most recently in charge of fashion accessory buying for Shoppers Fair discount store chain and was based in South Bend.

Belscot is leasing the 68,000 square foot building from the owner, Beneroff Associates of New York. Shoppers Fair closed its doors in July because its parent company, Mangel Stores Corporation, was in bankruptcy proceedings.

Smietanka On National Board

Berrien Prosecutor John A. Smietanka has been elected to the board of directors of the National Association of Prosecutors' Investigators, a recently-formed organization designed to improve the services of investigators.

Smietanka was elected one of eight directors of the organization, based in Quantico, Va., and joins members of the board such as Arthur Marshall, Jr., state's attorney for Prince George's county in Maryland, who prosecuted Arthur Bremer in connection with the shooting of Alabama Gov. George Wallace in 1972.

JOHN SMIETANKA
Elected director

Smietanka said the directors were elected by the 350 association members on the basis of reputation and geographic area, with the term to run at least one year. He said the association will act as a single voice for prosecutors' investigators, and the group expects a membership of about 1,000 by the end of the year.

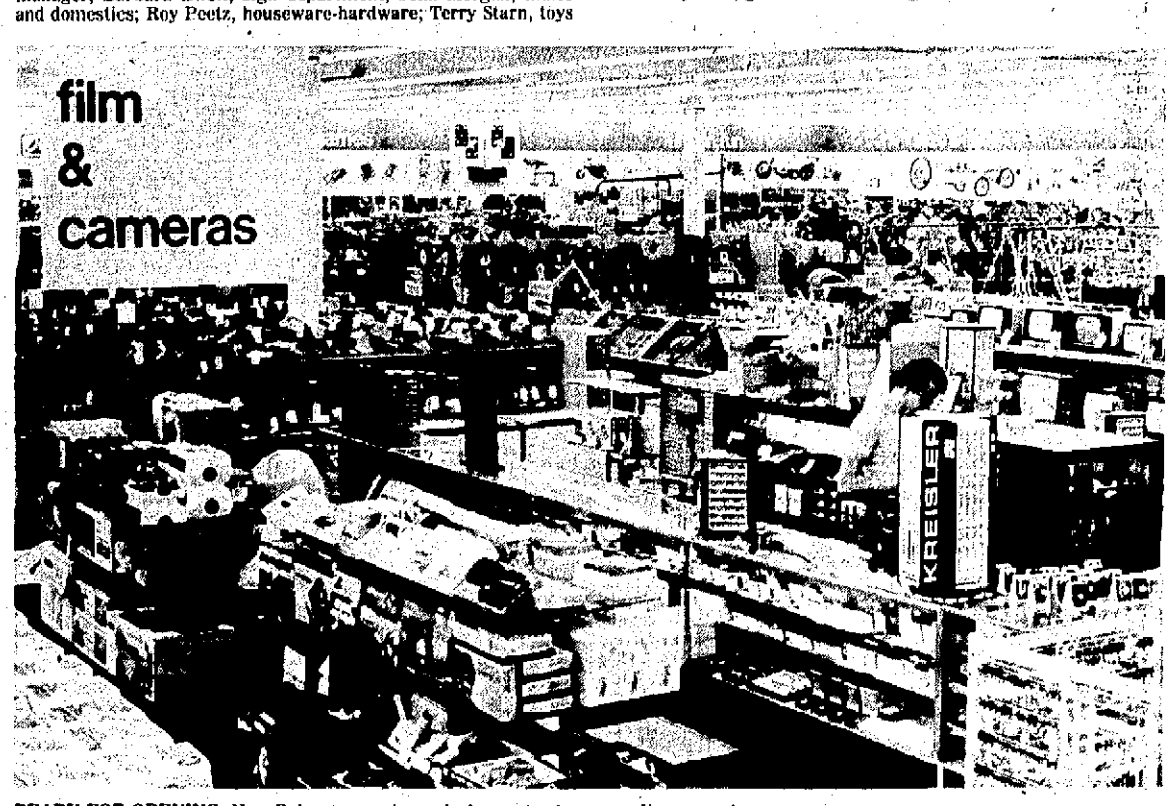

Other directors include: Jan Banker, from the National College of District Attorneys in Houston, Texas; Fred Regan, an FBI special agent from Virginia; Robert Newey, a county attorney from Utah; Ralph Martin, prosecutor in Kansas City, Mo.; Louis Ball, district attorney in Newport, Ky.; and James Anders, of Columbia, S.C.

Smietanka has served as Berrien prosecutor for slightly more than two years and recently announced he will seek re-election.

University Honors Two SJ Students

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. — Two students from St. Joseph were honored recently at Western Kentucky university's annual Honors convocation for academic achievement.

PRESENT PLAQUE: Mrs. Edwin E. Dwan, third vice president of Twin Cities Symphony, presents plaque to Robert T. Herkner. The Twin Cities Symphonic Society honored Herkner for his years of service to the society, including 10 years as treasurer. (Staff photo)

Robert T. Herkner has been honored for his many years of service to the Twin Cities Symphonic society which is currently holding a membership drive for the 1975-76 season.

Herkner also served the society as treasurer for 10 years.

Tickets for the season, which will offer nine concerts, may be secured by telephoning or writing the symphony office, 520 Pleasant street, St. Joseph.

As an incentive for purchasing tickets early, the first concert of the 1976-77 season will be held Sunday, April 18, this year, at 4:30 p.m. at St. Joseph high school auditorium, featuring the International String Quartet.

For the first time next season, a modified form of reserved seating will be available with tickets in the central portion of the auditorium priced at $13 for adults, $7.50 for students and senior citizens and $30 for families. Peripheral and rear seats will be $10 for adults, $5 for students and senior citizens and $25 for families.

All concerts will be performed in the St. Joseph high school auditorium except for the Christmas concert which will be held in Lakeshore high school auditorium.

Schedule YWCA Annual Meeting

Mrs. Robert W. Claytor, Grand Rapids, immediate past president of the Young Women's Christian Association of the USA, will be guest speaker at the annual spring membership meeting of the St. Joseph-Benton Harbor YWCA Tuesday, April 20.

According to Maureen Cole Pedersen, executive director, there will be a dessert smorgasbord from 7 to 9 p.m.

Reservations may be made by contacting the YWCA, St. Joseph, before Friday, April 16.

Mrs. Claytor, the first Negro to be president of a city Association and the first to be national president, has been a member of the national board since 1945 and for many years was a representative of the YWCA of the USA on the World YWCA Council.

She was elected president of the national association in 1967 and re-elected in 1970.

Active in many national, state and local organizations she has served on the executive committee of the Michigan United Fund, a member of the Kent County Planned Parenthood Council and the Christian social relations department of the Episcopal Diocese of Western Michigan.

She is a former member of the National Women's Advisory Committee on Poverty and in 1970 was named vice chairman of the Women's Advisory Committee for the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Mrs. Claytor, currently serving ex-officio on the National board of the YWCA, is a graduate of the University of Minnesota which presented to her its outstanding achievement award. She was awarded the honorary degree, doctor of humanities by Eastern Michigan university.

Mrs. Claytor has also been recognized by the governor of Michigan as an outstanding volunteer; the Business and Professional Women's club of Michigan presented her, along with four other women, the organization's Golden Torch Award, and in 1970 she received the American Woman's Service Award from Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority.

Early in her career, Mrs. Claytor served as a group worker for YWCAs in Trenton, N.J., and Kansas City, Mo., as well as a member of the staff of the national board of the YWCA.

She is the wife of a physician and surgeon and the mother of three children.

Her late husband, Earl W. Wilkins, was the brother of Roy Wilkins, executive director of the NAACP.

Entertainment for the annual meeting will be furnished by the YWCA Sing-A-Lings.

Wins First Place Award

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Peter Erhard, assistant professor of art at Andrews university has been awarded first place in the 11-county local Addy Awards contest, sponsored by the American Advertising Federation.

Erhard was presented the first place award plaque in the category, "advertising for public service and public relations," at a banquet held at the Athletic and Convocation Center at Notre Dame. Dr. David L. Appel, chairman of marketing department at the University of Notre Dame, acted as chairman of the awards program.

The Sales and Advertising Executives Club of St. Joseph club of St. Joseph county sponsored the local competition.

Erhard's entries were three poster designs created for the Andrews university band, the University Singers and the Gymnics. His award-winning designs will be entered in district competition this month at Lansing.

Erhard, who recently won first place silver medal in a contest sponsored by the Art Directors club of Denver, Colo., joined the faculty of Andrews university in September 1974. Prior to that, he served as project director at Glenn Mongle and Associates, design consultants of Denver.

He studied at the Art Institute of Chicago and has taken graduate studies at the Illinois Institute of Technology.

Nye-Wolf Vows

EAU CLAIRE — Zion United Church of Christ, Eau Claire, was the setting April 3 for the wedding of Miss Patricia Wolf and Kenneth Nye. The Rev. C.J. Beehler performed the ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Wolf, Wolf road, Eau Claire. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Nye, Hollywood road, Stevensville.

The bride wore a nylon sheer over taffeta empire gown trimmed with cluny lace and ruffled hemline. A lace handeau headpiece held her shoulder length veil and she carried blue variegated carnations and baby's breath.

Mrs. Mary Menchinger, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and Stanley Nye, brother of the groom, served as best man.

The couple is on a wedding trip, through the southern states.

The bride is a graduate of Eau Claire high school and received a bachelor of science degree in landscape horticulture from Michigan State university. She is employed at Mercy hospital, Benton Harbor. Her husband is a graduate of Lakeshore high school and received a bachelor of science degree in landscape horticulture from MSU. He is self-employed at Blossomland Nursery, Stevensville.

Announce Hartford Tryouts

JIM KEECH

HARTFORD — Among Bicentennial events in southwestern Michigan, will be a production of the old-fashioned melodrama, "Ten Nights in a Barroom," under the sponsorship of the Masonic Temple association of Hartford.

All performers in the area are invited to tryout for the production: Saturday and Sunday, April 10 and 11, at 2 p.m. at the Hartford Masonic Temple.

Jim Keech, master of the Hartford Masonic lodge, will direct the show. He says the show has a large cast and an exceptionally liberal rehearsal schedule. Production dates are May 28 and 29 in the auditorium of the new Hartford high school.

According to Keech, one of the most explosive political and social forces of the past 200 years was the prohibition fever that swept this country from the mid-1800s to the eventual repeal of the 18th amendment to the Constitution in 1933.

Theatre audiences at the turn of the 20th century in particular were literally flooded by a rush of temperance plays, decrying the indulgence of "demon rum" and emotionally portraying the pitiful ruination of staunch family men who by some character flaw mistakingly sip at the cup of the pernicious liquid.

"Ten Nights in a Barroom" is typical of that melodramatic genre and, although written with most serious intentions 80 years ago, now provides great entertainment and humor to modern audiences, witnessing the dramatic flourish of that period, Keech says.

Senior Concert

LuAnn Slia Mashke, a graduate of St. Joseph high school, will present her senior piano concert Sunday, April 10, at 3 p.m. at Oakland Recital Hall, Western Michigan university.

The WMU senior is the student of Phyllis Rappeport. Mrs. Mashke will perform works by Mozart, Chopin, Schumann and Debussy.

Mrs. Mashke is a candidate for a bachelor of music degree majoring in performance. She is a piano instructor for the Cathedral School of the Arts, Benton Harbor, and also teaches privately in her home.

Brides-to-be planning engagement announcements and wedding stories in this newspaper are asked to observe the following rules:

Engagement and wedding forms are available in the women's department at The Herald-Palladium offices in Benton Harbor or St. Joseph. The pertinent information should be typed or plainly printed in filling out these forms to prevent errors.

Wedding forms should be picked up at least two weeks and turned in one week before the wedding is to take place.

When wedding information is sent within two months of the engagement announcement date, only ONE picture will be run. The bride-to-be may have her choice.

Use proper names — not nicknames. In wedding information, use husband's names for married attendants.

Only pictures of the bride in her wedding dress will be used. Formal glossy black and white portraits are preferred.

Engagement and wedding pictures are usually available at this newspaper office after publication for a short time.

Ancient Culture --Modern Beat

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Passengers departing from this port on winter voyages to ancient cities on the Yucatan peninsula will be accompanied by the strains of modern jazz music played by some of the greatest performers of this distinctive American art form.

The eight cruises of the MTS Daphne will feature such jazz giants as Buddy Tate, Jimmy McPartland and Claude Hopkins.

In addition, on several of the cruises there will be illustrated lectures by prominent jazz authorities such as Dr. John Steiner, author of "The History of Jazz," Jerry Valburn of Jazz Archives, a recording company specializing in jazz treasures, and John H. Wilson of the New York Times.

Easy Easter Dessert

Drain syrup from a 30-ounce can of fruit cocktail and heat to boiling. Pour over two tablespoons chopped fresh mint, cover and cool.

New Board Is Versatile

A versatile board, called the three-in-one, may be used as a serving tray, bread board, or sink-top cutting board.

Featuring walnut edge grain and juice moat, this accessory is rubber cushioned to prevent sliding when used for chopping and cutting. It fits across any standard size sink.

For sanitary reasons, wash carefully after each use, rinse, towel dry and then allow to air dry thoroughly.

Good Sports

Since warm weather sports time is near, and a recent poll shows that 98.5 per cent of teen girls play at least one game, the April Seventeen magazine offers some health and beauty tips for young athletes:

Drink liquids during a game, not just after, to prevent dehydration.

Best time to eat a full meal is three or four hours before a game. If it's morning exercise, eat one to two hours ahead. Choose light but nourishing food that won't feel like lead in your stomach.

Wear your hair away from your face when you play. Otherwise, perspiration will make it limp and dirty, and dirty hair can cause blemishes.

Treat hot and tired feet to a rest: Lie on floor; elevate legs for 15 minutes.

Before any sport, loosen up tight muscles with warm-ups. Try jumping rope, playing hopscotch or doing five minutes of mini-exercises. Head rotations, arm swings, deep knee bends and sit-ups work well.

Swimmers should remember that chlorine and salt water can be very drying for hair. Try wearing a swim cap, especially if your hair is long. If you go capless, rinse hair thoroughly, and if possible, shampoo. Never brush wet hair — you'll wind up with split ends and broken hair shafts. Use a wide-tooth comb instead.

PREVENT PINCHING

Stick two corks at either end of your piano keyboard if you are going to have toddlers for visitors. If the lid drops, tiny fingers will not get pinched.

Take Care Of Diamond

To clean a diamond ring, fill a small bowl with warm water and liquid detergent.

Soak the ring in the suds for a few minutes. Then brush it with a clean eyebrow brush, dipping it repeatedly in the suds. Place the ring in a small strainer and rinse under warm running water. Pt dry with a soft, lintless cloth.

Ancient Culture --Modern Beat

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Passengers departing from this port on winter voyages to ancient cities on the Yucatan peninsula will be accompanied by the strains of modern jazz music played by some of the greatest performers of this distinctive American art form.

The eight cruises of the MTS Daphne will feature such jazz giants as Buddy Tate, Jimmy McPartland and Claude Hopkins.

In addition, on several of the cruises there will be illustrated lectures by prominent jazz authorities such as Dr. John Steiner, author of "The History of Jazz," Jerry Valburn of Jazz Archives, a recording company specializing in jazz treasures, and John H. Wilson of the New York Times.

Easy Easter Dessert

Drain syrup from a 30-ounce can of fruit cocktail and heat to boiling. Pour over two tablespoons chopped fresh mint, cover and cool.

New Board Is Versatile

A versatile board, called the three-in-one, may be used as a serving tray, bread board, or sink-top cutting board.

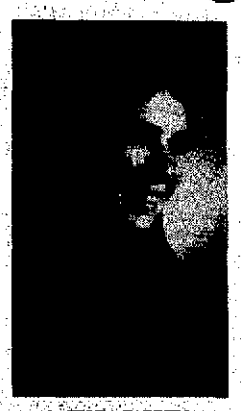

Featuring walnut edge grain and juice moat, this accessory is rubber cushioned to prevent sliding when used for chopping and cutting. It fits across any standard size sink.

For sanitary reasons, wash carefully after each use, rinse, towel dry and then allow to air dry thoroughly.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Why Did He Wait So Long?

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to comment on the letter from "Too Young To Be A Drunk." I'm 22 years old, a student at a top Ivy school and have been a heavy drinker for over four years. Although it had crossed my mind that I might be an alcoholic, I never sought help. When I read the letter in your column from "Sick and Tired of Feeling Sick and Tired," I decided to attend my first AA meeting. That was last night.

My God, why did I wait so long? True, my experiences with booze were tame compared to some of the speakers, but as one man put it, "You don't have to let yourself go the whole route — DTs, hallucinations, or lying in the gutter, before you come to us."

I urge all college students who suspect they have a drinking problem to go to AA. You will be welcomed by people who care, people who have seen waste and devastation in their own lives and want to stop it in yours. Please give AA a chance. You have nothing to lose. — A Life Saved

Dear Life: Although this is the first letter I have ever received from an Ivy student who confessed he's an alcoholic I'm sure there are thousands of others out there just like you and I hope you have given them the courage they need to get help. Alcoholics Anonymous is in the phone book. I urge all students who suspect their drinking is out of control to phone and find out when and where their neighborhood chapter meets, and GO before the booze washes them out of school and ruins their lives.

No Response

Dear Ann Landers: The letter about the necrophiliac probably caused more reader reaction than the one from the lady who enjoyed doing her housework in the nude.

What upsets me is that in a few months all the necrophiliacs will start to crawl out of the woodwork, they will march in parades carrying banners for "Necro—Liberation." Then some lawyer will defend them and we will have a class action suit. A learned judge will hand down a decision that sounds like this: "The Constitution of the United States guarantees everyone the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. We cannot deny this misunderstood minority their constitutional rights. Therefore, if the body is over 18 and does not resist, we must assume it is a consenting adult, and there is no wrong-doing. After all, there is no sexual perversion. Only sexual preference."

The next step will be to set up government guidelines for the hiring of necros and the Chicago police department will have to include them in their hiring quotas. The possibilities are endless. And no one will believe that back in April 1976, I wrote this letter to Ann Landers. —

Libraries Add Story Hours

DECATUR — Beginning this month, the Van Buren county library will sponsor story hours for children ages four through eight at the Bangor, Bloomingdale and Lawrence branch libraries.

Becky Covey, special services librarian, will present the story hour programs. The hours will include filmstrips, stories, games and crafts. Free paperback books will be given to the children periodically throughout the six-week program.

Attendance is limited and advance registration for the program may be made by contacting the branch libraries.

The story hour will begin Monday, April 12, at the Bloomingdale library, and will continue every Monday for six weeks at 3:30 p.m.

Lawrence library story hour will begin Thursday, April 15, at 3:30 p.m. and continue each Thursday for six weeks.

The program will begin Friday, April 23, at 3:30 p.m. at the Bangor branch library and will continue meeting at the same time each Friday for six weeks.

The first story hours, "Animal Doings," will feature the films "The Fox Went Out on a Chilly Night," and "Frog Went A-Courtin'." A free paperback book of one of the films will be presented to the children.

The story hours are made possible through the Federal Library Services and Construction Grant, to encourage reading interest in young children.

Annual Spring Tea Set For Palm Sunday

COVERT — Van Buren United Civic Organization will hold its 15th Annual Spring Tea on Palm Sunday, April 11, from 3 to 6 p.m. in the Civic Center, Lake street.

The program will feature several events including a spring and summer fashion show, according to LaMohdue Taylor, publicity chairman.

General chairman is Mrs. Melvie Smith.

Hostesses will be Mrs. Clarence Joyner, Mrs. Lewis M. Reed, Miss Paula Hawkins, Miss Yvonne Peterson, Mrs. Thomas A. Stone, Mrs. John King, Mrs. William Harbison and Mrs. Marlene Leonard.

Hartford Symphonic Concert Thursday

HARTFORD — A Bicentennial concert will be presented by the Hartford high school Symphonic band Thursday, April 8, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

Admission will be $1.50 for adults, 75 cents for students and children and $4 for family admission. Senior citizens will be admitted free.

The band, under the direction of Dale Kool, will perform several patriotic songs in addition to "Star Spangled Spectacular," a tribute to George M. Cohan, and "Black Horse Troop" and "Stars and Stripes Forever" by John Phillip Sousa.

Chris Winans will be featured in a tuba solo in "Amazing Grace."

Free Piano Program

BERRIEN SPRINGS — "American Piano Music — A Bicentennial Retrospective" will be presented free to the public by the Interlochen Arts Academy at Andrews university Wednesday, April 7, in the Little auditorium, Nethery hall, at 7 p.m.

Six pianists at the Interlochen Arts Academy will present a sampling of the American piano literature from the period of the American Revolution to the present.

The program will include music from Mozart's contemporary, Alexander Reinagle, up to a work by Samuel Barber.

Other composers represented will be Louis Gottschalk, Edward MacDowell, Charles Tomlinson Griffes, Scott Joplin, George Gershwin, Charles Ives and Henry Cowell.

The Interlochen concert by students is part of activities supported by the Michigan Council for the Arts.

The principle of restricted choice is that when a player follows suit with, or wins a trick with, one of two equal cards, he would have had to play the actual card if he held just one. Thus he would have been equally likely to play the other card if he held both.

South wins the first trick with dummy's ace of clubs, leads a spade and plays his seven spot after East follows low. West wins with the jack and leads a heart. South wins, enters dummy with the queen of diamonds and leads a second trump. East plays low and South must decide whether or not to play the king.

East is a good enough player to duck twice with the ace and South has to decide whether or not to play his king.

The principle of restricted choice applies here. If West held both the queen and jack he might well have won the first trump with the queen. Therefore, the odds are two to one that East holds the queen. South plays a low spade and is home with the bacon.

The two to one has paid off this time. It won't do so all the time, but it is the way to handle things in the long run.

Dr. Lester Coleman

My father called it "catarrh." I call it "post-nasal drip." Whatever you call it, it's a darned nuisance. It makes me irritable and unpleasant to live with. What can I do about it?

Mr. B.C.L., Mass.

Dear Mr. L.:

Both "catarrh" and "post-nasal drip" are vague terms to describe a universal complaint.

The first thing you can do about it is to try, with the help of your doctor, to pinpoint its cause. Sinus infections, allergies, single or in combination, are the most frequent reasons for a profuse drip from the back of the nose.

Air pollution, smog, high humidity, exposure to occupational gases can irritate the delicate mucous membrane lining of the nose and the nasopharynx.

Some foods, especially milk and milk products seems to increase the post-nasal secretion.

X-rays of the sinuses and allergic studies may help track down the cause. Antihistamines for allergies, antibiotics and local treatment for sinus infection can be beneficial.

The use of steam and decongestants, taken under the doctor's orders, can be highly comforting.

High, dry climate can sometimes ease the post-nasal drip. Do not, however, make a radical change to such a climate before trying it out for a reasonable length of time.

I have been taught to give myself a vitamin B-12 injection whenever I am tired. I have done this for two years and nothing has happened to me. Now my doctor has warned me against it. I don't understand why.

Miss H.W., Wash.

Dear Miss W.:

Vitamin B-12 can be remarkably valuable when given for very specific medical reasons.

As an artificial energy pickup, it serves little function. Giving it to yourself without supervision is a shocking reflection on good medical judgment.

How do you know how to limit the injections? One a day? Five? Ten a day? Do you ever consider the possibility of infection, broken needles, and even allergic reaction?

These possible dangers far outweigh the psychological benefits you may think you are getting. I have often said that the rivers and streams of the United States are polluted with the excess vitamins that are excreted by millions of Americans who take them unnecessarily in large quantities, without a doctor's supervision.

Children Inherit Spotlight

NEW YORK — How does it feel to sit in a college classroom and hear your father's journalistic style criticized as "a cheap trick to make him look good?"

Howard Cosell's daughter Hilary froze, blushed and felt sick with humiliation, she recalls in an article in the April issue of Seventeen. She also interviews other celebrities' offspring about the "pride, excitement, confusion and frustration" of having a famous parent. Chip (Walter Jr.) Cronkite, 16, thinks government agents are watching him all the time because of what his father stands for.

Maria Shriver, 20, says that sometimes being part of the Kennedy family is "weird;" there's intense competition to be successful. She defines success as "picking a field and being the best in it," but admits wanting to get away from the pressure sometimes. Maria faces questions about her whole family. "I'll talk to friends about them but not strangers: I often ask friends how the family looks to the rest of the world," she says.

Vicki Gifford, 19, received obscene phone calls and threatening mail after she appeared on camera for 30 seconds with her father on "Monday Night Football." She feels "it's especially important for kids like us to be independent — people are always connecting us back to our fathers. If I wasn't Frank Gifford's daughter, I could be freer about the things I do."

As Hilary Cosell sums up, "People assume things about us and expect things from us that often have very little to do with who we are."

Children Inherit Spotlight

NEW YORK — How does it feel to sit in a college classroom and hear your father's journalistic style criticized as "a cheap trick to make him look good?"

Howard Cosell's daughter Hilary froze, blushed and felt sick with humiliation, she recalls in an article in the April issue of Seventeen. She also interviews other celebrities' offspring about the "pride, excitement, confusion and frustration" of having a famous parent. Chip (Walter Jr.) Cronkite, 18, thinks government agents are watching him all the time because of what his father stands for.

Maria Shriver, 20, says that sometimes being part of the Kennedy family is "weird;" there's intense competition to be successful. She defines success as "picking a field and being the best in it," but admits wanting to get away from the pressure sometimes. Maria faces questions about her whole family. "I'll talk to friends about them but not strangers: I often ask friends how the family looks to the rest of the world," she says.

Vicki Gifford, 19, received obscene phone calls and threatening mail after she appeared on camera for 30 seconds with her father on "Monday Night Football." She feels "it's especially important for kids like us to be independent — people are always connecting us back to our fathers. If I wasn't Frank Gifford's daughter, I could be freer about the things I do."

As Hilary Cosell sums up, "People assume things about us and expect things from us that often have very little to do with who we are."

Keeler Club Has Election

KEELER — Mrs. Earl Morehouse, Hartford, has been elected president of the Thursday club.

Mrs. Florence Bailey was elected vice president. Reelected were Mrs. Robert Hall Sr., recording secretary; Mrs. Dorothy Ruple, treasurer, and Mrs. John Nye, corresponding secretary.

Use Child's Play Broom

Use a child's play broom for sweeping the stairway or cleaning out the car.

The small broom reaches into corners and the short handle makes it more convenient to use.

Libraries Add Story Hours

DECATUR — Beginning this month, the Van Buren county library will sponsor story hours for children ages four through eight at the Bangor, Bloomingdale and Lawrence branch libraries.

Becky Covey, special services librarian, will present the story hour programs. The hours will include filmstrips, stories, games and crafts. Free paperback books will be given to the children periodically throughout the six-week program.

Attendance is limited and advance registration for the program may be made by contacting the branch libraries.

The story hour will begin Monday, April 12, at the Bloomingdale library, and will continue every Monday for six weeks at 3:30 p.m.

Lawrence library story hour will begin Thursday, April 15, at 3:30 p.m. and continue each Thursday for six wees.

The program will begin Friday, April 23, at 3:30 p.m. at the Bangor branch library and will continue meeting at the same time each Friday for six weeks.

The first story hours, "Animal Doings," will feature the films "The Fox Went Out on a Chilly Night," and "Frog Went A-Courtin'." A free paperback book of one of the films will be presented to the children.

The story hours are made possible through the Federal Library Services and Construction Grant, to encourage reading interest in young children.

Annual Spring Tea Set For Palm Sunday

COVERT — Van Buren United Civic Organization will hold its 15th Annual Spring Tea on Palm Sunday, April 11, from 3 to 6 p.m. in the Civic Center, Lake street.

The program will feature several avents including a spring and summer fashion show, according to LaMondue Taylor, publicity chairman.

General chairman is Mrs. Melvie Smith.

Hostesses will be Mrs. Clarence Joyner, Mrs. Lewis M. Reed, Miss Paula Hawkins, Miss Yvonne Peterson, Mrs. Thomas A. Stone, Mrs. John King, Mrs. William Harbison and Mrs. Marlene Leonard.

Hartford Symphonic Concert Thursday

HARTFORD — A Bicentennial concert will be presented by the Hartford high school Symphonic band Thursday, April 8, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

Admission will be $1.50 for adults, 75 cents for students and children and $4 for family admission. Senior citizens will be admitted free.

The band, under the direction of Dale Kooi, will perform several patriotic songs in addition to "Star Spangled Spectacular," a tribute to George M. Cohan, and "Black Horse Troop" and "Stars and Stripes Forever" by John Phillip Sousa.

Free Piano Program

BERRIEN SPRINGS S — "American Piano Music — A Bicentennial Retrospective" will be presented free to the public by the Interlochen Arts Academy at Andrews university Wednesday, April 7, in the Little auditorium, Nethery hall, at 7 p.m.

Six pianists at the Interlochen Arts Academy will present a sampling of the American piano literature from the period of the American Revolution to the present.

The program will include music from Mozart's contemporary, Alexander Reinagle, up to a work by Samuel Barber.

Other composers represented will be Louis Gottschalf, Edward MacDowell, Charles Tomlinson Griffes, Scott Joplin, George Gershwin, Charles Ives and Henry Cowell.

The Interlochen concert by students is part of activities supported by the Michigan Council for the Arts.

ADC Dad 'Trackdown' Advances

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The secretary of Health, Education and Welfare has ordered the release of Social Security numbers to help track down runaway welfare fathers who cost taxpayers more than $1 billion annually.

The decision by HEW Secretary David Mathews ends a running dispute between two agencies within the department and opens the way for confirmation to a high government post of a scion of the famous Taft family of Ohio.

HEW's Social and Rehabilitation Service, which is responsible for administering the new "Federal Parent Locater Service" to help states track down fathers and collect child support payments, said it needed the Social Security numbers. The numbers would be given to the states for use in tracking missing parents through state records, such as motor vehicle registrations.

If a state has exhausted all avenues open to it without success, it can ask HEW to try to trace the missing parent through the IRS, Pentagon or Veterans Administration records. The Internal Revenue Service records tell where the parent is living now, his employer, his earnings, and other assets.

But the Social Security Administration had contended that federal privacy laws protected the confidentiality of Social Security numbers of about 100 million wage earners and that it was obligated to furnish only the last known address of the missing parent and his employer.

After months of arguing against the release, Social Security Commissioner James B. Cardwell reversed his position under heavy pressure, sources said.

Mathews, in his role as referee, issued a memo to his subordinates that said he was acting on the basis of legal advice of HEW lawyers and the Justice Department "that the intent of the Parent Locator Service law is for the Social Security numbers to be provided and that that authority is not cancelled by the Privacy Act, ..."

HEW estimates that 2.8 million of the 3.4 million families receiving Aid to Families With Dependent Children have absent parents and that about 1.4 million of those parents are financially able to pay for their family's support. When the program is fully implemented nationwide, the department says about $1 billion in child support payments will be collected annually, with a comparable savings to federal and state taxpayers.

A sign that the impasse had been resolved came Monday when the Senate voted to confirm the nomination of William Howard Taft IV, great grandson of President William Howard Taft and nephew of Sen. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, as general counsel of HEW.

Taft's nomination had been held up for more than a month by Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, who had argued that the numbers should be released.

Taft said that, in part because his own job was at stake, he had not participated in preparation of the department's recommendation to Mathews.

Chinese Reacting To Radicals?

TOKYO (AP) — Peking's extraordinary day of violence demonstrates that a powerful undercurrent of support still exists for the late Premier Chou En-lai's moderate, stabilizing policies.

It also can be seen as the backlash against the radical campaign to pull down First Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-Ping, 72, whom Chou hoped would succeed him and continue his policies.

CHOU EN-LAI

TENG HSIAO-PING

The massing of an estimated 100,000 Chinese in Peking's main square Monday to protest the removal of wreaths honoring Chou and the clashes with militiamen that followed are considered here to have been unplanned, spontaneous expressions of indignation.

The Communist regime permits only organized demonstrations.

Observers here and in Peking agree that the demonstrators reflected a fear that the excesses of the Great Cultural Revolution of the late 1960s will be repeated if the radicals succeed in ousting Teng.

Teng's sin, to the radicals, is that he wants peace and order as the foundation of a new great leap toward industrialization by the turn of the century. The radicals, encouraged by Chairman Mao Tse-tung, want the class struggle to continue.

Holmes later directed the Teamsters to return to work while a vote was being arranged on the contract, setting off a chorus of boos from the members (bottom photo) that ended the session. # Loser's Game Is Coming

By MARY STEVENSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — People who never win anything may thank their lucky stars when they get a look at the Michigan Lottery's third Instant Game.

The game, unveiled Monday, limits its two Million Dollar Drawings to three-time Instant Game losers and declares winners ineligible. Only people who send in three losing tickets can become candidates for the drawings, Lottery Commissioner Gus Harrison said.

The new game starts April 20, Harrison said. Some 80 million tickets will go on sale at $1 apiece. The Bureau of State Lottery expects to award more than $27 million in prizes.

Like its predecessors, the new game, called "Michigan Landmarks," will feature instant scratch-off prizes ranging from $2 to $10,000.

Each ticket has eight squares and a circle, all of which contain a number. To win an Instant Game prize, contestants must find three squares with numbers matching the figure in the circle.

Three matches means a $2 prize; four matches means a $5 prize; five matches means a $500 prize; and six matches means a $10,000 prize.

There is also a special $50 prize if the designation "$50 winner" appears in any square. Along with the $50 prize, winners of this special award will receive a free 24-week membership in the lottery's 50-cent green game subscription system, the "Chance of a Lifetime" Club.

On the back of each ticket space is provided for a person's name, address, city, phone number and signature. These would be used by people sending in losing tickets to qualify for a millionaire's drawing.

To qualify, persons must mail three losing tickets in "Grand Drawing," P.O. Box 4840, Lansing, Mich. 48904.

Fifty contestants will be chosen for each millionaire's contest through a grand drawing, Harrison said. All entries mailed by May 20 will be considered for the first Grand Drawing, he said. Entries received after May 20 will be eligible for the second Grand Drawing.

Each of the 50 finalists selected will win at least $10,000. There will also be prizes of $20,000 and $50,000.

Truckers In Detroit Split On Picketing

DETROIT (AP) — A federal judge Monday issued a temporary restraining order prohibiting Michigan Teamsters from picketing but spokesmen for a dissident Teamsters group differed on what their fellow members will do.

Despite a tentative national agreement reached over the weekend in Chicago, pickets sprang up in Detroit Monday accompanied by scattered violence and scuffles with police. Some said the would not return to work despite a part of the judge's order telling them to do so and pleas from local and international union officers.

The picketers said they were unhappy with some provisions of the tentative agreement and opposed to returning to work until a vote on the new contract is taken.

Peter Camarata, a spokesman for the dissident Teamsters for a Decent Contract, said Monday night the restraining order had succeeded in "scaring most people off the lines.

"You can't do anything without people and right now I don't have enough people here to do anything," he said. "So I might as well tell everybody to go home."

However, Gene Fleszar, another spokesman said earlier:,

"The strike is still on, pickets are still out, and the trucks will not roll."

Those refusing to obey the injunction could be jailed or fined.

Ian Hunter, an attorney for the Michigan Motor Carrier Employers Association, called trying to get 14,000 area Teamsters back to work "ambitious," adding, "There is no movement of interstate freight into Detroit. What little is coming through is pulling into terminals and stopping."

U.S. District Court Judge Ralph Freeman issued the order at the request of several Michigan trucking firms. The judge's ruling prohibits TDC members from picketing the companies, otherwise interfering with their business and orders the truckers to report back to work.

Freeman set a show cause hearing in the case for Wednesday afternoon. At that time, TDC would have show cause why a permanent restraining order should not be issued.

Camarata said the TDC believed it had some solid legal reasons to continue striking.

Somebody's Got Lawmaker's Number

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A Flint lawmaker says someone used his telephone credit card number last year without his knowledge.

"I was shocked," said State Rep. F.R. Edwards on Monday. Edwards said he discovered the situation after checking a listing of his 1975 calls.

"I discovered that in one period of 1975, a total of 240 calls out of 383 made according to the records were definitely not made by me," said Edwards, a Republican.

"Some of the calls were from as far away as Van Nuys, Calif., and Beckley, W.Va. I have never been in either place," he added.

Edwards said he would like to know if this has happened to other legislators and how much it has cost the state.

Gun-Control Legislation Could Reach House Floor

By EDMUND PINTO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A poll of House Judiciary Committee members indicates there now are enough votes on the panel to approve gun-control legislation and send it to the floor of the House for the first time since 1968.

Although any committee approval would only be the first step in the legislative process that includes Senate committee action, floor action in both chambers and either the President's signature or a veto battle, such approval would be a landmark because past gun-control efforts have been defeated at that point.

Of the 34 members on the Judiciary Committee, there were indications that 18 members, the bare minimum needed for approval, would vote to send the legislation to the House floor.

Fourteen members declared outright, either personally or through staff members, that they would vote for the latest gun control legislation to be approved by a judiciary subcommittee. Two more said through aides that they leaned toward voting "yes," while the remaining two listed themselves as undecided. However, each of these four has consistently voted in favor of gun control proposals in the past. Furthermore, two members who voted against another gun control measure recently now say they can support the latest version.

There was no word from Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., about when he would call a new meeting to consider the new legislation, although he is among the 14 supporters of the bill listed in the poll by a reporter.

Ambulance Operators Protest Payment Cut

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Ambulance operators from across the state planned to meet at the state Capitol today to protest an 11 per cent cut in payments they say causes them to lose money on every Medicaid run.

Rodney Palmer, president of the Michigan Association of Ambulance Services and Emergency Medical Technicians, said 300 paramedics, emergency medical technicians, ambulance providers and senior citizens were expected to join the protest.

Palmer said his association Monday began refusing non-emergency service to Medicaid patients until the 11 per cent reduction ordered by the governor earlier this year is restored, "plus the balance necessary to achieve payment equal to the federal funding of medicare."

He said the cut is forcing the ambulance industry to accept Medicaid calls at an average loss of more than $13 each to commercial operators and $12.18 to volunteer services.

"We are not lacking in compassion for the needs of Medicaid recipients, but as an industry we can no longer afford to subsidize the state's Medicaid program," Palmer said.

Gun-Control Legislation Could Reach House Floor

By EDMUND PINTO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A poll of House Judiciary Committee members indicates there now are enough votes on the panel to approve gun-control legislation and send it to the floor of the House for the first time since 1968.

Although any committee approval would only be the first step in the legislative process that includes Senate committee action, floor action in both chambers and either the President's signature or a veto battle, such approval would be a landmark because past gun-control efforts have been defeated at that point.

Of the 34 members on the Judiciary Committee, there were indications that 18 members, the bare minimum needed for approval, would vote to send the legislation to the House floor.

Fourteen members declared outright, either personally or through staff members, that they would vote for the latest gun control legislation to be approved by a judiciary subcommittee. Two more said through aides that they leaned toward voting "yes," while the remaining two listed themselves as undecided. However, each of these four has consistently voted in favor of gun control proposals in the past. Furthermore, two members who voted against another gun control measure recently now say they can support the latest version.

There was no word from Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., about when he would call a new meeting to consider the new legislation, although he is among the 14 supporters of the bill listed in the poll by a reporter.

Ambulance Operators Protest Payment Cut

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Ambulance operators from across the state planned to meet at the state Capitol today to protest an 11 per cent cut in payments they say causes them to lose money on every Medicaid run.

Rodney Palmer, president of the Michigan Association of Ambulance Services and Emergency Medical Technicians, said 300 paramedics, emergency medical technicians, ambulance providers and senior citizens, were expected to join the protest.

Palmer said his association Monday began refusing non-emergency service to Medicaid patients until the 11 per cent reduction ordered by the governor earlier this year is restored, "plus the balance necessary to achieve payment equal to the federal funding of medicare."

He said the cut is forcing the ambulance industry to accept Medicaid calls at an average loss of more than $12 each to commercial operator$ and $32.18 to volunteer services.

"We are not lacking in compassion for the needs of Medicaid recipients, but as an industry we can no longer afford to subsidize the state's Medicaid program," Palmer said.

Wisconsin, New York Voting

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer

Wisconsin, which has made or broken presidential contenders, and New York, always important because of its big bloc of convention delegates, hold presidential primary elections today.

At stake in New York were 274 Democratic nominating votes and 117 Republican delegates to go with 37 already picked. Wisconsin's Democrats decided the allocation of 68 Democratic and 35 Republican delegates.

The polls were scheduled to remain open in both states until 9 p.m.

Both Jimmy Carter and Morris Udall predicted victory in Wisconsin's Democratic primary as they stumped the state Monday. Washington Sen. Henry M. Jackson forecast long ago he would win in New York.

Alabama Gov. George Wallace, who finished a close second in Wisconsin four years ago to the eventual Democratic nominee, George McGovern, wound up his campaign in the state Friday and returned to his home in Montgomery. "I think we'll do better than they think," he said. Wallace had delegate slates listed in only a few congressional districts in New York.

The only real Republican contest was in Wisconsin, although Ronald Reagan, who is challenging President Ford for the GOP nomination, gave up his personal campaigning there for a nationally televised address. In New York, Reagan ran delegate slates in only four of 39 districts.

Reagan, who won his first primary two weeks ago in North Carolina, was in Texas today, rounding up support for that state's May 1 election.

Wisconsin, the state which vaulted John F. Kennedy toward the White House in 1960 and Lyndon B. Johnson toward retirement eight years later, appeared at one point about to lose its standing as a key primary because of a state law allowing crossover voting, which is forbidden by new Democratic party rules.

But the party backed off March 4 and said the primary could be used one more time to bind convention delegates, even though Republicans were allowed to vote in the Democratic primary.

New York's legislature voted three weeks ago to put the names of the presidential candidates on the ballots for the first time. Previously, only the names of delegate candidates were listed, with no clue as to which of the candidates they supported.

Rising Cost Of Living Sends American Poverty Level Upward

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of Americans once looked at an income of $100 a week as a major benchmark, a sign of middle class success. Now, the government says, a family of four with that income lives below the poverty level.

The rising cost of living means the federal government's definition of poverty will go up about $500 to nearly $5,500 this year for a non-farm family of four, the Labor Department reported today.

The Labor Department said it will use the higher income levels in determining eligibility for its employment and job training programs, effective April 1.

The $5,500 figure is the same as a preliminary estimate of the Census Bureau.

A spokesman said the bureau won't know how many persons are living in poverty this year, based on the new figures, until after results of its annual population survey, conducted in March, are compiled.

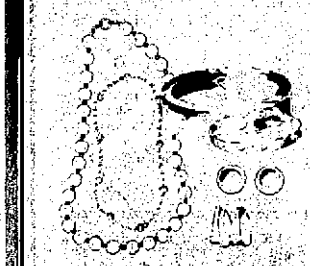

Both the Census Bureau and Labor Department say higher calculations of the poverty level are based on the cost of living increases during 1975.

The Labor Department gave the following breakdown for poverty level income by size of family, for non-farm and farm families, for this year, compared to last. The first figure is the size of the family, the second is the poverty level for nonfarm families and the third figure is the level for farm families.

In 1976, a family of one member: $2,800, $2,400; two $3,700, $3,100; three $4,600, $3,920; four $5,500, $4,680, five $6,400, $5,440; six $7,300, $6,200.

In 1975, a family of one member: $2,590, $2,200; two $3,410, $2,905; three $4,230, $3,600; four $5,050, $4,300; five $5,870, 5,000; six 6,690, 5,700.

Jeno's Will Double Sodus Fruit Pack

By DICK DERRICK
Staff Writer

Jeno's, Inc., has spent over $1 million on its new Sodus plant and will double its processed cherry and apple output, Harold Running, vice president, purchasing, told Twin City Rotarians and their farmer guests yesterday.

It was the annual rural-urban day when Rotarians honor area growers. Approximately 200 attended the luncheon at the St. Joseph Elks temple.

Jeno's purchased the Sodus Fruit Exchange division of United Foods at Sodus last May. Since then, Running said, the Duluth, Minn., food processor has spent in excess of $1 million on roofing, flooring, plumbing and wiring replacements, a new dock and warehouse and a new agricultural chemicals building.

Running said Jeno's plans call for continuing, expanding and upgrading present filling lines that were recently moved to Sodus from Duluth.

Running added that Jeno's will continue the Sodus juice operations, apple, cherry and blueberry processing and some private label, industrial and institutional lines.

Employment has climbed from 40 employes to 200 at present and company officials predict it will reach 300 workers during the peak of the fruit harvest season.

"Our further hope," Running said, "is to develop some new products to utilize other available fruits from your area for packing under the Wilderness label." The Wilderness label brand was developed 27 years ago and is now one of the four major brands of fruit fillings in the U.S.

Running said to the growers and their Rotary hosts, "I say this with sincerity, one of the major factors for our coming to Southwestern Michigan was the wide variety of items and potential to us.

"Our needs and capacities of the Sodus plant are going to be greatly expanded. We have doubled our cherry processing and will be more than doubling our apple processing."

He said: "We feel our first 11 months of operations at our new Sodus plant have gone quite well. We have had excellent cooperation and understanding from the growers, good response from previous management personnel, noted excellent quality of new personnel and we are impressed with the interest and cooperation of your business community and leaders . . . especially the Sodus township board which has greatly assisted us."

Jeno's is an outgrowth of Northland Foods, Inc., which started 27 years ago in Duluth. About eight years ago Jeno F. Paulucci, who then owned both Northland Foods and Chun King Corp., sold Chun King to R.J.

Reynolds, Inc. and concentrated his efforts and resources on Northland Foods operations and sales.

Northland Foods was renamed Jenos, Inc., and the Jeno's brand of packaged pizza mixes was expanded with frozen pizza, pizza rolls, pizza snack tray and egg roll items.

Jeno's has seven plants. They are in Duluth, Superior, Wis., Fargo, N.D. and Sodus. The firm employs 1,800 at present and as many as 2,200 at peak production times. The company is privately held and sales figures are not published but Running said annual current sales are in excess of $100 million.

Running said Jeno's searched for a suitable location in Michigan for 10 years before purchasing the Sodus facility.

DEBT SALES

DETROIT (AP) — The domestic new-car market surged upwards with unexpected strength in March as sales broke through the 800,000-unit barrier for the first month in 2½ years.

State-Run Power System Considered

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A non-profit state authority that could provide energy to Michigan residents would be created under a proposal from a special blue-ribbon panel, the group's chairman reports.

The proposal from the Advisory Commission on Electric Power Alternatives would create a tax-exempt Michigan Power Authority that would bid against private utilities for the right to build new electric generating plants.

It was approved by an 8-5 vote Sunday night, with utility and construction trades representatives dissenting.

"It was not gung-ho behind (the proposal)," said chairman James Brickley, a former lieutenant governor under Gov. William G. Milliken, who appointed the panel.

Under the proposal, the state Public Service Commission — which now sets utility rates — would forecast future demand for electric power and decide who should build power plants.

Construction by the state authority would be funded through sales of bonds backed by the state. Private utilities such as Detroit Edison Co. and Consumers Power Co. would buy the power from the authority at cost, and distribute it to their customers. But they would be unable to earn a profit on the purchased power.

Thus, the plan would mean lower prices for electric customers and lower costs for construction, said Brickley, now president of Eastern Michigan University.

It would be the first system to include both public and private power production in the country, Brickley said.

Senate Will Vote Today On State Primary Funds

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state Senate planned a final vote today on a bill to reimburse local governments for the May 18 presidential primary.

The bill, expected to cost the state some $2.5 million, was put in place for the vote Monday. Oddly, that action came just hours after the state Supreme Court ruled the state did not have to pick up the tab for the election.

The Senate rejected — temporarily at least — part of Gov. William Milliken's plan to avert a budget deficit. The House took no major action.

The primary funding bill would permit local governments to bill the state for costs of the presidential primary. They would not be paid for the cost of local issues on the ballot.

The state provided some $1.9 million in funding in 1972, when the primary was first held. Local officials claimed this year they could not absorb the cost of the election.

They filed suit challenging the power of the state to require them to hold the election and also pick up the tab. Despite temporary victories in Ingham County Circuit Court, the local officials lost Monday when the Supreme Court said the state had the power to mandate the election and require local units to pay for it.

The Senate bill was amended to make it expire Dec. 31. That means bills must be submitted bills by then and that no funding is guaranteed for the primary in 1980.

Rejected was a bill that would have allowed the state to borrow $50 million from the Veterans Trust Fund. It was turned back because the House had tied it to other bills.

The vote was 25-8. The measure will now go to a conference committee to work out a compromise.

The measure is a key part of Milliken's plan to avert a $280 million deficit this fiscal year.

MAY 18 VOTE UPHELD

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state Supreme Court has upheld the power of Michigan to hold a presidential primary May 18, whether or not the legislature votes to finance it.

The court's ruling came Monday only hours after the Court of Appeals overturned a lower court ruling blocking the election. The high court heard oral arguments in the same case.

"The high court's decision is apparently the final verdict in whether the embattled primary will be held. It means local clerks could resume preparation of primary election ballots, but it also could mean local governments will have to foot the bill.

"The legislature has mandated that the local units of government shall hold presidential primary elections and there is presently no provision for state reimbursement of the costs," the court said. "The holding of a presidential primary is a public purpose authorized by law."

DULL PENCIL FOR HIGH PRICES: Usually Twin City Rotary club gives pen to speakers, but yesterday Robert Kinney (left), fruit grower and program chairman, gave Speaker Harold Running, purchasing boss for Jeno's Inc., a dull pencil, suggesting Running use it for figuring prices his firm will pay for fruit at its new Sodus plant. # Jeno's Will Double Sodus Fruit Pack

By DICK DERRICK
Staff Writer

Jeno's, Inc., has spent over $1 million on its new Sodus plant and will double its processed cherry and apple output, Harold Running, vice president, purchasing, told Twin City Rotarians and their farmer guests yesterday.

It was the annual rural-urban day when Rotarians honor area growers. Approximately 200 attended the luncheon at the St. Joseph Elks temple.

Jeno's purchased the Sodus Fruit Exchange division of United Foods at Sodus last May. Since then, Running said, the Duluth, Minn., food processor has spent in excess of $1 million on roofing, flooring, plumbing and wiring replacements, a new dock and warehouse and a new agricultural chemicals building.

Running said Jeno's plans call for continuing, expanding and upgrading present filling lines that were recently moved to Sodus from Duluth.

Running added that Jeno's will continue the Sodus juice operations, apple, cherry and blueberry processing and some private label, industrial and institutional lines.

Employment has climbed from 40 employes to 200 at present and company officials predict it will reach 300 workers during the peak of the fruit harvest season.

"Our further hope," Running said, "is to develop some new products to utilize other available fruits from your area for packing under the Wilderness label." The Wilderness label brand was developed 27 years ago and is now one of the four major brands of fruit fillings in the U.S.

Running said to the growers and their Rotary hosts, "I say this with sincerity, one of the major factors for our coming to Southwestern Michigan was the wide variety of items and potential to us.

"Our needs and capacities of the Sodus plant are going to be greatly expanded. We have doubled our cherry processing and will be more than doubling our apple processing."

He said: "We feel our first 11 months of operations at our new Sodus plant have gone quite well. We have had excellent cooperation and understanding from the growers, good response from previous management personnel, noted excellent quality of new personnel and we are impressed with the interest and cooperation of your business community and leaders . . . especially the Sodus township board which has greatly assisted us."

Jeno's is an outgrowth of Northland Foods, Inc., which started 27 years ago in Duluth. About eight years ago Jeno F. Paulucci, who then owned both Northland Foods and Chun King Corp., sold Chun King to R.J. Reynolds, Inc. and concentrated his efforts and resources on Northland Foods operations and sales.

Northland Foods was renamed Jenos, Inc., and the Jeno's brand of packaged pizza mixes was expanded with frozen pizza, pizza rolls, pizza snack tray and egg roll items.

Jeno's has seven plants. They are in Duluth, Superior, Wis., Fargo, N.D. and Sodus. The firm employs 1,800 at present and as many as 2,200 at peak production times. The company is privately held and sales figures are not published but Running said annual current sales are in excess of $100 million.

Running said Jeno's searched for a suitable location in Michigan for 10 years before purchasing the Sodus facility.

State-Run Power System Considered

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A non-profit state authority that could provide energy to Michigan residents would be created under a proposal from a special blue-ribbon panel, the group's chairman reports.

The proposal from the Advisory Commission on Electric Power Alternatives would create a tax-exempt Michigan Power Authority that would bid against private utilities for the right to build new electric generating plants.

It was approved by an 8-5 vote Sunday night, with utility and construction trades representatives dissenting.

"It was not gung-ho behind (the proposal)," said chairman James Brickley, a former lieutenant governor under Gov. William G. Milliken, who appointed the panel.

Under the proposal, the state Public Service Commission — which now sets utility rates — would forecast future demand for electric power and decide who should build power plants.

Construction by the state authority would be funded through sales of bonds backed by the state. Private utilities such as Detroit Edison Co. and Consumers Power Co. would buy the power from the authority at cost, and distribute it to their customers. But they would be unable to earn a profit on the purchased power.

Thus, the plan would mean lower prices for electric customers and lower costs for construction, said Brickley, now president of Eastern Michigan University.

It would be the first system to include both public and private power production in the country, Brickley said.

Senate Will Vote Today On State Primary Funds

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state Senate planned a final vote today on a bill to reimburse local governments for the May 18 presidential primary.

The bill, expected to cost the state some $2.5 million, was put in place for the vote Monday. Oddly, that action came just hours after the state Supreme Court ruled the state did not have to pick up the tab for the election.

The Senate rejected — temporarily at least — part of Gov. William Milliken's plan to avert a budget deficit. The House took no major action.

The primary funding bill would permit local governments to bill the state for costs of the presidential primary. They would not be paid for the cost of local issues on the ballot.

The state provided some $1.9 million in funding in 1972, when the primary was first held. Local officials claimed this year they could not absorb the cost of the election.

They filed suit challenging the power of the state to require them to hold the election and also pick up the tab. Despite temporary victories in Ingham County Circuit Court, the local officials lost Monday when the Supreme Court said the state had the power to mandate the election and require local units to pay for it.

The Senate bill was amended to make it expire Dec. 31. That means bills must be submitted bills by then and that no funding is guaranteed for the primary in 1980.

Rejected was a bill that would have allowed the state to borrow $50 million from the Veterans Trust Fund. It was turned back because the House had tied it to other bills.

The vote was 25-6. The measure will now go to a conference committee to work out a compromise.

The measure is a key part of Milliken's plan to avert a $280 million deficit this fiscal year.

MAY 18 VOTE UPHELD

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state Supreme Court has upheld the power of Michigan to hold a presidential primary May 18 whether or not the legislature votes to finance it.

The court's ruling came Monday only hours after the Court of Appeals overturned a lower court ruling blocking the election. The high court heard oral arguments in the same case.

The high court's decision is apparently the final verdict in whether the embattled primary will be held. It means local clerks could resume preparation of primary election ballots, but it also could mean local governments will have to foot the bill.

"The legislature has mandated that the local units of government shall hold presidential primary elections and there is presently no provision for state reimbursement of the costs," the court said. "The holding of a presidential primary is a public purpose authorized by law."

St. Joe Township's 3-2 Vote Kills Metal Firm Tax Exemption

The St. Joseph township board of trustees last night rejected a tax exemption for Wolverine Metal Stamping, Inc., that would have reduced property taxes 50 per cent for 12 years on the new Wolverine plant at 3800 Tennis court.

The board voted 3 to 2 to deny a public hearing on Wolverine's request for tax exemption under the Michigan Plant Rehabilitation and Industrial Development Districts act of 1974. The exemption would have amounted to $6,285 annually.

Atty. Michael Cook, representing Wolverine, said: "That's it." He explained there is no appeal to the board's decision. Approval of the local municipality and the state is required before exemptions can be granted.

Township board members who opposed the request said it was unfair to other taxpayers — both residential and industrial.

Supervisor Orval L. Benson said the township had just raised the tax assessment on Wolverine Metal Stamping's neighbor, Continental Can Co. Benson said the thread of argument that runs through board of review meetings is that taxpayers don't object to paying taxes, they just don't want to pay more, under comparable circumstances, than their neighbors.

Robert DeVries, board trustee, said the exemption over the 12-year span would cost the county, township and schools approximately $71,058.

There was general complaint among board members that Wolverine was making its appeal after its building was up.

Wolverine President Eugene Milnikel denied any intent to use the plant as a lever to gain tax relief. He said it took time to get all the costs together.

Milnikel said the money saved on taxes would be used to expand the facilities. Wolvertnes employs 31 people at present and expects employment to climb to 40. The firm expects to move from its present plant on US-31 in Hagar township to the new plant in about 45 days, Milnikel said.

St. Joseph township on Aug. 5, 1975 denied a simillar request filed by LECO Corp. of St. Joseph for its addition on Hilltop road, across from the parent plant.

DeVries moved to deny the Wolverine request and Mrs. Sally Mutz supported him. They were joined by Trustee Carl Reschke in voting to deny the company's bid for a hearing.

Treasurer Isadore DiMaggio argued that over a period of years the expansion of industrial facilities will net the township and other units more tax dollars than would be lost through the exemption. DiMaggio and Clerk Bill Payne Smith voted against the motion to deny. Benson did not vote and Trustee Carroll Gerbel was absent.

Cook in his presentation listed some 20 Berrien county industries that have applied for industrial facilities tax exemption certificates with most getting approval and others pending.

Benson told the board that Township Atty. John Crow had advised that once the hearing is granted "you no longer are in control." Atty. Cook said he disagreed and attempted to keep the hearing bid alive by a review of the procedure. The board took no action.

In other action the board:

—Voted to approve a 1976-77 operating budget of $1,003,139. It is about two per cent higher than the 1975-76 budget of $986,440. The budget was originally presented at the annual meeting April 3.

—Asked Berrien county Department of Public Works to take steps to fix the interceptor sewer which has apparently collapsed allowing considerable infiltration. Indications are that the line collapsed in the Niles road area.

—Approved $8,500 matching funds with Berrien county road commission for work to be agreed on later.

—Approved a contract with Joe Allen of Hartford to pick up township rubbish at the rate of $82,490 per year, up from $77,256 this year.

—Approved requests for tag days for Easter Seal Society for April 16; Fairplain Youth Baseball association for April 30 and May 1; and Fruit Bell Post No. 1137, VFW, for May 21 and 22.

Paw Paw Fills Vacancy On Village Council

By DENNIS COGSWILL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — Dalton Rumsey, a building contractor and former Paw Paw village trustee, was appointed to fill a vacancy on the village council by the governing body last night.

Rumsey, of 611 North street, will replace former Trustee Charles R. Castimano, who resigned his seat March 22 to take a job with the village. Rumsey's appointment will be effective with the April 26 meeting and run through March 9, 1978.

Rumsey's last bid for the council was in February, 1975 when he was defeated in the Republican primary for a trustee's seat.

In other areas, council took under advisement a request by the Paw Paw fire department that carnival rides not be allowed in the downtown area during the village's annual Grape and Wine festival in September. Atty. William Hamilton, representing the group, said a recent fire at the Elk's club demonstrated the potential danger of the situation. He noted that should a fire break out in the downtown area, equipment would not be able to be moved in because of the congestion caused by the rides.

Orville Griffith, owner of the Drip-It Party store, appeared before the council to ask that a no right turn on a red light sign be posted at the corner of Michigan avenue and Gremps street. He said the intersection is heavily used by school children and senior citizens, and allowing turns on red lights creates a possible hazard.

Griffith also stated that with the institution of turns on red, five or six parallel parking spots on the west side of Gremps have been eliminated, hurting area businesses.

Trustee George Kolosar said the village is currently undertaking a traffic study and would consider the request in light of the study's results.

DALTON RUMSEY
Named to council

Council also approved a donation of $314 to the Van Buren Transportation Task Force based on ten cents per capita of the village's population as of the 1970 census. The money will go toward supporting a countywide bus system for transporting senior citizens and the handicapped.

Village President Charles F. Smith announced that the council is seeking persons interested in filling one remaining trustee vacancy on the council. The spot was opened up when Smith, a former trustee, was elected president in March.

Castimano was also presented with a plaque in recognition for his service on the council.

$3.2 Million Budget Gets Paw Paw Board's Okay

PAW PAW — A tentative 1976-77 budget of $3,237,140, down about $4,000 from the current year's expenditures, was approved by the Paw Paw school board during a special meeting last night.

The budget included a request to the Van Buren county tax allocation board for a 9.5-mill property tax rate allocation, according to Dr. Norval S. Bovee, system superintendent.

The allocation board divides 18 mills among schools, the Van Buren intermediate district, townships, and county, of which schools are now allotted 8.58 mills. It will meet April 19.

Bovee said if Paw Paw is not given the additional .92 of a mill it is seeking, he would probably have to come back to the board and ask for an additional mill in a future election.

The budget's general fund is based on a total of 27 mills, 17.5 of which are now voted and 9.5 which the board hopes will be allocated.

Bovee said the 27 mills multiplied by an anticipated state equalized valuation for the district of $38.5 million would yield $1,026,000. The district's current SEV is $38,006,000, which Bovee said he anticipated would drop because of losses to the state's new single business tax.

Anticipated revenue includes: local sources (including tax revenue and other income), $1,231,500; intermediate district, $10,000; state aid, $1,843,640; and federal aid, $52,000.

Expenditures in the budget include: instruction, $2,150,000; administration, $138,000; health services, $2,000; transportation, $179,000; operation, $248,000; maintenance, $112,000; fixed charges, $202,000; capital outlay, $20,000; and student services, $185,000.

Bovee attributed the overall drop to the projected decrease in the SEV and an anticipated cut in state aid. He noted maintenance allocations are down 21 per cent and capital outlay has been cut 73 per cent.

In other areas, the board by a 5 to 1 margin, voted in terminate the contract of high school English teacher Kenneth Ericson at the end of the year, for "failure to maintain an acceptable level of classroom control."

Carter Support

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Mayor Coleman Young said he would support former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter in the May 18 Michigan presidential primary. Young said he told Carter the endorsement is only for the Michigan primary.

Petition Requests Drainage District

THREE OAKS — A petition requesting a new drainage district be established was presented to the Three Oaks township board last night by Carl Gnodtke, Berrien county drain commissioner.

The petition with 11 signatures seeks a new drain along Flynn road in parts of sections 1, 2, and 35 of the township, according to supervisor Alfred Hellenga. The proposed drain would connect with the Wild Rose drain, he said.

The board said it would check into the drain matter. Gnodtke said the drain would be a county drain, but the township would have to guarantee the engineering expense involved.

In the only other area of business, the board approved sending letters to a number of township residents asking them to clean up their property.

Cook in his presentation listed some 20 Berrien county industries that have applied for industrial facilities tax exemption certificates with most getting approval and others pending.

Benson told the board that Township Atty. John Crow had advised that once the hearing is granted "you no longer are in control." Atty. Cook said he disagreed and attempted to keep the hearing bid alive by a review of the procedure. The board took no action.

In other action the board:

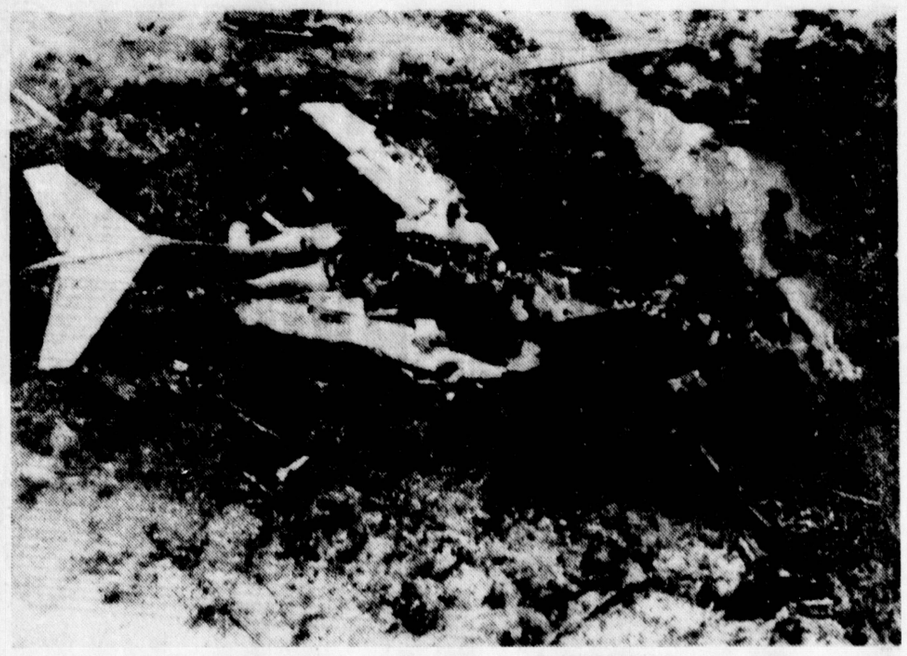

—Voted to approve a 1976-77 operating budget of $1,003,130. It is about two per cent higher than the 1975-76 budget of $986,440. The budget was originally presented at the annual meeting April 3.

—Asked Berrien county Department of Public Works to take steps to fix the interceptor sewer which has apparently collapsed allowing considerable infiltration. Indications are that the line collapsed in the Niles road area.

—Approved $8,500 matching funds with Berrien county road commission for work to be agreed on later.

—Approved a contract with Joe Allen of Hartford to pick up township rubbish at the rate of $82,490 per year, up from $77,256 this year.

—Approved requests for tag days for Easter Seal Society for April 16; Fairplain Youth Baseball association for April 30 and May 1; and Fruit Belt Post No. 1137, VFW, for May 21 and 22.

Paw Paw Fills Vacancy On Village Council

By DENNIS COGSWILL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — Dalton Rumsey, a building contractor and former Paw Paw village trustee, was appointed to fill a vacancy on the village council by the governing body last night.

Rumsey, of 611 North street, will replace former Trustee Charles R. Cusumano, who resigned his seat March 23 to take a job with the village. Rumsey's appointment will be effective with the April 26 meeting and run through March 9, 1978.

DALTON RUMSEY
Named to council

Rumsey's last bid for the council was in February, 1975 when he was defeated in the Republican primary for a trustee's seat.

In other areas, council took under advisement a request by the Paw Paw fire department that carnival rides not be allowed in the downtown area during the village's annual Grape and Wine festival in September. Atty. William Hamilton, representing the group, said a recent fire at the Elk's club demonstrated the potential danger of the situation. He noted that should a fire break out in the downtown area, equipment would not be able to be moved in because of the congestion caused by the rides.

Orville Griffith, owner of the Tripo-li Party store, appeared before the council to ask that a no right turn on a red light sign be posted at the corner of Michigan avenue and Gremps street. He said the intersection is heavily used by school children and senior citizens, and allowing turns on red lights creates a possible hazard.

Griffith also stated that with the institution of turns on red, five or six parallel parking spots on the west side of Gremps have been eliminated, hurting area businesses.

Trustee George Kolosar said the village is currently undertaking a traffic study and would consider the request in light of the study's results.

Council also approved a donation of $314 to the Van Buren Transportation Task Force based on ten cents per capita of the village's population as of the 1970 census. The money will go toward supporting a countywide bus system for transporting senior citizens and the handicapped.

Village President Charles F. Smith announced that the council is seeking persons interested in filling one remaining trustee vacancy on the council. The spot was opened up when Smith, a former trustee, was elected president in March.

Cusumano was also presented with a plaque in recognition for his service on the council.

$3.2 Million Budget Gets Paw Paw Board's Okay

PAW PAW — A tentative 1976-77 budget of $3,237,140, down about $4,000 from the current year's expenditures, was approved by the Paw Paw school board during a special meeting last night.

The budget included a request to the Van Buren county tax allocation board for a 9.5-mill property tax rate allocation, according to Dr. Norval S. Bovee, system superintendent.

The allocation board divides 15 mills among schools, the Van Buren intermediate district, townships, and county, of which schools are now alotted 8.58 mills. It will meet April 19.

Bovee said if Paw Paw is not given the additional .92 of a mill it is seeking, he would probably have to come back to the board and ask for an additional mill in a future election.

The budget's general fund is based on a total of 27 mills, 17.5 of which are now voted and 9.5 which the board hopes will be allocated.

Bovee said the 27 mills multiplied by an anticipated state equalized valuation for the district of $38.5 million would yield $1,026,000. The district's current SEV is $38,698,809, which Bovee said he anticipated would drop becauses of losses to the state's new single business tax.

Anticipated revenue includes: local sources (including tax revenue and other income), $1,231,500; intermediate district, $10,000; state aid, $1,943,640; and federal aid, $52,000.

Expenditures in the budget include: instruction, $2,150,000; administration, $138,000; health services, $2,000; transportation, $179,000; operation, $248,000; maintenance, $112,000; fixed charges, $202,640; capital outlay, $20,000; and student services, $185,000.

Bovee attributed the overall drop to the projected decrease in the SEV and an anticipated cut in state aid. He noted maintenance allocations are down 21 per cent and capital outlay has been cut 73 per cent.

In other areas, the board by a 5 to 1 margin, voted to terminate the contract of high school English teacher Kenneth Ericson at the end of the year, for "failure to maintain an acceptable level of classroom control."

Carter Support

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Mayor Coleman Young said he would support former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter in the May 18 Michigan presidential primary. Young said he told Carter the endorsement is only for the Michigan primary.

Petition Requests Drainage District

THREE OAKS — A petition requesting a new drainage district be established was presented to the Three Oaks township board last night by Carl Gnodtke, Berrien county drain commissioner.

The petition with 11 signatures seeks a new drain along Flynn road in parts of sections 1, 2, and 35 of the township, according to Supervisor Alfred Hellenga. The proposed drain would connect with the Wild Rose drain, he said.

The board said it would check into the drain matter. Gnodtke said the drain would be a county drain, but the township would have to guarantee the engineering expense involved.

In the only other area of business, the board approved sending letters to a number of township residents asking them to clean up their property.

MIRACLE FERTILIZER

Today there are more and more recommended ways to make plants grow larger and faster: music . . . love . . . conversation, just to mention a few. Strange enough the story of Jack and the Beanstalk may very poorly come true one of these days, thanks to something entirely different. An accidental discovery may turn out to be the biggest agricultural news of this or any other century.

The discovery was made by a medical doctor working with NASA- a man named Walter Kammerer. What happened was this. Dr. Kammerer wanted to find out if moondust contained any contamination that might infect earth plants. So he took a bunch of plants, scratched their leaves, and inserted some moondust.

Except for one plant, a fern; it didn't lend itself to leaf-scratching. So the doctor simply sprinkled a bit of moondust on the soil around the plant, just to see what would happen.

What happened was that the fern tripled in size! A flabbergasted Dr. Kammerer, knowing he was on to something very big, immediately conducted other tests . . . all with the same fantastic results.

So far it's a mystery, although scientists do know that moondust contains more titanium zirconium and chromium than earth soil, and they're testing to see which of these three elements . . . if any . . . is the miracle fertilizer.

More exciting, the surface of the moon itself might be ideal for farming, although the problems of getting water there and building greenhouses big enough are pretty forbidding. All the same, NASA was seriously thinking about having future astronauts erect a small greenhouse there and test some fast-growing plants.

Well, after all that, I [illegible] But I will say that Schneck's has some of the finest foods on earth . . . at prices you haven't seen anywhere else in many a moon!

Cable TV Right Granted For BH

The Benton Harbor city commission last night voted unanimously to grant a cable television firm the right to operate in the city although the issue has been twice defeated by city voters.

The action to approve operation of Benton Harbor Cable TV., Inc., in the city came after a letter was read from F.M. Hop, of the Michigan Public Service Commission, declaring that a cable television firm was not a "public utility."

Mayor Charles Joseph said after the meeting that the commission's action was based on an opinion by Atty. K. Morris Gavin that the commission could approve the cable televison firm's operation if it was not a "public utility."

The city charter requires that all public utility franchises be approved by a three-fifths majority in a city-wide election. It does not specify that cable television firms must obtain a franchise to operate.

The city commission also directed Atty. Gavin to draft necessary documents to allow Benton Harbor Cable TV, Inc., to operate in the city.

On Jan. 19, an election for a 15-year franchise for the cable television firm was declared defeated when a three-fifths majority of "yes" votes was not obtained by six-tenths of a vote. City voters cast 135 votes in favor of the franchise, 91 against, and one spoiled ballot. The franchise issue had also been defeated during the city's primary election in 1973.

In a prepared resolution read last night, Mayor Joseph called for approval of the cable television firm's operation, stating that the outcome in the last election was in question and the service should not be denied to residents who wanted the service and would cost nothing to those who did not want it.

"It's been three years getting it, but I think it was worth it," Earl Drake, president of Benton Harbor Cable TV, Inc., told commissioners last night.

Drake said after the meeting that he expects to start work installing the cable television lines this summer and hopes to be completed by next winter. He said earlier that the system will cost about $750,000 and that from 15 to 20 people locally will be employed in installation of the service.

Installation cost per home desiring the service will be $15, according to Drake, and will include free cable televiewing for the first 90 days. After the 90-day period, the initial monthly subscription rate will be $5.

Drake also said last night that the operation in the City of Benton Harbor will be in conjunction with homes in Benton township. In February, the Benton township board of trustees granted Drake's firm a 10-year franchise to operate in the township.

The commission last night voted 6 to 1 to urge the closing of the Benton Harbor-Benton township Model Cities program within 30 days.

Mayor Joseph called for the vote after questioning $7,750 billed to the city's Model Cities program in the list of city bills. City Manager James Peeples, Jr., said after the meeting that the bill was for the salary of Mary DeFoe, program evaluator, and office supplies and utility costs.

The Benton Harbor-Benton township Model Cities program, operated with federal funds, officially ended Dec. 31, 1975, and has been replaced by federal Community Development programs for both communities. Peeples said the program is currently undergoing auditing procedures. The commission also directed that the audit be completed by the end of April.

Saying the matter should be studied further, Commissioner Charles Yarbrough cast the only vote against urging the program's closing within a month. An earlier motion by Yarbrough to table the resolution failed.

The commissinn approved contracts for two social service agencies and a credit union with funds from a $125,000 federal Community Development "urgent needs" grant.

Granted contracts were Benton Harbor senior citizens center, for $15,000; Community Parents, Inc., Child Care center, $40,000, and the Peoples Community Federal credit union, $42,000. The remaining $28,000 was slated for the Dental Care clinic, but a contract was not approved because plans for closing of the clinic have been announced. The Berrien county health department, which has administered the program with federal funds, announced March 10 that it planned to phase out the clinic. The clinic located at 604 East High street has been headed by Dr. Harzel Taylor for the past 11 years.

BH Patrolmen Outline Results Of 14 Layoffs

The Benton Harbor Patrolmen's association, through its president Darryl Williamson, today issued a statement describing the consequences of the pending layoffs of 14 patrolmen. The statement said the layoffs will endanger the public because of reduced street patrols.

The statement questions city priorities when federal money is being sought for an ombudsman and a mayor's newsletter.

St. Joseph Atty. John Dewane, counsel for the Patrolmen's association, said today that it would be "premature" to comment on whether patrolmen will take legal action against the city over the layoffs because patrolmen have not yet received offical notice that they will be laidoff.

City Manager James Peeples Jr. announced last week that 14 police patrolmen and 11 firefighters will be dropped because of budget cuts.

Text of the statement signed by Williamson and Jon Nichols, district director of Fraternal Order of Police, bargaining agent for the patrolmen:

Citizens on Benton Harbor:

We the members of the Benton Harbor Patrolmen's Association wish to express our views pertaining to the proposed lay-offs of fourteen police officers from the Benton Harbor Police Department.

We presently have 33 officers below the rank of sergeant. Of these 33 officers 5 are assigned to the Criminal Investigation Unit, 3 are assigned to the metro units, one is assigned as a court officer and there is one assigned to the Crime Prevention Unit. This leaves 23 uniformed officers. If the proposed lay-off occurs this would reduce the uniform division to 10 officers. If the number of officers assigned to special units was cut from 10 to 5 that would still leave only 15 uniformed officers. This would mean elimination from the metro units, elimination of our court officer and more important elimination of our crime prevention officer. We have a Crime Prevention Specialist with seven years experience as a police officer who has been to several crime prevention schools. He is the backbone of our Crime Prevention Unit but will be included in the lay-off.

If the police department operates on a 3 shift basis there would be only 5 officers assigned to a shift. Taking into consideration days-off, vacation, court time etc. there could be times where there would be as few as 2 police officers on the street.

The City Manager, in effect, said that the city will only lose seven police officers and that seven would be reduced to Community Service Officers. There might be some truth to this statement but the fact is that there will be fourteen less police officers that are sworn officers who have been patroling our streets.

During the past two years the crime rate in Benton Harbor has been reduced due, in part, to the dedicated efforts of highly qualified police personnel. What will happen to the crime rate in the city if the department is reduced this drastically?

With the reduction of the patrol division complaints and calls for service will have to be responded to on a priority basis. There is a possibility that some of the services that the department presently offers will be phased out.

With the decrease of the police personnel the safety of both the public and the police officers decreases. Due to the safety element response time to certain emergency calls might be increased.

The amount of monies paid out for overtime and callback work has been greatly reduced in the past two years. Losing 14 police officers will certainly cause this to increase again if we are going to afford the public the same protection that we offer now.

The city has notified the employees who would be affected by this proposed lay-off that they should seek other employment. If these people find employment as police officers some other law enforcement agency would benefit from the training they received in Benton Harbor, training paid for with Benton Harbor tax dollars. Also, if the city found it necessary to hire police officers in the future, and was not able to get these employees to return, new people would have to be hired with more time and money being spent on training.

Where is the present city administration placing its priorities? Should the administration apply for Community Developement grants from the government that will help supplement public safety or should they apply for monies that will help to supplement themselves and the Mayor's office. Does the City of Benton Harbor who has an over abundance of City Administrators, who are supposed to be qualified, need a $30,000 grant to hire an ombudsman (overseer) or do we need a proposed grant to aid public safety.? It seems from our stand point that the City could just as well apply for grants that would assist in the area of public safety which affects the entire community.

After considering all the ramifications involved in the proposed lay-off, we the officers of the Benton Harbor Patrolmen's Association have no recourse but to take a stand against any reduction in personnel.

Eau Claire Teens Are Not Injured

Two Eau Claire teenagers escaped injury Monday when their car apparently went out of control, flipped over then caught fire and was destroyed, Berrien sheriff's deputies reported.

Driver of the car was identified as Russell Allen Grubb, 16, and his passenger as Ronald Thomas Grubb, 13, both of 7431 Maple street, Eau Claire. The driver was cited for careless driving.

Deputies said the accident occurred shortly after 1 p.m. on Jones road south of Steinbauer road, Berrien township. Russell Grubb told deputies he noticed smoke coming from under the dash panel and when he looked down the car went out of control and flipped over. He said the engine area burst into flames as he and two unidentified people tried to right the 1971 Chevrolet. The Eau Claire fire department extinguished the blaze.

It's Official -- 25 BH Teachers Axed

The Benton Harbor board of education last night made it official — 25 probationary teachers will be terminated at the end of the current school year because of financial uncertainties.

It was previously announced that the teachers had been sent "pink slip" notices indicating termination.

All of the 25 teachers are on the secondary level (grades 7 through 12).

The board acted last night at a special meeting.

The board in another fiscal matter adopted a $14,815,890 allocation budget for the 1976-77 school year, to be presented to the Berrien county tax allocation board. The budget excludes food services and government reimbursable program portions of the total budget.

It compares to a $14,228,428 operating budget submitted to the county last year.

The board later in a workshop session indicated it will again ask voters to approve a 1-mill tax for five years to maintain buildings. The proposition would be on the ballot at the general election next June. A final decision to put the issue on the ballot will be made at a regular meeting.

The 1-mill request was rejected at a special election last February.

John Fehsenfeld, group director for personnel and labor relations, commented after the meeting that some of the 25 hopefully will be rehired, if the financial picture brightens. Fehsenfeld said if none was rehired, budget expenditures would be reduced by about $250,000.

Fehsenfeld commented that elementary teachers are not affected, largely because there is a higher turnover rate among them.

Fehsenfeld explained that newly-hired teachers are automatically on probation during their first two years. They may obtain tenure status after the second year, but the board of education has the option of extending probation for a third year, Fehsenfeld said. All teachers are on tenure after their third year unless terminated during probation.

Teachers who were terminated are:

Benton Harbor high school — Charles Bullard, Janet Peters, Mary Sanders, Eddie Watson, Alvin Davis, Magda Luebke, Laura Richburg, Trudy Walker, John Nelson, and Beverly Sherman.

Benton Harbor junior high school — Barbara Goins, Tim Kane and Myra Wiggins.

Fairplain junior high — Donald Chubb, John Brown, and Sue VanBragt.

Hull school — Patricia Snyder, Larry Klaer, and Douglas Wiggins.

Alternative education — Joan Johnson and Mike Radum.

School age mothers program — Jerry Gebhardt and Martha Hilario.

Technical and skill centers — John VanLierop and Robert Gray.

Anti-Busers Plan Rally At Capital

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The largest anti-busing group in the Louisville area plans to stage a massive march and rally in Washington later this month, the president of the organization said Monday.

Jack Shore, president of Union Labor Against Busing (ULAB), said he expects 15,000 Louisville residents to participate in the April 24 demonstration. He said they will be joined by "thousands of other people from around the country who are against busing.

"We're expecting about 50,000 people," Shore said.

Man Asks Hearing

PAW PAW — Douglas Bostic, 29, Forest Park, Ill., demanded preliminary examination on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon when arraigned Monday in Van Buren Seventh district court.

Bostic was arrested after state police said they stopped a car near Paw Paw Saturday for speeding and allegedly found a .38-caliber automatic pistol during a search.

Bond was set at $500 and an April 14 hearing scheduled.

Cable TV Right Granted For BH

The Benton Harbor city commission last night voted unanimously to grant a cable television firm the right to operate in the city although the issue has been twice defeated by city voters.

The action to approve operation of Benton Harbor Cable TV., Inc., in the city came after a letter was read from F.M. Hop, of the Michigan Public Service Commission, declaring that a cable television firm was not a "public utility."

Mayor Charles Joseph said after the meeting that the commission's action was based on an opinion by Atty. K. Morris Gavin that the commission could approve the cable televison firm's operation if it was not a "public utility."

The city charter requires that all public utility franchises be approved by a three-fifths majority in a city-wide election. It does not specify that cable television firms must obtain a franchise to operate.

The city commission also directed Atty. Gavin to draft necessary documents to allow Benton Harbor Cable TV, Inc., to operate in the city.

On Jan. 19, an election for a 15-year franchise for the cable television firm was declared defeated when a three-fifths majority of "yes" votes was not obtained by six-tenths of a vote. City voters cast 135 votes in favor of the franchise, 91 against, and one spoiled ballot. The franchise issue had also been defeated during the city's primary election in 1973.

In a prepared resolution read last night, Mayor Joseph called for approval of the cable television firm's operation, stating that the outcome in the last election was in question and the service should not be denied to residents who wanted the service and would cost nothing to those who did not want it.

"It's been three years getting it, but I think it was worth it," Earl Drake, president of Benton Harbor Cable TV, Inc., told commissioners last night.

Drake said after the meeting that he expects to start work installing the cable television lines this summer and hopes to be completed by next winter. He said earlier that the system will cost about $750,000 and that from 15 to 20 people locally will be employed in installation of the service.

Installation cost per home desiring the service will be $15, according to Drake, and will include free cable televiewing for the first 90 days. After the 90-day period, the initial monthly subscription rate will be $5.

Drake also said last night that the operation in the City of Benton Harbor will be in conjunction with homes in Benton township. In February, the Benton township board of trustees granted Drake's firm a 10-year franchise to operate in the township.

The commission last night voted 6 to 1 to urge the closing of the Benton Harbor-Benton township Model Cities program within 30 days.

Mayor Joseph called for the vote after questioning $7,750 billed to the city's Model Cities program in the list of city bills. City Manager James Peeples, Jr., said after the meeting that the bill was for the salary of Mary DeFoe, program evaluator, and office supplies and utility costs.

The Benton Harbor-Benton township Model Cities program, operated with federal funds, officially ended Dec. 31, 1975, and has been replaced by federal Community Development programs for both communities. Peeples said the program is currently undergoing auditing procedures. The commission also directed that the audit be completed by the end of April.

Saying the matter should be studied further, Commissioner Charles Yarbrough cast the only vote against urging the program's closing within a month. An earlier motion by Yarbrough to table the resolution failed.

The commission approved contracts for two social service agencies and a credit union with funds from a $125,000 federal Community Development "urgent needs" grant.

Granted contracts were Benton Harbor senior citizens center, for $15,000; Community Parents, Inc., Child Care center, $40,000, and the Peoples Community Federal credit union, $42,000. The remaining $28,000 was slated for the Dental Care clinic, but a contract was not approved because plans for closing of the clinic have been announced. The Berrien county health department, which has administered the program with federal funds, announced March 10 that it planned to phase out the clinic. The clinic located at 664 East High street has been headed by Dr. Harzel Taylor for the past 11 years.

It's Official -- 25 BH Teachers Axed

The Benton Harbor board of education last night made it official — 25 probationary teachers will be terminated at the end of the current school year because of financial uncertainties.

It was previously announced that the teachers had been sent "pink slip" notices indicating termination.

All of the 25 teachers are on the secondary level (grades 7 through 12).

The board acted last night at a special meeting.

The board in another fiscal matter adopted a $14,815,890 allocation budget for the 1976-77 school year, to be presented to the Berrien county tax allocation board. The budget excludes food services and government reimbursable program portions of the total budget.

It compares to a $14,228,428 operating budget submitted to the county last year.

The board later in a workshop session indicated it will again ask voters to approve a 1-mill tax for five years to maintain buildings. The proposition would be on the ballot at the general election next June. A final decision to put the issue on the ballot will be made at a regular meeting.

The 1-mill request was rejected at a special election last February.

John Fehsenfeld, group director for personnel and labor relations, commented after the meeting that some of the 25 hopefully will be rehired, if the financial picture brightens. Fehsenfeld said if none was rehired, budget expenditures would be reduced by about $250,000.

Fehsenfeld commented that elementary teachers are not affected, largely because there is a higher turnover rate among them.

Fehsenfeld explained that newly-hired teachers are automatically on probation during their first two years. They may obtain tenure status after the second year, but the board of education has the option of extending probation for a third year, Fehsenfeld said. All teachers are on tenure after their third year unless terminated during probation.

Teachers who were terminated are:

Benton Harbor high school — Charles Bullard, Janet Peters, Mary Sandera, Eddie Watson, Alvin Davis, Magda Luebke, Laura Richburg, Trudy Walker, John Nelson, and Beverly Sherman.

Benton Harbor junior high school — Barbara Goins, Tim Kane and Myra Wiggins.

Fairplain junior high — Donald Chubb, John Brown, and Sue VanBragt.

Hull school — Patricia Snyder, Larry Klaer, and Douglas Wiggins.

Alternative education — Joan Johnson and Mike Radom.

School age mothers program — Jerry Gebhardt and Martha Hilario.

Technical and skill centers — John VanLierop and Robert Gray.

BH Patrolmen Outline Results Of 14 Layoffs

The Benton Harbor Patrolmen's association, through its president Darryl Williamson, today issued a statement describing the consequences of the pending layoffs of 14 patrolmen. The statement said the layoffs will endanger the public because of reduced street patrols.

The statement questions city priorities when federal money is being sought for an ombudsman and a mayor's newsletter.

St. Joseph Atty. John Dewane, counsel for the Patrolmen's association, said today that it would be "premature" to comment on whether patrolmen will take legal action against the city over the layoffs because patrolmen have not yet received offical notice that they will be laidoff.

City Manager James Peeples Jr. announced last week that 14 police patrolmen and 11 firefighters will be dropped because of budget cuts.

Text of the statement signed by Williamson and Jon Nichols, district director of Fraternal Order of Police, bargaining agent for the patrolmen:

Citizens on Benton Harbor:

We the members of the Benton Harbor Patrolmen's Association wish to express our views pertaining to the proposed lay-offs of fourteen police officers from the Benton Harbor Police Department.

We presently have 33 officers below the rank of sergeant. Of these 33 officers 5 are assigned to the Criminal Investigation Unit, 3 are assigned to the metro units, one is assigned as a court officer and there is one assigned to the Crime Prevention Unit. This leaves 23 uniformed officers. If the proposed lay-off occurs this would reduce the uniform division to 10 officers. If the number of officers assigned to special units was cut from 10 to 5 that would still leave only 15 uniformed officers. This would mean elimination from the metro units, elimination of our court officer and more important elimination of our crime prevention officer. We have a Crime Prevention Specialist with seven years experience as a police officer who has been to several crime prevention schools. He is the backbone of our Crime Prevention Unit but will be included in the lay-off.

If the police department operates on a 3 shift basis there would be only 5 officers assigned to a shift. Taking into consideration days-off, vacation, court time etc. there could be times where there would be as few as 2 police officers on the street.

The City Manager, in effect, said that the city will only lose seven police officers and that seven would be reduced to Community Service Officers. There might be some truth to this statement but the fact is that there will be fourteen less police officers that are sworn officers who have been patroling our streets.

During the past two years the crime rate in Benton Harbor has been reduced due, in part, to the dedicated efforts of highly qualified police personnel. What will happen to the crime rate in the city if the department is reduced this drastically?

With the reduction of the patrol division complaints and calls for service will have to be responded to on a priority basis. There is a possibility that some of the services that the department presently offers will be phased out.

With the decrease of the police personnel the safety of both the public and the police officers decreases. Due to the safety element response time to certain emergency calls might be increased.

The amount of monies paid out for overtime and callback work has been greatly reduced in the past two years. Losing 14 police officers will certainly cause this to increase again if we are going to afford the public the same protection that we offer now.

The city has notified the employees who would be affected by this proposed lay-off that they should seek other employment. If these people find employment as police officers some other law enforcement agency would benefit from the training they received in Benton Harbor, training paid for with Benton Harbor tax dollars. Also, if the city found it necessary to hire police officers in the future, and was not able to get these employees to return, new people would have to be hired with more time and money being spent on training.

Where is the present city administration placing its priorities? Should the administration apply for Community Developement grants from the government that will help supplement public safety or should they apply for monies that will help to supplement themselves and the Mayor's office. Does the City of Benton Harbor who has an over abundance of City Administrators, who are supposed to be qualified, need a $30,000 grant to hire an ombudsman (overseer) or do we need a proposed grant to aid public safety.? It seems from our stand point that the City could just as well apply for grants that would assist in the area of public safety which affects the entire community.

After considering all the ramifications involved in the proposed lay-off, we the officers of the Benton Harbor Patrolmen's Association have no recourse but to take a stand against any reduction in personnel.

Eau Claire Teens Are Not Injured

Two Eau Claire teenagers escaped injury Monday when their car apparently went out of control, flipped over then caught fire and was destroyed, Berrien sheriff's deputies reported.

Driver of the car was identified as Russell Allen Grubb, 16, and his passenger as Ronald Thomas Grubb, 13, both of 7431 Maple street, Eau Claire. The driver was cited for careless driving.

Deputies said the accident occurred shortly after 1 p.m. on Jones road south of Steinbauer road, Berrien township. Russell Grubb told deputies he noticed smoke coming from under the dash panel and when he looked down the car went out of control and flipped over. He said the engine area burst into flames as he and two unidentified people tried to right the 1971 Chevrolet. The Eau Claire fire department extinguished the blaze.

Covert Salary Hikes Approved Six Months Ago

COVERT — Covert township Supervisor Jerry Sarno said today that 1976 salaries for township officials unveiled after the township's annual meeting Saturday had been approved six months ago by the township board.

Questions over the increases were raised last night during the regular meeting of the township board. Sarno, during the meeting, said the salaries were recommended by a salary compensation committee.

According to Sarno, the committee was created under a state law and recommended the salaries sometime ago. He said approval of the salaries came at a regular board meeting.

A resident attending the meeting last night questioned the salary issue because it had not been brought up during the township meeting Saturday.

This newspaper incorrectly reported yesterday that the salaries had been announced at the annual meeting.

The salaries, with previous rates in parentheses are: supervisor, $3,900 as supervisor and $5,214 as assessor ($2,714 and $5,214); clerk, $3,800 ($3,192); treasurer, $3,705 $3,088), and trustees per diem, $25 ($20), board of review per diem $30 ($25).

In other areas during last night's meeting, township officials also said the property tax levy to be sought in May for police financing was a three-quarter mill issue, not ½ mills as reported by this newspaper yesterday.

The three-quarter mill proposal was approved for the ballot at a special board meeting March 15. It was slated for the May 18 presidential primary then.

If approved, it would raise about $23,000 annually, and be for five years. It would run concurrently with an existing three-quarter mill levy for police for this year and 1977.

Sarno also reported that no determination had been made on the legality of a vote by the township annual meeting for the township to withdraw from a proposed countywide transportation plan for senior citizens and create its own.

The plan was sought by Charles Proctor and others at the meeting and was approved in an overwhelming voice vote. Proctor is president of the Van Buren Civic organization, which provides space for a meals program for senior citizens.

It was incorrectly reported in the paper yesterday that the organization was the sponsor of the food program.

Cadillac, Six CBs Reported Stolen

A $9,000 Cadillac and six citizens' band radios were among eight thefts reported Monday to Benton Harbor police.

Perry Lee Smith, 169 North Winans street, told police his 1975 light blue and white Cadillac was stolen from where it was parked at his home. He said keys to the vehicle were not in the car.

Reporting CB units stolen were:

—George Edgell, 2919 East Britain avenue, Benton township, and Larry Kronenberger, 1330 Ventnor road, St. Joseph township, both units valued at $200 from their vehicles parked in the Masonic lodge lot, Colfax avenue and Lake street.

—David Hicks, 9180 Marline drive, Baroda, a $117 CB from his car parked on Gray avenue.

—John Taylor, route 1, Bloomingdale, a $178 unit from his car parked in the 100 block of Hinckley avenue.

A complete set of mobile home furniture and four tires and rims from a mobile home, all valued at about $2,000, were reported stolen from Lincolnwood Estates, 604 West John Beers road, Lincoln township.

Berrien sheriff's deputies reported the owner of the home was identified as George Cheshire, but said they have been unable to locate him. Robert Groat, manager of the Lincolnwood mobile home park reported the theft Monday, deputies said.

tices at 225 Pipestone in Benton Harbor.

The Hagar township board last night approved an application by Modern Wood Products, Inc., 2944 Coloma road, for an industrial facilities exemption certificate for the firm's new $114,520 addition and equipment constructed following a fire last May. The firm was previously designated as an industrial development district by the board. If the firm's application is approved by the state, it will be taxed at half the rate for the next 12 years on its new addition and equipment. The new addition created six additional jobs.

In other areas, the township board received a petition signed by 13 people, requesting the grading, graveling, priming and double-seal coating of Thar road, from Fikes to Pier roads. Cost of the project will be determined soon, according to Supervisor Edward Broderick.

Broderick reported he will contact the owner of A-1 Auto Wreckers, corner of Red Arrow highway and Roslin road, to air complaints he has received about the "unsightly conditions" existing in the vicinity.

The board also went on record favoring the proposed western route of the proposed US-31 bypass around Berrien Springs.

In other township planning commission action, approval was granted for tentative plat plans for the proposed Wedgewood subdivisions 1 & 2. Tentative approval was granted providing all lots have a minimum of 100 feet and a maximum square footage area of 13,500 feet, with no more than 16 lots in subdivision-2 and no more than 36 lots in subdivision-1.

The commission approved plans submitted for remodeling the Angelo votet, US 31-33, subject to the approval of the county health department and township building inspector. Plans call for changing every two motel rooms into a 30 by 13 foot efficiency unit, containing a living room, bedroom, kitchenette, bathroom, and closets.

appoint a civil service employe as deputy city clerk, whether Mrs. Talley was properly bonded and whether she could be a member of the city elections commission — but the opinion was not issued last night.

Mrs. Talley denied she was pressured by members of recall group and said her efforts to complete certification of the recall petitions were to conform with a deadline of 30 days from the time the first petitions were filed.

The special election approved by the city commission last night calls for raising the tax levy for garbage and rubbish collection from its present 2 mills to the maximum 3 mills permitted by state law.

The same action could be taken by the commission without an election, but Joseph said the vote will be sought to obtain a mandate from Benton Harbor residents.

The resolution was approved by a 5-2 vote with Joseph, Minott, Williams, Mrs. Huckaby and Helen Ford in favor while Charles Yarbrough and Edmund Eaman were opposed. Arnold Bolin was absent from the meeting and Shepherd was out of the room at the time of the roll call.

Hughes' Death Caps A Legend

sitting on the runway for five hours were they told that their passenger would be Howard Hughes.

Hughes looked "like a tired, worn-out old person" when he was carried aboard the plane on a stretcher, Abrams said.

Sutton said Hughes had a thin beard, long greyish hair and looked "very wasted" and "very, very pale."

"He moved his lips a little bit when they put him on the plane, but I couldn't hear anything," Sutton said.

At the Houston airport, authorities had been alerted that a private plane was coming in with a sick man aboard.

"The only thing I was told was to meet a private plane coming in about 1:30 p.m.," U.S. Customs agent Nancy Carney said. "I had been told we had a patient coming in a diabetic coma."

But when the plane arrived about 2 p.m., Hughes was dead.

Mrs. Carney said she got a brief, side view of Hughes as he was being taken off the plane.

"The person I saw was very emaciated and very aged," Mrs. Carney said. "He was quite sick looking and he looked much older than 70."

She said she did not know who the man was until she saw a birth certificate bearing the name Howard Robard Hughes Jr.

The doctors accompanying Hughes said he died about half an hour before the plane landed in Houston.

"Today at 1:27 p.m. en route from Acapulco, Mexico, to Houston by air, Mr. Howard R. Hughes expired."

In Beverly Hills, Calif., Jean Peters, the actress who married Hughes in 1957, said: "I'm sorry; I'm saddened." Miss Peters, Hughes' second wife, divorced Hughes in 1970 after a childless marriage. His first marriage, to Houston socialite Ella Rice, ended in divorce when he was 23.

He dropped out of sight about 1947. Ten years later, after his secret marriage to Miss Peters, his seclusion was virtually complete.

After moving around between a series of homes and hotel suites, he and Miss Peters moved into a mansion in Bel Air, Calif., in 1961.

In 1966, Hughes moved into the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in Boston and took over an entire floor. Four years later, on Thanksgiving Eve, he slipped into the Desert Inn in Las Vegas and barricaded himself in the penthouse.

After that, he moved to The Bahamas, then to Nicaragua where an earthquake forced him to flee his hotel, then on to London, back to The Bahamas and finally to Acapulco in February 1976.

In 1909, Hughes' father and a partner invented an oil drill bit which today is used in drilling operations in every oil-producing company outside the Communist bloc.

Hughes did not earn his initial fame as a businessman but as a pilot.

He set aviation speed records in 1935 and again in 1938 when he circled the globe in 3 days, 19 hours.

He started designing his own planes, giving birth to the Hughes Aircraft Co., which in time manufactured helicopters, missiles, spacecraft and plane and rocket electronics.

Hughes designed or helped design major components of the XF-11 experimental photographic plane, the P38 Lightning fighter, the Constellation airliner and the H-1 monoplane.

But it was his huge plywood airplane, nicknamed the "Spruce Goose," which was most often remembered.

The government had invested $18 million in the airplane, which was eight stories tall and designed to carry 750 soldiers across an ocean.

Called before a Senate subcommittee in 1947, Hughes swore it would fly. It did, but just once and only for one mile. Some critics said its engines were too heavy, but the true reason was never known. The "Spruce Goose" is still locked up in a hangar beside the harbor in Long Beach, Calif.

Starting in the 1930s, he had dated such stars as Jean Harlow, Ginger Rogers, Lana Turner, Ava Gardner, Yvonne de Carlo and Ida Lupino.

He started financing and making movies, boosting Jane Russell to stardom in "The Outlaw."

In 1947, he took over Trans World Airways. In 1970, he acquired Air West, a regional airline, and renamed it Hughes Airwest.

In 1963, hit by a lawsuit challenging his 77 per cent ownership of TWA, Hughes refused to appear in public for questioning. TWA hired ex-FBI agents to serve the papers, but even they were unable to find him. After 10 years of claims and counterclaims, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled against TWA. Hughes, in the meantime, had sold his interest in the airline for more than $500 million.

In 1972, he sold the oil tool division of Hughes Tool Co. through a common stock offering that brought him more than $140 million.

The Summa Corp. was then set up as Hughes' umbrella for Hughes Airwest, his Nevada hotels and casinos and his vast real estate holdings.

Meanwhile, Hughes had made the headlines again.

Writer Clifford Irving had sold the New York publishing company McGraw-Hill an "autobiography" of Howard R. Hughes for $750,000. Irving said Hughes had authorized the book and had collaborated on it.

McGraw-Hill, convinced the book was real, paid Irving the money, part of which was to be passed on to Hughes. Instead, it ended up in a Swiss bank, deposited by a "Helga R. Hughes" who turned out to be Irving's wife, Edith.

McGraw-Hill sued the Irvings and won a court judgement for $765,000, including expenses.

The Irvings were indicted in New York by state and federal grand juries on charges that included mail fraud, conspiracy, grand larceny and possession of forged documents. They pleaded guilty and were fined $10,000 apiece. Clifford Irving was sentenced to 2½ years in prison, while Edith Irving drew a 2-month sentence.

Hay Burns

NILES — Fire of undetermined origin destroyed hay valued at $1,750 at the Bob-O-Lou farms (formerly Morris farms) northwest of here yesterday afternoon, according to Niles township firemen.

Firemen said the hay was stored in a row of large stacks in a field off of Morris drive.

The hay was the equivalent of 1,350 normal bales of hay.

Harvey Fisher, manager of the farm, told firemen he was hauling hay from the field when he turned and noticed a row was engulfed in flames about 2:30 p.m. yesterday.

Over 9,000 gallons of water was pumped on the hay stacks by firemen who remained on the scene for over three hours. Bob-O-Lou farms is owned by Mrs. Judd Layton, Morris drive, Niles.

Berrien Springs Will Take More Time On Ambulance Pact

BERRIEN SPRINGS — The Berrien Springs village council last night said it wants a little more time to study the advantages of a signing a contract for ambulance service with Community Emergency Service.

The latest delay came after Council Truste Dale Moon outlined advantages and disadvantages of joining CES as opposed to contracting for services independently.

The council in mid-March gave unanimous approval to signing a CES contract pending clarification of contract terms.

CESis a coalition of five north Berrien county municipalities that have pledged subsidies to guarantee ambulance service by Action Ambulance.

Moon last night told the council that in joining CES the village would have to pay a first-year subsidy of $2.241 or 93.56 cents per village resident on a one-year renewable contract. There would be no long-term ambulance service guarantee.

In a private contract with Action, Moon told the council, the village would be guaranteed and bound to an automatic three years of ambulance service, but probably at a higher subsidy that could be raised on each anniversary date.

Moon and his ambulance committee are to further investigate a CES contract. St. Joseph city and township and Lincoln, Royalton and Sodus townships presently make up CES.

Oronoko township has budgeted $6,400 for the coming year to provide ambulance service either through CES or an independent contract, but has not yet taken action.

In other business, the council took under study the four bids submitted for demolition of the old junior high building on Cass street.

Low bidder was John G. Yerington Concrete company of Benton Harbor. Yerington bid $23,490 to tear down the building, with salvage rights, and $23,600 without salvage rights.

The council also gave final approval to applying for $265,000 in federal community development funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

The village had previously applied for a $300,000 grant but was told by federal authorities that the maximum they could expect was $265,000.

Council trustees also pledged to review the village budget in an effort to find funds to keep on four Berrien Springs village-Oronoko township police officers due to be laid off at the end of June.

The Junior Teens received council permission to use the Grave on Sunday, April 18, between 1:30 and 2:30 p.m., for an Easter egg hunt.

The hunt would be April 25 if postponed because of bad weather.

Covert Salary Hikes Approved Six Months Ago

COVERT — Covert township Supervisor Jerry Sarno said today that 1976 salaries for township officials unveiled after the township's annual meeting Saturday had been approved six months ago by the township board.

Questions over the increases were raised last night during the regular meeting of the township board. Sarno, during the meeting, said the salaries were recommended by a salary compensation committee.

According to Sarno, the committee was created under a state law and recommended the salaries sometime ago. He said approval of the salaries came at a regular board meeting.

A resident attending the meeting last night questioned the salary issue because it had not been brought up during the township meeting Saturday.

This newspaper incorrectly reported yesterday that the salaries had been announced at the annual meeting.

The salaries, with previous rates in parentheses are: supervisor, $3,900 as supervisor and $5,214 as assessor ($2,714 and $5,214); clerk, $3,800 ($3,192); treasurer, $3,705 $3,088), and trustees per diem, $25 ($20), board of review per diem $30 ($25).

In other areas during last night's meeting, township officials also said the property tax levy to be sought in May for police financing was a three-quarter mill issue, not ½ mills as reported by this newspaper yesterday.

The three-quarter mill proposal was approved for the ballot at a special board meeting March 15. It was slated for the May 18 presidential primary then.

If approved, it would raise about $23,000 annually, and be for five years. It would run concurrently with an existing three-quarter mill levy for police for this year and 1977.

Sarno also reported that no determination had been made on the legality of a vote by the township annual meeting for the township to withdraw from a proposed countywide transportation plan for senior citizens and create its own.

The plan was sought by Charles Proctor and others at the meeting and was approved in an overwhelming voice vote. Proctor is president of the Van Buren Civic organization, which provides space for a meals program for senior citizens.

It was incorrectly reported in the paper yesterday that the organization was the sponsor of the food program.

Cadillac, Six CBs Reported Stolen

A $9,000 Cadillac and six citizens' band radios were among eight thefts reported Monday to Benton Harbor police.

Perry Lee Smith, 169 North Winans street, told police his 1975 light blue and white Cadillac was stolen from where it was parked at his home. He said keys to the vehicle were not in the car.

Reporting CB units stolen were:

—David Hicks, 9180 Marline drive, Baroda, a $117 CB from his car parked on Gray avenue.

—John Taylor, route 1, Bloomingdale, a $178 unit from his car parked in the 100 block of Hinckley avenue.

A complete set of mobile home furniture and four tires and rims from a mobile home, all valued at about $2,000, were reported stolen from Lincolnwood Estates, 604 West John Beers road, Lincoln township.

Berrien sheriff's deputies reported the owner of the home was identified as George Cheshire, but said they have been unable to locate him. Robert Groat, manager of the Lincolnwood mobile home park reported the theft Monday, deputies said.

fices at 225 Pipestone in Benton Harbor.

The Hagar township board last night approved an application by Modern Wood Products, Inc., 2944 Coloma road, for an industrial facilities exemption certificate for the firm's new $114,520 addition and equipment constructed following a fire last May. The firm was previously desginated as an industrial development district by the board. If the firm's application is approved by the state, it will be taxed at half the rate for the next 12 years on its new addition and equipment. The new addition created six additional jobs.

In other areas, the township board received a petition signed by 13 people, requesting the grading, graveling, priming and double-seal coating of Thar road, from Fikes to Pier roads. Cost of the project will be determined soon, according to Supervisor Edward Broderick.

Broderick reported he will contact the owner of A-1 Auto Wreckers, corner of Red Arrow highway and Roslin road, to air complaints he has received about the "unsightly conditions" existing in the vicinity.

The board also went on record favoring the proposed western route of the proposed US-31 bypass around Berrien Springs.

In other township planning commission action, approval was granted for tentative plat plans for the proposed Wedgewood subdivisions 1 & 2. Tentative approval was granted providing all lots have a minimum of 100 feet and a maximum square footage area of 13,500 feet, with no more than 16 lots in subdivision-2 and no more than 36 lots in subdivision-1.

The commission approved plans submitted for remodeling the Angelo votel, US 31-33, subject to the approval of the county health department and township building inspector. Plans call for changing every two motel rooms into a 30 by 13 foot efficiency unit, containing a living room, bedroom, kitchenette, bathroom, and closets.

appoint a civil service employe as deputy city clerk, whether Mrs. Talley was properly bonded and whether she could be a member of the city elections commission — but the opinion was not issued last night.

Mrs. Talley denied she was pressured by members of recall group and said her efforts to complete certification of the recall petitions were to conform with a deadline of 30 days from the time the first petitions were filed.

The special election approved by the city commission last night calls for raising the tax levy for garbage and rubbish collection from its present 2 mills to the maximum 3 mills permitted by state law.

The same action could be taken by the commission without an election, but Joseph said the vote will be sought to obtain a mandate from Benton Harbor residents.

The resolution was approved by a 5-2 vote with Joseph, Minott, Williams, Mrs. Huckaby and Helen Ford in favor while Charles Yarbrough and Edmund Eaman were opposed. Arnold Bolin was absent from the meeting and Shepherd was out of the room at the time of the roll call.

Berrien Springs Will Take More Time On Ambulance Pact

BERRIEN SPRINGS — The Berrien Springs village council last night said it wants a little more time to study the advantages of a signing a contract for ambulance service with Community Emergency Service.

The latest delay came after Council Truste Dale Moon outlined advantages and disadvantages of joining CES as opposed to contracting for services independently.

The council in mid-March gave unanimous approval to signing a CES contract pending clarification of contract terms.

CESis a coalition of five north Berrien county municipalities that have pledged subsidies to guarantee ambulance service by Action Ambulance.

Moon last night told the council that in joining CES the village would have to pay a first-year subsidy of $2.241 or 93.56 cents per village resident on a one-year renewable contract. There would be no long-term ambulance service guarantee.

In a private contract with Action, Moon told the council, the village would be guaranteed and bound to an automatic three years of ambulance service, but probably at a higher subsidy that could be raised on each anniversary date.

Moon and his ambulance committee are to further investigate a CES contract. St. Joseph city and township and Lincoln, Royalton and Sodus townships presently make up CES.

Oronoko township has budgeted $6,400 for the coming year to provide ambulance service either through CES or an independent contract, but has not yet taken action.

In other business, the council took under study the four bids submitted for demolition of the old junior high building on Cass street.

Low bidder was John G. Yerington Concrete company of Benton Harbor. Yerington bid $23,490 to tear down the building, with salvage rights, and $23,600 without salvage rights.

The council also gave final approval to applying for $265,000 in federal community development funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

The village had previously applied for a $300,000 grant but was told by federal authorities that the maximum they could expect was $265,000.

Council trustees also pledged to review the village budget in an effort to find funds to keep on four Berrien Springs village-Oronoko township police officers due to be laid off at the end of June.

The Junior Teens received council permission to use the Grove on Sunday, April 18, between 1:30 and 2:30 p.m., for an Easter egg hunt.

The hunt would be April 25 if postponed because of bad weather.

Hughes' Death Caps A Legend

sitting on the runway for five hours were they told that their passenger would be Howard Hughes.

Hughes looked "like a tired, worn-out old person" when he was carried aboard the plane on a stretcher, Abrams said.

Sutton said Hughes had a thin beard, long greyish hair and looked "very wasted" and "very, very pale."

"He moved his lips a little bit when they put him on the plane, but I couldn't hear anything," Sutton said.

At the Houston airport, authorities had been alerted that a private plane was coming in with a sick man aboard.

"The only thing I was told was to meet a private plane coming in about 1:30 p.m.," U.S. Customs agent Nancy Carney said. "I had been told we had a patient coming in a diabetic coma."

But when the plane arrived about 2 p.m., Hughes was dead.

Mrs. Carney said she got a brief, side view of Hughes as he was being taken off the plane.

"The person I saw was very emaciated and very aged," Mrs. Carney said. "He was quite sick looking and he looked much older than 70."

She said she did not know who the man was until she saw a birth certificate bearing the name Howard Robard Hughes Jr.

The doctors accompanying Hughes said he died about half an hour before the plane landed in Houston.

"Today at 1:27 p.m. en route from Acapulco, Mexico, to Houston by air, Mr. Howard R. Hughes expired."

In Beverly Hills, Calif., Jean Peters, the actress who married Hughes in 1957, said: "I'm sorry; I'm saddened." Miss Peters, Hughes' second wife, divorced Hughes in 1970 after a childless marriage. His first marriage, to Houston socialite Ella Rice, ended in divorce when he was 23.

He dropped out of sight about 1947. Ten years later, after his secret marriage to Miss Peters, his seclusion was virtually complete.

After moving around between a series of homes and hotel suites, he and Miss Peters moved into a mansion in Bel Air, Calif., in 1961.

In 1966, Hughes moved into the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in Boston and took over an entire floor. Four years later, on Thanksgiving Eve, he slipped into the Desert Inn in Las Vegas and barricaded himself in the penthouse.

After that, he moved to The Bahamas, then to Nicaragua where an earthquake forced him to flee his hotel, then on to London, back to The Bahamas and finally to Acapulco in February 1976.

In 1909, Hughes' father and a partner invented an oil drill bit which today is used in drilling operations in every oil-producing company outside the Communist bloc.

Hughes did not earn his initial fame as a businessman but as a pilot.

He set aviation speed records in 1935 and again in 1938 when he circled the globe in 3 days, 19 hours.

He started designing his own planes, giving birth to the Hughes Aircraft Co., which in time manufactured helicopters, missiles, spacecraft and plane and rocket electronics.

Hughes designed or helped design major components of the XF-11 experimental photographic plane, the P38 Lightning fighter, the Constellation airliner and the H-1 monoplane.

But it was his huge plywood airplane, nicknamed the "Spruce Goose," which was most often remembered.

The government had invested $18 million in the airplane, which was eight stories tall and designed to carry 750 soldiers across an ocean.

Called before a Senate subcommittee in 1947, Hughes swore it would fly. It did, but just once and only for one mile. Some critics said its engines were too heavy, but the true reason was never known. The "Spruce Goose" is still locked up in a hangar beside the harbor in Long Beach, Calif.

Starting in the 1930s, he had dated such stars as Jean Harlow, Ginger Rogers, Lana Turner, Ava Gardner, Yvonne de Carlo and Ida Lupino.

He started financing and making movies, boosting Jane Russell to stardom in "The Outlaw."

In 1947, he took over Trans World Airways. In 1970, he acquired Air West, a regional airline, and renamed it Hughes Airwest.

In 1963, hit by a lawsuit challenging his 77 per cent ownership of TWA, Hughes refused to appear in public for questioning. TWA hired ex-FBI agents to serve the papers, but even they were unable to find him. After 10 years of claims and counterclaims, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled against TWA. Hughes, in the meantime, had sold his interest in the airline for more than $500 million.

In 1972, he sold the oil tool division of Hughes Tool Co. through a common stock offering that brought him more than $140 million.

The Summa Corp. was then set up as Hughes' umbrella for Hughes Airwest, his Nevada hotels and casinos and his vast real estate holdings.

Meanwhile, Hughes had made the headlines again.

Writer Clifford Irving had sold the New York publishing company McGraw-Hill an "autobiography" of Howard R. Hughes for $750,000. Irving said Hughes had authorized the book and had collaborated on it.

McGraw-Hill, convinced the book was real, paid Irving the money, part of which was to be passed on to Hughes. Instead, it ended up in a Swiss bank, deposited by a "Helga R. Hughes" who turned out to be Irving's wife, Edith.

McGraw-Hill sued the Irvings and won a court judgement for $766,000, including expenses.

The Irvings were indicted in New York by state and federal grand juries on charges that included mail fraud, conspiracy, grand larceny and possession of forged documents. They pleaded guilty and were fined $10,000 apiece. Clifford Irving was sentenced to 2½ years in prison, while Edith Irving drew a 2-month sentence.

Bicentennial Banner Year For Home Improvements

Remodeling Pays Big Dividends

A number of pressing realities make 1976 a banner year for home improvements. Families are traveling less, due to the skyrocketing costs of gasoline, motels, hotels and restaurants, and staying home more.

And that's where improving the home comes in.

Home-style vacations seem more desirable if houses can be remodeled to include such leisure-like amenities as patios, pools, outside cooking and seating areas.

As a result, wise homeowners are investing more than ever before in improving their properties with, as expected, attention to increasing their energy-saving potential. With heating costs soaring, better insulation, installation of storm doors and windows and even roofing are high on the homeowner's priority list.

It is to be remembered that home improvements properly planned and executed not only can produce substantial savings in heating and cooling costs, but also add value to the existing property. Thus there is a way to homeowners to cope with inflationary trends.

Advice and counsel is available at the local level from experts in planning and financing improvements.

According to Edgar V. Hall, executive vice president of the National Home Improvement Council, the investment in home improvements made last year by homeowners amounted to $33 billion. The Home Improvement Council has several thousand local councils operating in as many cities to assist people in their planning.

Since loans for home improvement are easier to get than mortgages, people are staying put, making what they have stretch to suit their needs and many are doing all or at least some of the work themselves.

While money was tight and costly in 1975, there is every indication that it will be only costly in 1976.

Savings and Loan Associations have noted a dramatic change in availability of savings for home improvement loan purposes and are anxious to find homeowners to persuade them to make improvements on their homes.

Most people will either take out a separate home improvement loan or add the cost of the improvements to their mortgage.

It is important to note that not all home improvements result in higher taxes. In many cases, sizeable improvements can be made without changing taxes at all.

Most tax increases result from improvements which add new living space, major additions, structural changes and repairs, or a new garage or patio.

In many areas the homeowner can put on a new roof, make any repairs to existing masonry, replace lighting and plumbing fixtures if they are not part of a complete modernization, paint the entire inside and outside, install lawn sprinkler systems, put in lawns and no-limit landscaping, make complete plaster repairs and redecorate, add closets, put in new ceilings, weather stripping, install a new driveway, add or replace gutters and downspouts, replace a worn-out furnace with a new heating system and restore or replace porches and steps — all without fear of a tax rise!

The National Home Improvement Council reminds the homeowner that even with a higher assessment and tax rise, home improvements result in increased value for their property and more comfortable living.

REMODELING HAS GIVEN THIS ONE-STORY HOME 1976 LOOKS AND CONVENIENCE with added-on two-car garage, new easy-care vinyl siding, shutters and light fixture. Gray horizontal siding used on the house, and vertical siding on the garage, with white corner posts and trim, add visual interest.

Solving Sticky Problem

One of the "stickiest" problems do-it-yourselfers have faced is that of interior sliding and bi-fold doors. For years they've been limited to wood, which often wraps, splits, rots, swells, cracks or peels; or metal, which rattles, dents, bends, shimmies and shakes.

Until now, the only antidote has been to purchase expensive hardwood doors; yet for most consumers the price is far out of line with their budget. As a result, otherwise fine remodeling projects have been finished with less than desirable doors.

A happy alternative has been provided with the introduction of pre-finished Grandor "natural as wood" bi-fold and sliding decorator doors.

Unique Grandor is taking the country by storm because it totally eliminates the problems of wood and metal. It combines high density moulded polyurethane with a rigid built-in seal reinforcement system to exactly duplicate the high quality look and feel of the most expensive hardwood.

In fact, Grandor's woodgrain is so authentic that even the experts constantly mistake it for real oak.

Grandor is a perfect one-hour do-it-yourself project for any member of the family who can use basic tools. Each door set includes all hardware and pictorial step-by-step installation instructions.

Hand-finished by factory craftsmen in a choice of deep, rich walnut or neutral white, Grandor requires no preparation, sanding, staining or painting.

High quality and moderate price make it an ideal way to create a harmonious decorating theme for every room in the home. It is widely used for closet and storage areas in bedrooms, baths, foyers, kitchens, dining areas, living rooms, family rooms and wherever else the homeowner desires.

Two popular and basic styles, all panel and half louver/half panel, are offered in a variety of sizes which fit vitually all bifold and sliding door widths.

A four color brochure which illustrates the doors and suggests room applications is available by writing Grandor Corp., Do-It-Yourself Dept., 35 Market St., Elmwood Park, N.Y. 07407.

Historic Heritage Look In Vogue Today

The look of heritage is in vogue today.

Regardless of whether it's being caused by Bicentennial fever, nostalgia or just plain appreciation for antiques, the phenomenon is upon us. It is expressed in decorating trends and styles spanning various eras of U.S. history.

And pitching up the heritage craze are major producers of paneling for the home — like Georgia-Pacific Corp. — who have introduced panels nationwide to combine the well-worn, well-loved look of fine antique woods from history.

In addition, past deeds and long forgotten adventures that surrounded Valley Forge, The Oregon Trail, Portsmouth and Rio Grande are retraced with paneling lines bearing like names.

These "new" style panelings with the "old" look are part of a series called "The Great American Look in Paneling." Others included are Renaissance and Woodcut.

The six prefinished plywood panelings resemble: a planked-and-pegged deck of a clipper ship arriving at old Cape Cod, Early American simplicity of settlers in the Thirteen Colonies, handhewn remnants of a backwoods homestead along The Oregon Trail, weathered boards left by pioneers of the Western and Southwestern frontiers, and the polished elegance of fine furnishings from a Southern plantation.

The panels offer today's homeowner a great opportunity to carry out remodeling or building plans in shades of old times.

A single wall of paneling, for example, can change a very plain and ordinary room into a heritage showcase, with the right kind of antique knick-knacks and old prints hung in strategic places.

The job is an easy and inexpensive one requiring perhaps only a few sheets of old-style paneling. Depending on the present walls, the paneling can be glued and-or nailed directly to the wall or put up with furring strips over crumbling plaster or uneven old walls.

Windows and doors are easily trimmed with molding, according to "how to" instructions made available through retail building material dealers by manufacturers like Georgia-Pacific.

A few items like old stirrups, pots and pans, antique mirrors, stained glass windows or lamps add emphasis, and favorite old furniture can be put nearby.

Such alterations, easy and economical, can be worked all over the house, from recreation room to kitchen, bedroom to living room, attic or basement, setting the stage for any bygone-era decorating plan.

Whether building a new home or remodeling an older one, paneling provides a sound, new wall surface that gives any room that brand-new look even if the styling is old.

If you'd like to jump on the heritage bandwagon with the help of paneling, but are a little short on ideas, there is a series of six paneling idea brochures that can be of assistance. They are aptly called "The Great American Look in Paneling."

The brochures contain full color photographs of room reproductions for creative use of paneling lines made by the company. Write E. M. Thomas Georgia-Pacific Crorp., 900 S.W. Fifth Ave., Portland, Ore 97204.

OREGON TRAIL, one of six prefinished panelings in a series from G-P, blazes a heritage trail for any by-gone decorating plan with its rustic, handcrafted look of a back-woods homestead. Other panel styles with heritage look are illustrated in six decorating idea brochures called "The Great American Look in Paneling."

Caulking Gun Fine Tool To Get House Together

Ever get that sense that things are falling apart? You start to notice cracks in the driveway, gaps in the baseboard, and mysterious places where the wind whistles through the walls. Well, don't despair. Your house probably isn't a candidate for the wrecker's ball, or even a major home improvement loan. Chances are, a Saturday afternoon with a caulking gun is all you need to get it all together again.

These days, jobs like caulking and crack-sealing are easier than they used to be, thanks to new products that come ready to use. For example, the Borden company — which makes the famous Elmer's Glue-All — now makes a whole line of home improvement products under that name. There are caulks, sealers for concrete, blacktop and metal, even a special concrete bonder. Like Elmer's glue, they're water-based, so they're safe to use, easy to clean up.

Caulking, say the home repair experts, is as basic to house care as mending is to clothes care. It's what keeps a house air-tight and weather-tight; and with today's high fuel costs, keeping in all your heat — or air conditioning — can mean real savings.

What to caulk? Think of caulking as a way of reinforcing seams — and that means wherever two materials or parts of the house come together. For instance:

— Where door and window frames meet siding

— Where chimney meets roofing

— Where siding meets foundation

— At roof flashing

— Where porch meets house wall

— Where two walls meet

If you've never bought caulk before, choosing can be confusing. Caulk — basically a putty-like compound — is made of a variety of materials which perform in different ways. If you want a temporary repair, choose an inexpensive oil-based caulk — but don't expect it to last more than a couple of months. If you're concentrating on joints between metal and masonry, you might choose a butyl rubber caulk — though it can be a bit messy to use.

Among the more versatile caulking materials are vinyl and silicone. Silicone is longer lasting, but poses problems with paint — both in going onto painted surfaces and in accepting paint.

The newest type of caulking is Elmer's white acrylic latex caulk. It's long-lasting and versatile. It takes to all surfaces, indoor and out —, even when they're damp. That means you don't need to wait weeks to do an outdoor job — and you could even caulk around a damp bathtub! This new kind of caulk is so fast-drying, you usually can paint in half an hour. You can use oilbase or latex paints, and it will stay painted, whereas some caulks will bleed through and degrade the paint.

This new acrylic latex caulk lasts for years. One reason is its flexibility: a good caulk will respond to the natural expansion and contraction of the materials around it, while poor caulks become dry and rigid, and start to crumble. And when your caulking starts to come apart, it's as if your house is literally — coming apart at the seams!

ENERGY SAVER: Caulking helps keep a house weather-tight, keeps heated or cooled indoor air from leaking out, so saves energy. Another energy saver: new paintable caulk by Elmer's; made of acrylic latex, it stays effective for years.

Apartments Can Be Challenge

Apartment decorating and improving can be a challenge, one that pays big dividends in comfortable, gracious living.

Certain styles of furniture may look incongruous in a starkly-modern building. Try and keep your decor in harmony with the rest of your environment.

You can use oilbase or latex paints, and it will stay painted, whereas some caulks will bleed through and degrade the paint.

This new acrylic latex caulk lasts for years. One reason is its flexibility: a good caulk will respond to the natural expansion and contraction of the materials around, it, while poor caulks become dry and rigid, and start to crumble. And when your caulking starts to come apart, it's as if your house is literally — coming apart at the seams!

ENERGY SAVER: Caulking helps keep a house weather-tight, keeps heated or cooled indoor air from leaking out, so saves energy. Another energy saver: new paintable caulk by Elmer's: made of acrylic latex, it stays effective for years.

Apartments Can Be Challenge

Apartment decorating and improving can be a challenge, one that pays big dividends in comfortable, gracious living.

Certain styles of furniture may look incongruous in a starkly-modern building. Try and keep your decor in harmony with the rest of your environment.

Let Imagination Run Wild In Bedroom Style, Decor

FULLY BLOOMED BASKETS of flowers, a design from the new Colonial & Traditional Collection by United-DeSoto brings romantic enchantment in this bedroom. Special richness is imparted by the coordinated fabric for draperies.

ENDANGERED SPECIES FIND A HAVEN as "Call of the Wild" and companion animal pelt stripe "Wild Stripe" decorate the friendliest lair in town. These unusual patterns are expecially dramatic for masculine decor in the home. From the new United-DeSoto 2 collection of vinyl laminated to fabric wallfashions which are so practical since they are scrubbable, stain-resistant, and strippable.

The sexual revolution has changed thinking about how to furnish bedrooms. Round beds, platform beds, canopied beds, sleeping bags, even mink bedspreads for Vice President Rockefeller, are among the types of sleeping equipment chosen by today's generation.

Additional decor

Mirrors, way-out graphics, stereo headphones, color TVs, Castro convertibles, chaise lounges, imported fireplaces, special lighting effects, quadro-sound and writing desks are increasingly being placed in bedrooms as part of the furnishings package.

The bedroom often tells more about a person than any other room of the house.

For her

Sexual identities are easier to reinforce in the privacy of the bedroom. A woman, for example, could be a tiger at the office, bossing a crew of men with hard-nosed authority. But when she returns to her apartment or house, her bedroom there may reflect the frilly sass of a very feminine person. The tiger becomes a pussycat!

For him

Men, too, in their bedroom have an opportunity to decorate with aggressive flair, conservative warmth, or audacious ado, if it truly expresses their inner feelings.

Many men surprisingly enough enjoy a colorful, warm bedroom as opposed to the more customary, austere, "masculine" tastes. This in no way challenges their virility, either.

Color contrast

They may approve of gay florals in sun-splashed colors in contrast to the traditional deep browns or black and white geometrics or stylized designs.

Certainly, this trend has been evident in the so-called "peacock revolution" in men's fashions. As men have come forward in bright colored shirts and pants and other dashing attire, it is reasonable to expect that similar dash would be most comfortable for them in their homes and apartments. Wives and girl friends increasingly are catering to these expectations.

Versatile designs

United-DeSoto, leading wall-covering manufacturer, offers a big assist to the home decorator who wants the latest in fashionable backgrounds for his or her walls. The manufacturer has literally hundreds of versatile designs for bedrooms, including a special collection of wallcoverings entitled, "Romantic Bedrooms."

These fine wallcoverings which are scrubbable and strippable (many of them also are prepasted) have coordinated fabrics which can be used in a variety of ways to dramatize and accent the room.

Coordinated look

Canopies, window curtains, quilts, coverlets, pillow shams, flounces, dust ruffles and window shades are among the coordinate possibilities.

Projects Need Not Be Expensive

Tight money is a problem many Americans are facing these days, but living within a budget doesn't necessarily mean you must do without. If you've put off redecorating your house because you think you can't afford it, read on.

There are lots of ways to refurbish economically. Here are just a few:

• Organize a community trading cooperative. Set the place, date and time and ask your neighbors to bring furniture and household accessories they no longer use, need or want. Then trade with each other to get new items for your homes.

This method helps everyone dispose of unwanted items and reduce clutter around their homes — and, you may each find exactly what you need to spruce up your homes for free!

• Renew, rather than redo, household basics. So, if draperies and slipcovers are looking drab, treat them to a thorough cleaning to restore, their brightness. A good rule of thumb may be to restore before spending more.

For instance, before investing in a costly paint job because walls have gotten streaked and dirty, give them a dose of "elbow grease." Wash walls with a solution of Janitor In A Drum industrial-strength cleaner and water to get them looking almost like new again, and use the money saved on paint to buy things you can't do or make yourself.

• Take advantage of accessories to brighten up rooms. Throw pillows are always good for accenting a couch — try several in a variety of hues if you wish to introduce new color to your living room.

Some small curios and knick-knacks can add interest and provide new focal points to tables and shelves.

• Practice "musical chairs" art — every few months rearrange paintings and other wall hangings or move them from room to room. You'll be pleasantly surprised with the results.

• Grow lots of plants. They look great in every room; many are inexpensive, easy to care for — and never go out of style.

NO LONGER will you have an excuse for putting off these thousand and one little odd jobs that always need doing when this Stanley automatic return push drill goes into action. It's all the drill that is needed to bore small holes in wood and plasterboard for a door hinge, towel rack or pencil sharpener. The ratchet action and the quick release chuck makes this 10½-inch drill with the no-roll feature a delight of the handygal as well as the handyman.

UP-TO-DATE WINDOWS such as this Perma-Shield casement angle bay in new Terratone color is an example of window technology that is designed to make windows energy-efficient as well as easy to care for. The unit features long-lasting, low-maintenance rigid vinyl sheath over preservative-treated wood core frame and sash. Double-pane insulating glass is standard.

New Materials Provide Beauty, Insulation

Modern Windows Can Fill Every Need

Today's quality-built windows are as different from the older models as the 747 aircraft is from the ancient Ford Trimotor. Years ago, windows were often put together by carpenters at the homesite. Now they are precision made at the factory and delivered to the site, ready to install.

In many cases, the materials that make modern windows easier to care for than their predecessors also make them more energy efficient.

What are the latest materials that go into the production of a top-notch window? The Andersen Corporation, a leading manufacturer of Perma-Shield windows and gliding doors, based in Bayport, Minn., lists the major elements:

1. Wood sash and frame. Because wood is a poor conductor, it is a good insulator. The same is true of rigid vinyl, which in Perma-Shield windows covers the preservative-treated wood-core sash and frame for protection against weathering. The long-lasting vinyl is designed for carefree maintenance.

2. Factory-applied weatherstripping. Drafts from poorly weatherstripped windows waste a considerable amount of heat and fuel. Andersen says the snug-fitting, factory-applied weatherstripping in its units reduces air infiltration to well below recognized industry standards.

3. Double-pane insulating glass, which is two panes of glass with a space of "insulating" air or dry gas in-between. Like tight-fitting storm sash, insulating glass limits heat loss through the glass areas, thus reducing fuel consumption and energy costs. Insulating glass, however, doesn't require the storage space or seasonal changing that storm sash does because there are only two surfaces to clean instead of the four with storm sash. So window washing time is cut in half.

4. Removable vinyl grilles. They snap into place on the inside surface of the glass, creating an attractive multi-paned appearance without the bother. Once a grille is removed, there is one large pane of glass to wash instead of many small ones.

5. Variety of styles. The top-quality windows described are available at local building supply retailers in styles and sizes appropriate for every architectural design, ranging from early American to contemporary.

Here's 12 Tips To Help Reduce Your Fuel Bills

Homeowners everywhere are finding it will cost even more to heat their homes this winter, so the search is on more seriously than ever before for ways to reduce fuel consumption and lower fuel bills.

The 12 most practical ways to cut your fuel bills are listed here.

1. Insulate your home well. It's the most effective thing you can do. With adequate insulation, your home will require only about 50 per cent as much fuel as with no insulation.

To insulate an existing home, first pay attention to the top floor ceiling, where heat loss is greatest. You can generally insulate this ceiling yourself by laying thick but lightweight fiber glass blankets between joists in the attic floor.

If you already have some insulation, you can use an "add-on" insulation which is made specifically to bring inadequate attic insulation up to today's standards. Consult an insulation contractor about insulating closed-in ceilings and walls.

Choose amounts of insulation by Resistance numbers, which tells how well insulation retards heat flow. In new homes, use at least R-19 (6½ inches thickness) in walls. Insulation in floors is needed for homes built over open crawl spaces.

2. Use storm windows or insulating glass. Double glass resists heat loss almost twice as well as single glass.

3. Use storm doors, and keep them tightly latched.

4. Weatherstrip windows and doors to keep warm air in, cold air out.

5. Caulk cracks around the outside of window and door frames.

6. Call in a heating service man to clean and adjust the heating burner. He should also check balancing of the heat distribution system to make sure no room gets more heat than it needs.

7. Clan or replace furnace filters. Dirty filters may severely hinder movement of warm air, reducing furnace efficiency and wasting fuel.

8. Set the thermostat back at night, but only six or seven degrees. A bigger setback will require extra fuel on morning pick-up. Always set the thermostat back if you're going to be away for a weekend or longer.

9. Check the location of your thermostat. Montana Power Company says it should be on an inside wall four to five feet above floor level. Keep it away from heat sources such as a TV set or a lamp.

10. Turn off the heat in rooms that aren't used. If you have zone thermostats to control your heating, consider keeping bedrooms at a lower temperature during the day. If you like to sleep with a window open, make sure the bedroom door is closed.

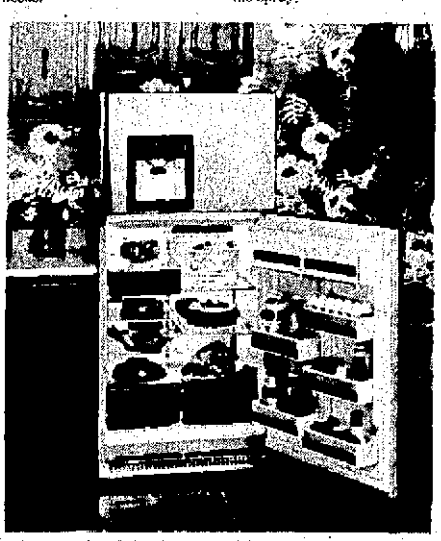

11. Install a humidifier. When relative humidity is high, you will be comfortable at a lower temperature.

12. Develop good heat conservation habits. Lock windows to pull sash tightly together. Close fireplace dampers except when a fire is burning. Close draperies at night, open them on sunny days.

Keep Paint Off Walls

If you're planning to paint an object with spray paints, there is a foolproof way to keep paint off walls and floor.

Make your own spray booth by removing one side of a large cardboard box. Place the object to be painted inside and spray with the container inside the box. Remember to turn off heating or air cooling units since air currents might deflect the spray.

CUBES OR CRUSHED ICE through the door is only one of the many features of this 20.6-cubic-foot refrigerator from General Electric. It has a huge 6.82-cubic-foot freezer, yet fits in a space only 31 inches wide. Other features include: adjustable cantilever shelves of tempered glass, adjustable Porta-Bin door compartments, and a Power Saver switch to help you reduce operating cost. And it's frost free.

If you're planning to paint an object with spray paints, there is a foolproof way to keep paint off walls and floor.

Make your own spray booth by removing one side of a large cardboard box. Place the object to be painted inside and spray with the container inside the box. Remember to turn off heating or air cooling units since air currents might deflect the spray.

CUBES OR CRUSHED ICE through the door is only one of the many features of this 20.6-cubic-foot refrigerator from General Electric. It has a huge 6.82-cubic-foot freezer, yet fits in a space only 31 inches wide. Other features include: adjustable cantilever shelves of tempered glass, adjustable Porta-Bin door compartments, and a Power Saver switch to help you reduce operating cost. And it's frost free.

Wood Siding Offers Many Values

Prefinished panel siding is not only functional it's also attractive. Exterior of this luxury home is covered with Colorlok panel siding, a product of Masonite Corporation. Unique 2-piece battens, comprised of a hardboard backer strip and color-matched aluminum cover, conceal nailing and serve to cover the joints. Prefinished soffit system is compatible with the exterior hardboard siding.

Escalating energy prices and shortages, coupled with the cost of maintaining year-round comfort in single-family dwellings have spurred many American homeowners not only to better insulate their homes, but add exterior building materials that offer greater thermal protection when residing.

One exterior cladding product that ranks high on the list of thermal resistance values is wood siding. And, according to one of the nation's major manufacturers of building materials for the remodeling market, wood siding offers self insulating and energy saving qualities.

Once in place as part of the insulated wood-frame construction system, wood siding with its unique cellular structure is a natural insulator. It helps eliminate wind and weather infiltration, thereby helping to reduce heating and cooling costs in the residence.

Technologists at Georgia-Pacific Corp., a forest products, gypsum, paper and chemical company, point to the composition of wood siding with its millions of tiny cells, or air spaces . . . and note that captive air is one of the world's best insulators.

In a study of identical wood-frame and solid-masonry houses in the Baltimore, Md.-Washington, D.C., areas, calculations were used by the National Forest Products Association following procedures developed by the National Association of Home Builders Research Foundation Inc. These calculations revealed that it cost $85 less annually to heat and cool an insulated all wood home than an insulated masonry home.

In addition to energy saving qualities, wood siding has other reliable properties that are valuable in virtually any residential design situation.

This combination of values — enduring natural beauty, strength, economy of maintenance and durability — makes wood siding a wise exterior wall finish investment for the home.

For design flexibility, G-P offers a variety of wood sidings that provide potential home remodelers with unlimited opportunities when re-siding.

Selections run from softwood plywood siding in redwood, cedar or fir to hardboard and overlaid particleboard sidings; and from medium density overlaid plywood to redwood finished lumber.

To help reduce installation waste, exterior siding panels and lap boards come in convenient sizes. Standard sheet panels are 4 feet wide by 8 feet long, though longer panels are also available in 9 and 10-foot lengths. Horizontal-lap sidings, available in G-P's hardboard and economical Cladwood siding lines, come in 16-foot lengths for easy installation.

There are dozens of textures and patterns ranging from the smooth, even surface of medium density overlaid panels, to the deep grooves and rough sawn texture of reverse board-and-batten patterns.

Georgia-Pacific plywood sidings include a group with attractive textured surface finishes, achieved through such methods as sawing, sanding, grooving, kerfing, after the panel has been completed. They combine the natural beauty of wood with the toughness of plywood.

A manufactured product with sandwich layers of thin sheets of wood veneer bonded together with exterior resins and pressure, plywood siding has a built-in bracing ability that delivers strength and stiffness. Its structural capacity is recognized particularly in building codes where design for earthquake or highwind loadings is a typical requirement.

Plywood siding has excellent impact resistance. The material shrugs off blows that would dent or scar most other sidings. This characteristic is important in applications where impact loads are sure to occur over the life of the structure — from hail, baseballs or other children's toy, lawn care equipment and the like.

Because of the subtle and infinitely variable characteristics of natural, G-P plywood and other wood fiber sidings convey a sense of individuality and directness that is difficult to achieve with factory-made non-wood materials imprinted or patterned with repetitive grain impressions.

For the home remodeler considering an exterior uplift, the message is clear. Wood siding can help conserve costly energy which is in short supply for heating and cooling, while adding value to the home.

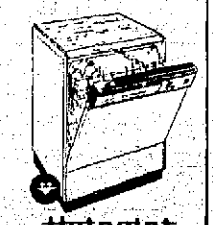

And, in recognizing the conservation capabilities and performance values of wood siding, homeowners should also remember that wood, itself, has other ecological virtue.

Unlike other materials, wood is a renewable resource. Lumber producers like Georgia-Pacific consistently and scientifically replenish this valuable resource by replanting forests using expert forest management.

Would You Believe Bathroom-Laundry?

TAKING CARE OF BABY IS A CINCH IN THIS COMBINATION LAUNDRY-BATHROOM that also features a special alcove outfitted to handle Junior's every need, from diaper changing to bathing. The cheery, youthful look of this multi-function room was designed by the laundry experts at Maytag. Both the baby alcove and laundry area can be concealed by roll shades when they're not in use.

When you plan that bathroom decorating project — and space permits — you may want to place your laundry appliances either in or adjacent to this busy area.

The laundry experts at Maytag have designed a family bathroom/laundry that has a special feature for those homes where baby rules the roost — an alcove outfitted for baby's diaper-changing area.

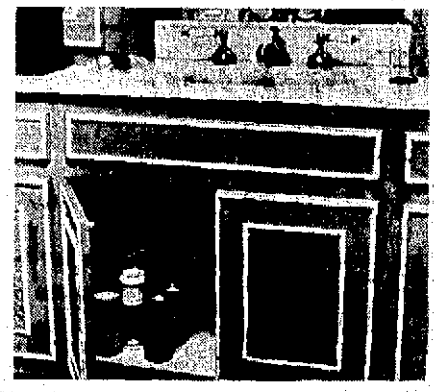

It includes a drop-down shelf that comes up and secures in place as a diaper-changing table. Above the table are open shelves, perfect for sorting Junior's diapers, lotion and baby powder. Both the baby alcove and the laundry area can be concealed behind roll shades when not in use.

The cheery, youthful look of the Maytag-designed multi-function room was achieved due to the easy-going pattern in the wallcovering. Whimsical flowers highlighted by gingham check centers were splashed across a white background. The same yellow and white check was picked up in a companion print paper used in the baby-changing alcove.

To give the laundry cabinets extra pizazz, cut-outs from the floral-patterned wallpaper were applied to the door fronts. The door fronts were then finished with several coats of clear varnish in satin finish. The result was a decoupaged door that's as easy to wipe clean as a laminated plastic counter top.

The shower curtain that was used in this crisp and colorful baby/laundry was fashioned from a regular-size bed sheet.

To sew your own shower curtain, measure from the floor to the bottom of the shower rod. Measure up from the bottom of the sheet and cut at this length. Use the top, decorative edge of the sheet as a valance for the shower curtain. Cut down 10 to 12 inches from the top edge of the sheet. Place the right side of this valance against the wrong side of the shower curtain, cut edges together. Sew. Turn the valance over and press down. Top stitch ¼-inch from the pressed seam. Make another line of top stitching 1-inch from the pressed edge. Space openings for the shower curtain rings equal-distant from each other. Using buttonhole technique, make buttonholes for the shower curtain rings.

SAFETY FIRST should be your prime consideration when storing medicines and harsh cleaning compounds in the bathroom. Avoid storing them under sinks or in unlocked cabinets where children and pets may accidentally get at them. Better yet, avoid using harsh products altogether. For example, use Drain Power, the first drain opener to use pressure to clear clogged drains, instead of using dangerous crystal and liquid drain cleaners that contain harmful lyes or acids.

Painting Quickest Way To Create 'New Look'

"It's amazin what a little paint can do!"

It's true . . . nothing can effect a change so quickly and inexpensively as a fresh coat of paint. So if you like to redecorate but are limited as to funds, pick up your paint brush and give your home a new look.

The trick to redecorating with paint, say experts, is the creative use of colors. Don't paint that tired-looking breakfast nook in the same neutral shade it is now — a bright, sunny color can do wonders to liven it up.

Don't be afraid to use different colors than you've been accustomed to — if you're unsure as to which colors harmonize with others, get a color wheel from your local art supplies store for guidance.

Colors can be divided into two groups, warm tones and cool ones. Colors containing red are warm ones, while colors with blue are cool. The judicious use of colors can create the desired effect for any room.

Bedrooms benefit from a restful atmosphere, for instance, which can be obtained with cool colors such as blue or green, while kitchens, the hub of family activity, may need warm shades such as a sunny yellow.

Use colors to reflect your personality or the type of atmosphere you prefer. If you don't have any strong preference in choosing the color of a room, get a little inspiration by choosing a painting or a piece of fabric that you especially like.

Duplicate the colors of your painting or sample in the same proportions, applying them to walls, furniture, accents. You'll be sure to get a color scheme you like, in this manner.

40 Reasons Why You Should Buy Air Conditioning Now!

By Marvin A. Fuller

Call Marv - The Air Care Man - Night or Day 983-Thirty-nine Thirty-seven.

Spring does more than signal pleasant breezes and flowers. It's also a sign that warmer weather is just around the corner.

That's the reason why many people buy central air conditioning. But temperature control is not the only reason for buying air conditioning. There are other benefits equally as important that most of us don't even suspect.

Here are 40 benefits of living in an air conditioned home, comfortably cooled in every room in the house by a General Electric central system.

HEALTHIER - Pollen filtered out—strain from reduced—fatigue and tension reduced—resistance to illness increased because of restful sleep—normal appetites and diets maintained—unhealthy drafts eliminated—interior air filtered clean—indoor plant life assured thriving conditions.

QUIETER—doors and windows closed and locked, noise kept outside-children's naps undisturbed—privacy provided—greater security provided—night workers sleep during day in comfortable quiet room.

CLEANER—Easier to maintain—dust and dirt kept outside, therefore less housecleaning—damage from sudden rainstorms eliminated—use of lighter, brighter interior colors assured—insects kept outside—redecorating costs reduced—seasonal changes of screen and storm sash eliminated—sunlight damage to furnishings eliminated—drudgery of ironing reduced.

DRIER (less humid)—moisture and mildew in basement, closets, etc., reduced—tools and other metallic furnishings protected—repairing and tuning of musical instruments reduced—paneling shrinking, warping, and cracking reduced—furniture, carpeting, etc. maintained in good condition—foodstuffs kept dry.

MORE VALUABLE—mortgage value increased—resale value increased—construction materials protected—construction costs reduced—living conditions modernized—interior made adaptable to more styles of decor—more modern house design possible—air conditioning equipment depreciated over 10-year period instead of 3.

MORE COMFORTABLE—sleeping conditions regardless of weather—comfortable cooking conditions—pleasant indoor entertaining-dressing and shaving a pleasure—appearance of clothes and cosmetics maintained.

GENERAL ELECTRIC HAS PROVIDED A TANGIBLE REASON TO BUY DURING APRIL. G.E. WILL SEND YOU UP TO "$100" WHEN YOU BUY A DELUXE AIR CONDITIONER OR WEATHERTRON HEAT PUMP. ISN'T IT ABOUT TIME YOU FOUND OUT HOW INEXPENSIVE A SYSTEM CAN BE FOR YOUR HOME?

Detailed Planning Needed In Modernizing Bathroom

If your bathroom is rather drab, with old-fashioned fixtures and definitely in need of remodeling, it is probably like most — about 5 feet by 8 feet in size.

If so, you won't find too many idea bathrooms in advertisements or editorial this size to help you — most such baths are larger and your problem will be to convert the ideas found in such large rooms down to fit your space.

Therefore, before you remove the first wall tile or start tearing up the floor covering, take a few minutes to plan your bathroom remodeling.

There are six basic elements of better bathroom design for you to consider, according to Eljer Plumbingware, a leading manufacturer of plumbing products. Each is important to total bathroom planning.

— The basic plan of the bathroom must be a good one — one that will work even in the most restricted space. In many cases you will be working with all plumbing pipes placed on one wet wall. It will be most economical to take this arrangement and develop variety and design without a change in plumbing.

However, to create the best plan for your bathroom you may find it necessary to change some fixture locations. If this is desired, by all means contact your plumbing contractor because proper installation and adherence to plumbing codes are mandatory.

— Choosing the right fixtures is very important because remodeling your bathroom is pointless if built around a poor choice of fixtures. Don't skimp on quality, not if you want to be assured of satisfaction, performance and beauty in the years ahead. Be sure you consider colored fixtures . . . added spark for your bath at small added cost.

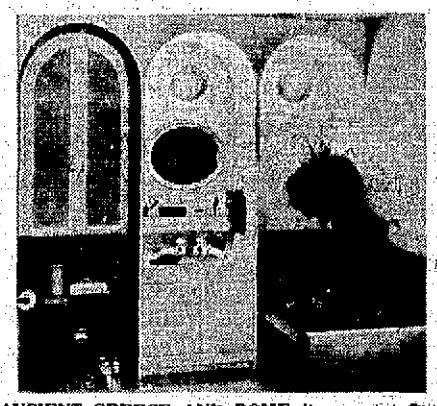

— Adequate storage is so fundamental yet so often overlooked in the bathroom. Be sure you provide space to store towels, tissues, cleansing materials, cosmetics, etc. . . . and storage space is probably more important in a small bathroom than in a large one.

— Lighting must be adequate for proper application of cosmetics, shaving, and believe it or not, reading. Let's face it, everyone needs a morale boost when they first get up in the morning — and warm lighting in the bathroom can at least make you look much better than you feel.

— Adequate ventilation is an item easily overlooked in bathroom remodeling. Ventilation can do more than just make the bathroom smell fresh — it can help keep it clean, warm, remove excess moisture and help control mildew.

— Every homeowner should have a bathroom that's easy to maintain. Begin by choosing quality fixtures, with finishes of glass-hard vitreous china or durable enameled cast iron. Consider the new, easy-to-maintain finishing materials such as vinyl wall coverings, laminated plastic survaces, and ceramic tile for easy cleaning without sacrificing decorative appearance or utility.

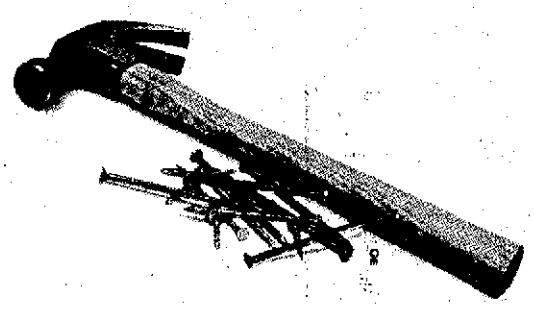

To help plan your bathroom remodeling, contact your Eljer contractor or write: Eljer Plumbingware, Wallace-Murray Corporation, Dept. MAS, 3 Gateway Center, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15222.

ANCIENT GREECE AND ROME live again! This classical bath fits a five-by-eight foot area and combines all six elements of good bathroom design. Three arches are built of ⅛" untempered hardboard. Simple globe lighting adds to the over-all effect with a free-hanging mirror over the lavatory. There is open access to toiletries, while ample storage for towels and linens is available. Fixtures by Eljer Plumbingware.

Linen Adds Luxurious Flair To Walls

WRAPPED IN LINEN, the bold, modern wall patterns create a background of splendor which complements the stark lines of the upholstered pieces in Belgian linen-faced velvet. Adding the right touch of elegant simplicity to this contemporary setting are the walls, vertical blinds and wall hanging skillfully covered with durable, soil resistant Belgian linen blends.

If you are looking for a wall covering with a new but truly luxurious flair that can be applied with ease, a European tradition may provide the answer.

For centuries, Belgian linens, combining the exclusive look of skillfully crafted fabrics with the modern simplicity of natural fibers, have been in special demand as wall coverings.

The fine good looks of natural flax weaves, or printed linens, give them the versatility to be equally attractive in the bedroom, kitchen or living room complementing a modern Mediterranean or Colonial decor.

Beyond the beauty of linen covered walls, the Belgian Linen Association points out added advantages: decorating walls of remodeled rooms which are imperfect; deadening sound from outside or inside or as a color accent to enlarge or decrease an area.

Belgian linens are available with several types of backing which allow a paper hanger to apply them with glue, but the uncoated Belgian linen 48" wide may be applied directly to the walls without backing by quick installation with staples. Not only does it give a smooth fine wall but has the advantage of undamaged removal at any time.

To begin, tools necessary include a hand or automatic staple gun (which may be rented from any Equipment Supply Center); cardboard or wood strips 1" wide with two thicknesses of 1/8 and 1/16 inch; hammer and small nails; large sharp scissors capable of cutting linen; sharp fabric knife; ladder, folding ruler, plumb rule with chalk line or level and pliers to cut off nail heads.

Measuring for Installation

1. Hold fabric inside out with all but one inch at left of starting point.

If not starting in corner, use plumb rule to place cardboard vertically on fabric.

Otherwise push up to corner. Place staples 2" apart top to bottom on cardboard, or wood strip.

2. Pull fabric taut from left to right for location of next cardboard at left edge of fabric.

Staple thick cardboard to wall one inch in from left side of pattern edge, underneath, on the fabric.

3. Place next width of fabric on first piece, matching pattern at left edge.

Place three staples at top. Stretch to bottom and fasten with staples, taking care to match pattern exactly.

Push thin cardboard strip up against strip already installed. Match pattern by stretching fabric as strip is stapled down.

4. Continue this method for length of walls. To finish, stretch fabric full width, trim two inches wider than space to be covered. Fold fabric over heavy cardboard.

Slip back to tighten and tack down with small nails. Hammer halfway in. Cut off heads with pliers.

To give your linen wall covering that professional finish around doors, windows and light switches, the following steps should be observed:

— Remove molding and plate. If this cannot be done, fold fabric under and cover staples with glued on braid or gimp. Staple heavy cardboard around opening.

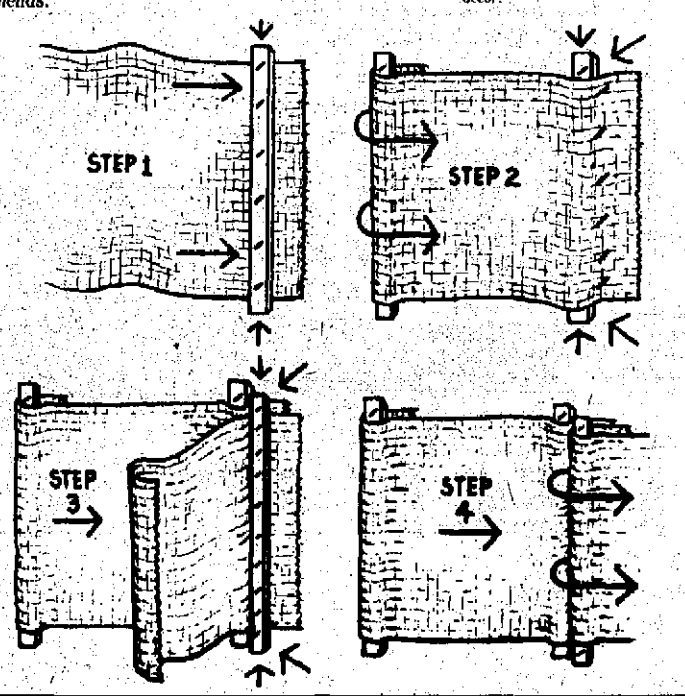

— Draw fabric taut. Staple at corners and ceiling to place. Fabric lengths should be planned to bring widths to edge of doorway with piece evenly across top, or so that the two lengths meet center of opening.

— Join fabric lengths as before.

— Staple all around opening and cut with sharp knife evenly at edge, removing fabric from opening.

— Cover staples with molding or braid.

Your wall will now reflect the elegant style of some of Europe's most prestigious salons . . . as well as having given the American "do-it-yourself" satisfaction!

Roofing May Have Top Priority

An older home, if it's to retain its resale value, must be kept in good condition. Otherwise, the time and effort you've invested won't be repaid when your home goes on the resale market.

Keeping your home in good repair also provides the kind of lasting comfort and convenience that makes home ownership a pleasure.

Remodeling to improve the resale value of your home suggests an improvement project that will freshen its looks. This can mean anything from adding shutters to repainting the house.

It also includes reroofing, since the roof is often the most visible part of the house that can be seen from the street. A sound, good-looking roof can enhance the overall appearance of a home.

Selecting the right roofing material not only improves the looks of a home, but offers long-lasting, maximum protection with minimal maintenance. As the focal point of a home's exterior, the roof also presents a homeowner with the added advantage of using color and texture as a design technique.

Heavy-textured asphalt shingles, for example, create rugged, deep shadow lines that give a roof dimension. A range of popular natural shades, known as "earthtones," are used to blend the roof and siding elements with the home's surroundings.

Shingles designed to last up to 25 years with only minimal maintenance also offer the added protection of bearing the Underwriters Laboratories label for fire resistance. You can also give effective wind resistance by choosing shingles that display the UL wind-resistance label.

Remodeling with an eye towards resale might also include these other elements:

Heating and plumbing: These are two other areas where quality is worth the price. Frequent repairs can be costly as well as inconvenient. A good heating unit should be no larger than is needed to conserve energy and still maintain adequate comfort levels. Be sure the plumbing, including the water heater, is designed to meet present and — in the case of growing families — future needs.

Electrical outlets and the system's capacity. Both should be sufficient to meet present and future needs. A system that can't handle the growing number of electrical appliances is a potential fire hazard.

The outside walls: Whether you decide to repaint or reside, choose a product that is attractive, durable and easy to care for.

Damaged, Worn Shingles Can Mean Big Problems

The dramatic changes that indoor remodeling may bring about can easily lull a homeowner in a "false sense of security" about the outside of his house.

It's easy to fall into the trap of "out of sight, out of mind" when it involves the expense of remodeling a home's exterior. If a damaged or worn roof is involved, however, the problem will only get worse.

If the roof is fairly new and has suffered minor damage from a storm or has developed a small leak, chances are it can be repaired easily. Damaged shingles can be replaced, loose shingles renailed and leaks around the flashing points patched.

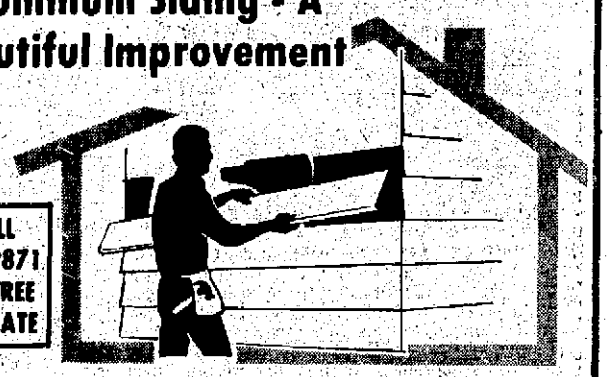

All roofs have to be replaced eventually. Even the best roofing material dries out, fades and becomes brittle after years of wear. Signs of "old age" are excessive loss of mineral granules and cracked, blistered, curled or missing shingles.

The Asphalt Roofing Manufacturers Association says the best guide to determining whether the roof needs to be replaced is to establish its age. A roof of standard shingles 15 to 20 years old almost certainly has outlived its usefulness.

Asphalt shingles remain the most popular roofing material. In many cases, they can be applied over the existing roof, eliminating the cost of a tear-off.

Since the cost of application is the same, it may be more economical in the long run to use asphalt shingles that offer low maintenance, bold colors and heavy textures and are designed to last 25 years.

Vinyl Siding May Be Top Choice

Building a new house continues to be a very expensive proposition. If the location of your house suits you, consider remodeling rather than building to get a house with more 1976 amenities than you could afford in a new house. If you're looking for your first house, consider spending less than you had planned on the house itself, and use the rest of your money to remodel. It is possible to get a mortgage loan that covers both the price of the house and the remodeling.

The following items can be changed or added to get a new look from an old exterior: siding, roofing, shutters, light fixtures, front door, windows, sliding glass door, railings and posts, house numbers and mailbox, landscaping and outdoor living area, such as patio, deck or screened porch.

Most of these items can be selected on the basis of esthetics. When it comes to siding, however, there are other important considerations. One siding manufacturer, Mastic Corporation, is unusual in that the company makes all types of siding — vinyl, steel, aluminum, and mineral-surfaced. They have compared sidings and recommend vinyl as the best overall choice for the homeowner. Here are some reasons:

Several characteristics of vinyl make it a superior, enduring siding product. It is chemically inert, making it immune to the things that corrode, rust, warp, and ruin ordinary sidings. Solid-vinyl siding resists acids, saltwater, sunshine, rain, and airborne factory pollutants.

Vinyl does not dent like metal. Duranyl vinyl, for example, which is compounded especially for the manufacture of siding, has a built-in resiliency that provides high-impact resistance.

While aluminum siding may need painting someday, vinyl never will. There is no painted surface to peel, blister, or wear off. Vinyl siding is solid color all the way through — 40 times thicker than a painted surface. This means that removing stains or spots is easy. Even an abrasive cleaner can be used, because the color can't be rubbed off, although such an extreme measure is rarely required.

Moisture is not absorbed or retained by vinyl siding, and vinyl does not sweat like metal siding, attracting grime and airborne dirt. This also makes it easy to clean. Just washing it with a sponge and soapy water will quickly restore its freshly painted look.

Inside the house, there are advantages to vinyl siding also. Vinyl offers 24.9% greater insulation value against heat and cold compared to metal siding, according to A.S.T.M. Test C-177. That means saving energy, and lower heating and air conditioning costs. Vinyl siding is quiet too, eliminating the rat-a-tat sounds of hail and rain, because vinyl does not telegraph sound. It muffles outside noises, and doesn't snap and pop as metal siding does when it expands and contracts as the weather changes. A quieter, more livable home is the result.

Safety is another reason for choosing vinyl, as is evidenced by its widespread use for aircraft interiors. It will not attract lightning or conduct electricity; therefore, no grounding system is required.

Once you've chosen vinyl as your siding product, it's time to consider the various vinyl sidings available. There are styles and colors to consider. A simulated wood texture is widely available in such colors as white, yellow, gray, green, beige, avocado and gold. A matte finish is also popular. The siding may be an 8" traditional American clapboard, or a 4" New England Colonial Style in a double 4" configuration. Vinyl siding is also available in vertical styles.

Special trim styles are used to cover window casings, and soffit panels are used to cover hard-to-paint, under-eave areas. This makes your home completely maintenance free, eliminating costly time-consuming trim painting.

One very important factor to consider, when choosing any siding is the warranty. Be sure it is a strong warranty, backed by a reputable manufacturing firm. Does it provide replacement of any defective materials? A good warranty is usually prorated over a period of many years. Your installer should stand behind his installation, because the manufacturer usually warrants materials only against manufacturing defects.

Is your warranty transferable? This can be very important when you sell your home, and can be one more selling point in your favor.

Another question to ask is what building codes the siding meets. What about FHA approval? Others are the Building Officials Conference of America, Inc. (BOCA), International Conference of Building Officials (ICOBO), and the Southern Building Code Congress (SBCC). These codes are based on very high standards, and if the product you choose meets them, you can be sure you have chosen a good siding.

There are many simple tests you can make with a sample piece of vinyl siding to demonstrate its durability to yourself. Put it in the freezer for several hours, then test its flexibility. Will it crack? Try staining it with iodine, for example. Then see how it cleans up. Hit it with a hammer or take a piece of sandpaper to it. Try to tear or scratch it. Prove its durability to yourself before buying.

Considering all the alternatives and actually testing the product for yourself, then choosing a reputable contractor who uses brand-name siding, will assure you of a siding job that will please you for years to come.

Mastic Corporation offers a free sample swatch of Contour T-lok solid-vinyl siding for you to experiment with. Just write to: Mastic Corporation, Dept. SC, 131 South Taylor St., South Bend, IN 46624.

HOMEOWNERS' THING OF BEAUTY and joy is the new vinyl siding, Driftgrain, which never needs refinishing. The embossed wood grain texture by Johns-Manville is fade resistant, and will not scratch, dent or conduct electrical current.

HOW'S YOUR SOFFIT??? According to the Home Institute of Certain-teed Products Corporation, it's easy to have a maintenance-free home by installing vinyl siding and a vinyl soffit and fascia system. Vinyl siding comes in soft colors to enhance every exterior decorating scheme and offers wood graining, to give the appearance of traditional wood siding. It never needs painting, since the color is molded clear through the siding.

Make Your Home Secure

In these days of rising crime, one of the most valuable improvements an owner can make to his home is some type of security measure.

Fortunately, there are an increasing number of products designed to discourage burglaries. These range from the latest security locks to ultra-sonic systems. Many burglar alarm systems also include fire detection units. All these systems send out alarms to either frighten away intruders or attract attention to them.

Security locks have been greatly improved in recent years; some chainlocks even feature alarm systems, and there are devices designed especially for sliding doors.

Experts recommend that all outside doors be equipped with a double-locking dead-bolt or dead latch, locked separately with a key from the outside. Although deadbolts are not burglar-proof, they cannot be forced open as easily as other locks. Saw-proof bolts are also available for added security. Some bolts are made extra long, to project farther onto the door frame.

Don't Forget Your Soffit

Have you looked at your soffit lately? How about the fascia? Well, most people see them daily. . .and few rarely think about them. . .or know what they are. The soffit is found underneath the roof overhang of the home. It is the horizontal finishing material which connects the overhang and the exterior walls of your home. The fascia is the finishing trim strip that joins the overhang to the soffit.

You may never have thought a soffit or fascia were important until you hired a painting contractor to repaint your home or attempted it yourself. Then you realize — there must be mile of soffit and fascia on the average house and it takes forever to paint them.

The Home Institute of Certain-teed Products Corporation thinks there's an answer to the repainting hassle — simply install a vinyl soffit and fascia siding on your home. You should consider residing your house with vinyl siding, too and you'll have a maintenance-free home.

Since vinyl siding never needs repainting and carries a limited 20-year warranty against manufacturer's defects, you'll be assuring yourself of lots of free time in the future. And, of course, you'll probably have some extra spending money as well, because you won't have to hire the painter every few years.

For more information, write to the Home Institute, Certain-teed Products Corporation, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482, for a copy of the booklet, "Everything You Ever Wanted to Know About Roofing, Siding and Residential Insulation." It'll cost you 25c, it could save you a lot of money, time and energy.

Vinyl siding is solid color all the way through — 40 times thicker than a painted surface. This means that removing stains or spots is easy. Even an abrasive cleaner can be used, because the color can't be rubbed off, although such an extreme measure is rarely required.

Moisture is not absorbed or retained by vinyl siding, and vinyl does not sweat like metal siding, attracting grime and airborne dirt. This also makes it easy to clean. Just washing it with a sponge and soapy water will quickly restore its freshly painted look.

Inside the house, there are advantages to vinyl siding also. Vinyl offers 24.8% greater insulation value against heat and cold compared to metal siding, according to A.S.T.M Test C-177. That means saving energy, and lower heating and air conditioning costs. Vinyl siding is quiet too, eliminating the rat-a-tat sounds of hail and rain, because vinyl does not telegraph sound. it muffles outside noises, and doesn't snap and pop as metal siding does when it expands and contracts as the weather changes. A quieter, more livable home is the result.

Safety is another reason for choosing vinyl, as is evidenced by its widespread use for aircraft interiors. It will not attract lightning or conduct electricity; therefore, no grounding system is required.

Once you've chosen vinyl as your siding product, it's time to consider the various vinyl sidings available. There are styles and colors to consider. A simulated wood texture is widely available in such colors as white, yellow, gray, green, beige, avocado and gold. A matte finish is also popular. The siding may be an 8" traditional American clapboard, or a 4" New England Colonial Style in a double 4" configuration. Vinyl siding is also available in vertical styles.

Special trim styles are used to cover window casings, and soffit panels are used to cover hard-to-paint, under-eave areas. This makes your home completely maintenance free, eliminating costly time-consuming trim painting.

One very important factor to consider when choosing any siding is the warranty. Be sure it is a strong warranty, backed by a reputable manufacturing firm. Does it provide replacement of any defective materials? A good warranty is usually prorated over a period of many years. Your installer should stand behind his installation, because the manufacturer usually warrants materials only against manufacturing defects.

Is your warranty transferable? This can be very important when you sell your home, and can be one more selling point in your favor.

Another question to ask is what building codes the siding meets. What about FHA approval? Others are the Building Officials Conference of America, Inc. (BOCA), International Conference of Building Officials (ICOBO), and the Southern Building Code Congress (SBCC). These codes are based on very high standards, and if the product you choose meets them, you can be sure you have chosen a good siding.

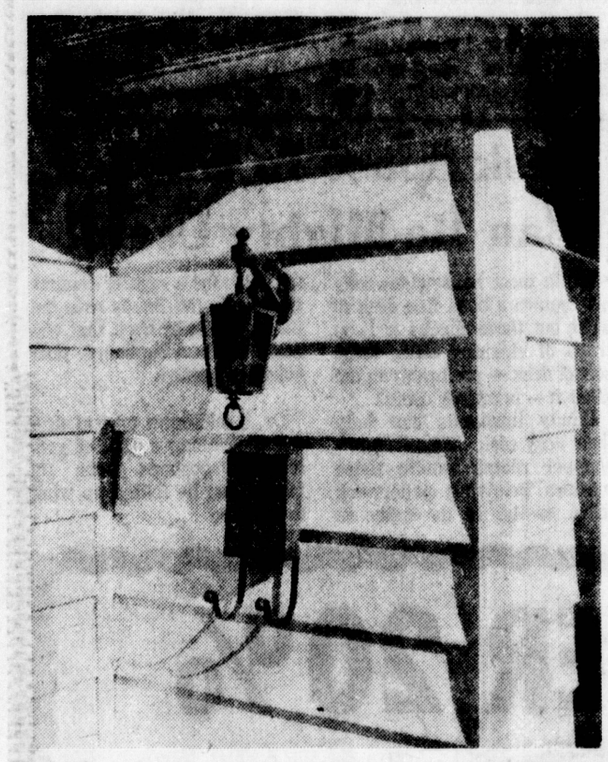

There are many simple tests you can make with a sample piece of vinyl siding to demonstrate its durability to yourself. Put it in the freezer for several hours, then test its flexibility. Will it crack? Try staining it with iodine, for example. Then see how it cleans up. Hit it with a hammer or take a piece of sandpaper to it. Try to tear or scratch it. Prove its durability to yourself before buying.

Considering all the alternatives and actually testing the product for yourself, then choosing a reputable contractor who uses brand-name siding, will assure you of a siding job that will please you for years to come.

Mastic Corporation offers a free sample swatch of Contour T-lok solid-vinyl siding for you to experiment with. Just write to: Mastic Corporation, Dept. SC, 131 South Taylor St., South Bend, IN 46624.

HOMEOWNERS' THING OF BEAUTY and joy is the new vinyl siding, Driftgrain, which never needs refinishing. The embossed wood grain texture by Johns-Manville is fade resistant, and will not scratch, dent or conduct electrical current.

HOW'S YOUR SOFFIT??? According to the Home Institute of Certain-teed Products Corporation, it's easy to have a maintenance-free home by installing vinyl siding and a vinyl soffit and fascia system. Vinyl siding comes in soft colors to enhance every exterior decorating scheme and offers wood graining, to give the appearance of traditional wood siding. It never needs painting, since the color is molded clear through the siding.

Don't Forget Your Soffit

Have you looked at your soffit lately? How about the fascia? Well, most people see them daily. . .and few rarely think about them. . .or know what they are. The soffit is found underneath the roof overhang of the home. It is the horizontal finishing material which connects the overhang and the exterior walls of your home. The fascia is the finishing trim strip that joins the overhang to the soffit.

You may never have thought a soffit or fascia were important until you hired a painting contractor to repaint your home or attempted it yourself. Then you realize — there must be mile of soffit and fascia on the average house and it takes forever to paint them.

The Home Institute of Certain-teed Products Corporation thinks there's an answer to the repainting hassle — simply install a vinyl soffit and fascia siding on your home. You should consider residing your house with vinyl siding, too and you'll have a maintenance-free home.

Since vinyl siding never needs repainting and carries a limited 20-year warranty against manufacturer's defects, you'll be assuring yourself of lots of free time in the future. And, of course, you'll probably have some extra spending money as well, because you won't have to hire the painter every few years.

For more information, write to the Home Institute, Certain-teed Products Corporation, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482, for a copy of the booklet, "Everything You Ever Wanted to Know About Roofing, Siding and Residential Insulation." It'll cost you 25c. It could save you a lot of money, time and energy.

Make Your Home Secure

In these days of rising crime, one of the most valuable improvements an owner can make to his home is some type of security measure.

Fortunately, there are an increasing number of products designed to discourage burglaries. These range from the latest security locks to ultra-sonic systems. Many burglar alarm systems also include fire detection units. All these systems send out alarms to either frighten away intruders or attract attention to them.

Security locks have been greatly improved in recent years; some chainlocks even feature alarm systems, and there are devices designed especially for sliding doors.

Experts recommend that all outside doors be equipped wth a double-locking dead-bolt or dead latch, locked separately with a key from the outside. Although deadbolts are not burglar-proof, they cannot be forced open as easily as other locks. Saw-proof bolts are also available for added security. Some bolts are made extra long, to project farther onto the door frame.

WORK-AT-HOME AREA, for TV producer Dennis Marks and wife Ann, includes a cork wall, modern office furniture and equipment — such as a 3M desktop copier which quickly turns out needed copies of Marks' TV "homework" and magic-hobby materials. Butcherblock desk with chrome legs, (from J & D Brauner) a swivel chair, (from General Fireproofing) and a Luxo lamp, are the basic work necessities. Window shades are of Marimekko fabric. Notice, in right foreground, a novel chair — a bleacher seat from old Yankee stadium.

TV Producer, Wife Find Neat Solution

Work-At-Home Area Not Costly

Creating a work-at-home space that includes a relaxing place is a home improvement project which sometimes requires a major remodeling effort.

Ann and Dennis Marks have proved it doesn't. "Use what you have, add needed furniture and equipment and rely on the personal touch" constitute guidelines followed by the couple in their New York apartment office — with room to relax.

Marks, producer of "Wonderama," the TV program with a 20-year record of entertaining and informing children, uses the office for his "homework" and for holding small conferences. In the same home office, Ann Marks conducts a typing service for doctors.

And both enjoy their leisure, in the relaxing place.

For the work-at-home area, "minor remodeling" consisted of installing a cork wall, to hold memorabilia and work in progress. A butcherblock desk with chrome legs, swivel chair and two-tier cabinet provide basic office funiture.

Essential equipment includes dictionary and other reference books, an electric typewriter and a 3M desk-top copier. Both Ann and Dennis Marks rely on the copier to turn out multiple copies of notes, memos, records, reports and work in general.

RELAXING SPACE in the Dennis Marks' home is divided from work area by a large screen. In front of the Lawson sofa, a nest-of-tables cube is opened up for form a coffee table, displaying magic props and books. Cork walls feature memorabilia, photos of famous friends and a poster from the second Ali-Frazier fight, autographed by both fighters. Oriental rugs and needlepoint pillows by Mrs. Marks provide dramatic accents.

Coloful fabric shades brighten the windows and the working area. A nostalgic note comes from one chair — actually a bleacher seat from Yankee stadium, now undergoing its own remodeling.

As a spare-time hobby, Marks is a magician. In the home office space, his interest is reflected by pictures of magician friends.

In the relaxing space, a nest-of-tables cube turns into a broad, flat surface, holding props and books about magic. The spread-out tables face a comfortable Lawson sofa.

On the principle of "using what you have," a large screen from Marks' do-it-yourself bachelor apartment days divides the relaxing place from the work-at-home space. A richly-hued Oriental rug came from Mrs. Marks' mother's home.

Here, too, are cork walls — showing, among other things, a poster from the second Muhammad Ali-Joe Frazier fight. Marks invited Ali and Frazier to compete on "Wonderama." They competed — in a game of marbles.

The finishing personal touch comes from a pair of pillows, the work of Ann Marks, who reproduced Frank Stella paintings, in needlepoint, as a present for her husband.

That's home improvement — without extensive remodeling.

Desk Space In Kitchen Can Be Mighty Useful

While most housewives may not require a bona fide desk to write out those checks or keep track of cleaning bills, some sort of desk — preferably in the kitchen — is mighty useful.

Handy husbands can help their busy cook - housekeeper - shopper mates handle those matters involving paperwork more easily. If no space is available for a regular counter-type desk, the handy-man can fix up a drawer shelf that conceals within a cupboard, pulls out when needed.

Or, a fold-down type of desk installed along a wall of your kitchen, perhaps near the phone, can be folded up when not in use.

Get In Swim--Pool Maintenance

Can Save Money, Major Repairs

Few homeowners know as much as they should about maintaining their swimming pools. Yet, proper care can greatly reduce threat of serious operational problems, in addition to time and money for major repairs.

For that reason Johns-Manville, a leading producer of swimming pool filter aids, provides the following checklist for those getting ready to open their pools for the swimming season.

— After removing protective winter covers from pool and equipment, sweep inside and surrounding areas clean of debris and dirt (if pool was drained). Then inspect exposed surfaces (walls, floor) for cracking. Also note if painting is needed.

— Examine all valves, controls and pipes for deterioration. If repair is not required, fill pool.

— Recheck valves, controls and pipes for leakage. Dried packings and gaskets on these devices may cause minor seepage that will stop as they absorb water and expand. If major leakage occurs, turn off water and call for professional help.

— While pool is still filling, check filtration equipment for operational readiness. Before filter start-up, follow manufacturer's recommendations for oiling and cleaning.

— Start up filter as prescribed by manufacturer. In doing so, Johns-Manville emphasizes the need for "precoating."

Most home and commercial pool filters (the diatomite or diatomaceous type) call for proper precoating with a filter aid capable of removing impurities of extremely small particle size. (Precoating is performed by circulating a mixture of diatomite and water into the filter to provide a 1/16-inch thick coating on the element). This will help assure clean, clear water, as well as efficient filtration.

— The diatomite filter aid should also be placed into the filter's body-feed apparatus. Not all pool filters have a body feed. In those that do, the device adds small amounts of diatomite during filtration to separate debris and prevent it from clogging the precoat layer.

— As pool continues to fill, the water may take on a cloudy appearance — though it's perfectly fit for drinking; toward end of the first 24-hour filtration cycle it will begin to sparkle. Subsequently, the filter should be run so water is completely filtered every 18 to 24 hours.

— Finally, chlorination and addition of other chemicals to the water should be accomplished before the pool is used.

The pool is now fit for swimming, but maintenance shouldn't stop here.

Johns-Manville recommends frequent cleaning (every three to 10 days), waterskimming and vacuuming — all help insure efficient filter operation and clean water.

And careful control of algae by chemical treatment will help cut operating expenses by reducing filter load, as well as keeping algae in check.

Of final importance, J-M notes that diatomite filter aids are not expensive, and that the cost of proper filtration will be small compared with the benefits of swimming in crisp, inviting water.

WARM FIRE is focal point of comfortable living room, but a little knowledge about various woods and techniques is necessary to gain maximum pleasure.

Knowledge Of Wood Can Make Fireplace Joy

Once considered a luxury item confined to custom-built houses, the fireplace has now become a common feature in homes of virtually all price ranges. This has been brought about by the advent of factory-built fireplaces that have eliminated the massive footing and masonry associated with earlier fireplace construction.

Some of today's owners and occupants, reared during the days when fireplaces were not so commonplace, may find firewood purchasing rather confusing. Do you buy it by the cord or ton? Why does some wood cost more than others? Which woods have the highest heat values? Which ones impart the best aroma? What woods should not be used as fireplace fuel? These are a few of the questions that the new fireplace user may ponder.

Heatilator Fireplace, a division of Bega Industries, Inc., one of America's leading manufacturers of factory-built fireplaces, offers some tips on firewood in hopes of helping fireplace users obtain maximum pleasure from their hearths while at the same time making the most effective use of this source of supplemental heat during the energy shortage.

A standard cord of firewood is a stack of wood 4 by 8 by 4 feet (128 cubic feet). However, when buying from a wood-lot supplier, you will most likely be buying a face cord — one that is 8 feet long by 4 feet high but only as deep as the length of the logs — perhaps as little as 12 inches. In that case, you are buying only one-fourth of the standard cord. In 24-inch lengths, a face cord measures just half a standard cord, etc.

In some parts of the country firewood is sold by the ton. If you buy wood by weight, instead of volume, make sure that the wood is dry (not exceeding 12 percent moisture). Otherwise, you will be paying for water. Request winter-cut wood because it is drier from the start.

How does a ton of wood compare with a cord? Let's assume that you buy white oak. A cord containing 12 per cent moisture content wood will weigh approximately 4,200 pounds, or just in excess of two tons. Weights per cord vary from white pine (2,250 pounds) to hickory (4,000 pounds). When you get freshly cut wood, then the weights increase to 3,240 pounds and 5,670 pounds respectively — roughly one-half ton per cord of additional moisture!

Choosing the right kind of firewood to burn in your fireplace is a highly individual matter. Some woods ignite easily but burn fast and with poor heat output. Others, such as the heavier hardwoods, are slow starting, long lasting and have very high heat output.

Knowing characteristics of various woods, the buyer may want to secure a mixed cord or ton — some easy starting logs which can be split into kindling and some high heat sustaining logs.

When kindling is needed, short lengths of a straight-grained wood, such as cottonwood, aspen, fir and pine will split easily and start quickly. Once this material is burning vigorously, then hot-burning hickory, oak, locust, maple, birch or ash logs may be added. The U.S. Forest Service recommends four logs at a time for a proper size, relatively attention-free fire in the average fireplace.

If your nose rules your selection of firewoods, then obtain apple, cherry beech, hickory or pecan logs. Their smoke usually resembles the fragrance of the tree's fruit. But be prepared to pay more than for the standard woods. However, you should have a few of these more expensive logs on hand for these special occasions when atmosphere is more important than a little money going up in smoke.

You will achieve just a completely opposite effect of a pleasant aroma if your throw plastic articles, poison ivy twigs or stems, or wood treated with creosote another preservatives on the fire. So discarded telephone poles, bridge pilings and railroad ties are a "no-no". Many individuals are extremely sensitive to even small amounts of the toxic smoke from these burning materials.

From a safety standpoint, resinous woods (hemlock, larch, spruce and juniper) should be used in moderation. These woods contain moisture pockets which, when heated, explode with great vigor. Should the fireplace screen happen to be open, a bit or should a "pop" occur while tending the fire, you could end up with a burned carpet or worse yet, a burned bystander.

But with good woods, a properly engineered fireplace equipped with a fine mesh screen, and average care, the art of burning wood can provide a world of pleasure. So throw another log on the fire to keep the heart aglow, and turn the lights down low. Watch the dancing flames and relax.

For more information on fireplaces and their enjoyment, write Heatilator Fireplace, 50 W. Saunders, Mt. Pleasant, Iowa 52641.

Roofing Questions Answered

Q: My roofing contractor says I need a new roof, but I don't know what kind of shingles to have him install. Can you help?

A: More than 80 per cent of American homes have asphalt shingles. There are also wood shingles, shakes, slate, tile, aluminum, and asbestos-cement shingles — to name most of the types you'll encounter.

Q: Why do most homes have asphalt shingles?

A: This type is highly practical and economical. It has excellent fire-resistant qualities, resists wind damage, comes in a wide variety of colors, requires little maintenance, lasts a long time and is priced modestly for the service it gives.

Q: Is there anything I can do to have better protection against fire?

A: Your best bet is to select one of the fiber glass-based asphalt shingles which have the Underwriters Laboratories Class A fire rating.

Q: I've always liked the appearance of a wood roof. Is that a good selection?

A: From the point of view of being charming and distinctive, yes. But you have the problem of high cost, especially higher even if the wood shingles or shakes are treated for fire resistance and longer life. Also, your area might ban wood because of fire hazard. We suggest instead an asphalt roofing that closely simulates the look of wood — such as the Hallmark Shangle, by Certain-teed.

Q: What about color availability?

A: Select anything that pleases you and doesn't clash with other colors on your house. Asphalt shingles come in a wide variety of colors, but keep in mind that lighter colors will reflect more of the sun's heat, keeping it from penetrating the house and burdening your air conditioner. The savings can be substantial.

For further information about roofing shingles, write to the Home Institute, Certain-teed Products Corporation, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482.

Knowledge Of Wood Can Make Fireplace Joy

WARM FIRE is focal point of comfortable living room, but a little knowledge about various woods and techniques is necessary to gain maximum pleasure.

Once considered a luxury item confined to custom-built houses, the fireplace has now become a common feature in homes of virtually all price ranges. This has been brought about by the advent of factory-built fireplaces that have eliminated the massive footing and masonry associated with earlier fireplace construction.

Some of today's owners and occupants, reared during the days when fireplaces were not so commonplace, may find firewood purchasing rather confusing. Do you buy it by the cord or ton? Why does some wood cost more than others? Which woods have the highest heat values? Which ones impart the best aroma? What woods should not be used as fireplace fuel? These are a few of the questions that the new fireplace user may ponder.

Heatilator Fireplace, a division of Bega Indsutries, Inc., one of America's leading manufacturers of factory-built fireplaces, offers some tips on firewood in hopes of helping fireplace users obtain maximum pleasure from their hearths while at the same time making the most effective use of this source of supplemental heat during the energy shortage.

A standard cord of firewood is a stack of wood 4 by 8 by 4 feet (128 cubic feet). However, when buying from a wood-lot supplier, you will most likely be buying a face cord — one that is 8 feet long by 4 feet high but only as deep as the length of the logs — perhaps as little as 12 inches. In that case, you are buying only one-fourth of the standard cord. In 24-inch lengths, a face cord measures just half a standard cord, etc.

In some parts of the country firewood is sold by the ton. If you buy wood by weight, instead of volume, make sure that the wood is dry (not exceeding 12 percent moisture). Otherwise, you will be paying for water. Request winter-cut wood because it is drier from the start.

How does a ton of wood compare with a cord? Let's assume that you buy white oak. A cord containing 12 per cent moisture content wood will weigh approximately 4,200 pounds, or just in excess of two tons. Weights per cord vary from white pine (2,250 pounds) to hickory (4,600 pounds). When you get freshly cut wood, then the weights increase to 3,240 pounds and 5,670 pounds respectively — roughly one-half ton per cord of additional moisture!

Choosing the right kind of firewood to burn in your fireplace is a highly individual matter. Some woods ignite easily but burn fast and with poor heat output. Others, such as the heavier hardwoods, are slow starting, long lasting and have very high heat output.

Knowing characteristics of various woods, the buyer may want to secure a mixed cord or ton — some easy starting logs which can be split into kindling and some high heat sustaining logs.

When kindling is needed, short lengths of a straight-grained wood, such as cottonwood, aspen, fir and pine will split easily and start quickly. Once this material is burning virgorously, then hot-burning hickory, oak, locust, maple, birch or ash logs may be added. The U.S. Forest Service recommends four logs at a time for a proper size, relatively attention-free fire in the average fireplace.

If your nose rules your selection of firewoods, then obtain apple, cherry beech, hickory or pecan logs. Their smoke usually resembles the fragrance of the tree's fruit. But be prepared to pay more than for the standard woods. However, you should have a few of these more expensive logs on hand for these special ocasions ,when atmosphere is more important than a litle money going up in smoke.

You will achieve just a completely opposite effect of a pleasant aroma if your throw plastic articles, poison ivy twigs or stems, or wood treated with creosote or other preservatives on the fire. So discarded telephone poles, bridge pilings and railroad ties are a "no-no". Many individuals are extremely sensitive to even small amounts of the toxic smoke from these burning materials.

From a safety standpoint, resinous woods (hemlock, larch, spruce and juniper) should be used in moderation. These woods contain moisture pockets which, when heated, explode with great vigor. Should the fireplace screen happen to be open, a bit or should a "pop" occur while tending the fire, you could end up with a burned carpet or worse yet, a burned bystander.

But with good woods, a properly engineered fireplace equipped with a fine mesh screen, and average care, the art of burning wood can provide a world of pleasure. So throw another log on the fire to keep the heart aglow, and turn the lights down low. Watch the dancing flames and relax.

For more information on fireplaces and their enjoyment, write Heatilator Fireplace, 50 W. Saunders, Mt. Pleasant, Iowa 52641.

Roofing Questions Answered

Q: My roofing contractor says I need a new roof, but I don't know what kind of shingles to have him install. Can you help?

A: More than 80 per cent of American homes have asphalt shingles. There are also wood shingles, shakes, slate, tile, aluminum, and asbestos-cement shingles — to name most of the types you'll encounter.

Q: Why do most homes have asphalt shingles?

A: This type is highly practical and economical. It has excellent fire-resistant qualities, resists wind damage, comes in a wide variety of colors, requires little maintenance, lasts a long time and is priced modestly for the service it gives.

Q: Is there anything I can do to have better protection against fire?

Wood Paneling Helps Win Battle Of Bulge

Create More Useable Space

Throughout the U.S., a modern-day Battle of the Bulge is being fought. Pitted against the growing family's need for more room is the high cost of moving to larger quarters.

A winning strategy employed by the embattled homeowner is to create that extra space in his present home, by converting storage space to living accommodations. By remodeling your basement or attic, you can create a den bedroom or playroom.

Transforming a "junk" room into one that is attractive and inviting can be expensive, of course. But you can reduce the cost significantly by effecting the change with a new line of paneling called "Nature Walls", from Boise Cascade Corporation.

Nature Walls are made from Lauans hardwoods. Since lauans have little natural grain pattern, Boise Cascade is able to imprint and emboss on them the most beautiful of the domestic hardwood grain patterns, such as pecan, birch, walnut and oak. The result is a panel that has all the durability and beauty of expensive domestic hardwoods, but which costs only a fraction of their price.

As a homeowner, you're naturally concerned about conserving energy in your new room. Boise Casade suggests your insulating it as the first step in the remodeling project. You can do this yourself, using insulation that comes in rolls, in widths that fit comfortably between studs and rafters. (FHA recommends 3" insulation in sidewalls, 6" in ceilings.)

Once you've completed insulating, you're ready to begin paneling. If you're a novice, you may wince at the idea of undertaking this project yourself, yet the single biggest saving in remodeling can come from substituting your labor for that of professionals.

If you do decide to do-it-yourself, Boise Cascade recommends contracting out the sophisticated jobs such as wiring and plumbing. Then, armed with the company's "Start to Finish: How to Apply Paneling" guide, tackle the job yourself.

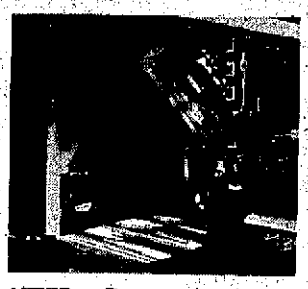

The guide illustrates step-by-step a method of installing paneling that will help you achieve professional-looking results. It includes a list of tools you'll need for the job, how to measure your room to order the paneling, tips on handling problems areas such as vents, furnaces and water heaters and suggests the molding you'll need to complete the project.

To order Boise Cascade's "How to Apply Paneling" guide, simply write Boise Cascade Building Materials Group, P.O. Box 2885, Portland, Oregon 97208, and include 25c to cover the cost of handling.

Vegetable Transplants

EAST LANSING — There are pros and cons on growing one's own vegetable transplants, according to Michigan State university horticulturists. Pro: A much wider choice of varieties you grow from seed than is available from nurseries. Con: Raising plants from seed indoors calls for sterile soil and 16-18 hours of artificial light daily.

BEFORE: Planning pays off in remodeling. Owners of this 140-year-old Oregon farmhouse took careful measurements before ordering paneling and also noted venting and wiring requirements in their attic. Insulation added to ceiling guards against heat loss during winter.

AFTER: Transforming their neglected attic into a cozy nook was achieved for relatively little financial outlay, thanks to Boise Cascade Summit paneling, a triple printed and embossed rustic panel on lauan. A skylight over the stairwell helps bring the room alive.

THE PERFECT FLEXIBLE paint sander is Grind-O-Flex Abrasive Flap Wheel. Thousands of abrasive flaps per minute will not load up. Can be used on wood, iron railings.

Cleaning Up Painted Sash Simple With New Flexible Grinding Wheel

Clean-up and feather-edging of exteror painted sash and trim surfaces around the home, prior to repainting, can now be done in less time with Merit's flexible Grind-O-Flex Wheel.

Thousands of industrial abrasive cloth flaps per minute sand flat, round or slightly curved surfaces. Grind-O-Flex has the unique advantage of not loading up with paint. Also easier to use and more efficient than wire brushing.

The Grind-O-Flex Wheel has dozens of uses around the house. You can sand wood and ornamental iron railings. Sand gutters prior to repainting. Rusted garden and workshop tools can be easily cleaned.

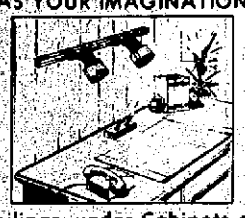

Grind-O-Flex can be used on bench motors and ¼" and ⅜" portable drill motors. A 5" diameter x 1" wide wheel is available in a choice of fine, medium and coarse grits for about $5 from hardware stores.

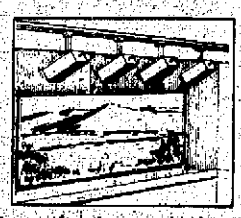

If not available from a local source Meritwill fill small orders. Please add $1.25 for postage and handling. A free home workshop brochure full of sanding hints for the hobbyist and home owner is available by writing Consumer Dept. MN, Merit Abrasive Products, Inc., 201 W. ## Riverfront Plant Lease Terminated

By TOM RENNER
South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — A concrete mixing plant which has been located on city of South Haven property along the Black river for more than two decades was ordered to vacate the premises within a year.

The South Haven city council voted unanimously to terminate its lease with South Haven Redi-Mix, Inc. for the one acre tract on the north side of the river near the Dyckman avenue bridge.

The lease, which would have run until July 1, 1979, allows either party to terminate with a one year notice. The firm has been paying the city $2,700 per year to use the property.

City officials said they believe the property would be better utilized for recreation purposes.

The property has been used for mixing concrete since 1954 when Tony Canonie of South Haven constructed the plant. Its current owner, Timothy Horan purchased the business from Canonie in March, 1955.

Horan also owns concrete mixing plants in Watervliet and St. Joseph. The South Haven facility is the smallest of the three.

Horan said he owns property in South Haven township that he believes could be developed into a plant. He said the riverfront property was initially ideal for his operation because it allowed ships to deliver raw materials in large quantities. The increase of pleasure craft and recreation-oriented activities in recent years has reduced the amount of property available for storing the materials, according to Horan. His firm has not received a shipment by boat in several years.

In a related matter, the council referred to the planning commission a request from Rowland Sylvester of South Haven that Horan be allowed to sub-lease a parcel of the city's property to him for a proposed Lake Michigan maritime museum. Sylvester is already leasing other nearby property from private owners.

Sylvester is seeking to sub-lease a parcel measuring 95 feet by 45 feet long the water's edge. He proposes to locate a floating dock along the property and moor boats including a fishing tug that would comprise a maritime museum.

The proposal received a cold shoulder from at least one alderman. First ward alderman Matthew Goerg said he didn't see anything "romantic" about a fishing tug.

"This community is constantly plagued by things that lack beauty and as far as I'm concerned fish tugs fall into the same category," said Goerg who owns a marina downriver.

The proposed museum has been endorsed as a community Bicentennial project and recognized by the national Bicentennial commission because of its uniqueness.

In other matters, council by a 5-2 vote approved a $976 appropriation for the local Bicentennial celebration. The planning committee had requested a city contribution of $7,843 towards its $40,882 budget.

City fathers trimmed a $5,000 honorarium for the director of the program. They also said the proposed expenditure of $1,242 to redecorate the upstairs of the former recreation building could be expended through other department funds and that a $625 expense on the Fourth of July parade was already appropriated for the Blueberry Festival committee.

Opposed to the appropriation were aldermen Robert Warren and Joseph Seiler. In favor were Mayor Richard Lewis and aldermen Goerg, Wilbur Ingham, Ronald Kozlik and Norvan Books.

The council by a 5 to 1 vote adopted an ordinance prohibiting smoking in the council chambers of city hall. Warren cast the dissenting vote.

Assessor Howard McDougall reported that the city's assessed real estate valuation dropped $360,175 to $25,696,975 during the past year. He said there was $800,925 in new construction during 1975.

The new business tax also caused the city's personal property value to drop $5,990,150 to $4,106,850. The city hopes to recoup revenue generated previously from the personal property tax from the state.

Mrs. Heald's husband leased the property from the city for a 10-year period in 1941, but through apparent oversight it was never renewed.

Mayor Lewis noted that Mrs. Heald is currently sub-leasing the hangar to another party at a substantially higher amount than the $25 per year she pays the city. City Manager Albert Pierce was instructed to negotiate purchase of the building from Mrs. Heald.

The council established a committee of aldermen Goerg, Ingham, Kozlik and Mayor Lewis to conduct an operations study of the airport.

It set May 3 at 8 p.m. for a public hearing to present a proposed new zoning ordinance.

Goerg was appointed council representative to the Board of Public Utilities.

The council referred to the Board of Public Utilities a recommendation that the old power plant be demolished and that debris be used for Lake Michigan shoreline erosion control.

PLANT MUST MOVE: South Haven city council last night cancelled lease of city-owned property with South Haven Redi-Mix company saying riverfront land would be better used for recreation purposes. Company, which has been located there for 22 years, has one year to move. (Tom Renner photo)

South Haven Ready To Name New Chief

SOUTH HAVEN — The announcement of the appointment of a new South Haven police chief is expected later this week, according to City Manager Albert Pierce. The city council during a closed executive session last night authorized Pierce to offer a contract to a Toledo, Ohio, man, whom it will not identify until an agreement is negotiated. The council also selected a second choice should the first decline the job.

The new police chief will succeed Otto Barlow who in January announced his intentions to retire. Two different citizens committees screened 365 applicants for the position.

'Everyone' Liked Slain Engineer

By JOHN DYE
South Berrien Bureau

ELKHART, Ind. — Police here said today they are baffled over the slaying yesterday of a Niles railroad engineer described as, "an ideal employe who was liked by everyone." Dave Pennington, police detective commander, said no motive has been established and there are no suspects in the shooting death of James McCrory, 50, Niles, at the old Penn Central railroad Robert Young yard.

Pennington said police are investigating a possible connection with two previous shootings at the yard since 1968, but no definite link between them and yesterday's slaying has been found.

McCrory, a 30-year employe of the railroad, was found slumped over on the floor of a train engine cab shortly after 1 a.m. yesterday by a student engineer, Rex Raymer of Elkhart, police said. Police had previously described Raymer as a fireman for the railroad.

Raymer told police he left McCrory to walk to the nearby diesel shops in the yard, talked briefly with fellow employes, and returned to the cab where he found the slain engineer.

Pennington said police have established that McCrory was shot in the right side of the head as he stood in the cab. He added that police are awaiting the results of an autopsy conducted yesterday to determine whether McCrory was shot at close range or from a distance. Pennington said police have not determined what type of murder weapon was used.

McCrory was, "an ideal employe, a real professional who was liked and respected by everyone," Pennington said an all day investigation revealed. He said police are baffled as to why anyone would want to murder McCrory.

Pennington described the mood of other employes at the yard as "a little tense" following the death.

He said employes were fearful of another shooting, but work at the yard continues at a normal pace.

The yard is now under control of the federal Conrail railroad system.

The two previous shootings occurred Aug. 6, 1968, when Wesley Marshall, 51, another Niles railroader, was killed by a shotgun blast, and on March 30, 1971, when two Penn Central employes, John Lewis Sayne, 46, New Buffalo, and Rudy Bladel, 38, of Elkhart, were wounded in an altercation at the yard. Bladel was convicted of assault with intent to kill in connection with the 1971 shooting and was released from an Indiana prison last year after serving time for the conviction. The 1968 slaying remains unsolved.

Also surviving are two sons, Patrick and Michael, both of Niles; his father, Charles McCrory, Niles; two brothers, Charles and Louis, both of Niles, and one grandchild.

He was a lifelong Niles resident and a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Buchanan Moose lodge and the St. Mary's Catholic church, Niles.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. Wednesday, at the Halbritter funeral home, Niles. Burial will be at Silverbrook cemetery, Niles.

Elk Rapids Okays Millage

ELK RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Residents of the Elk Rapids school district on Monday approved 12.7 mills for operations.

The operating millage passed 522 to 474. But efforts to add one-half mill for both bus operations and a building fund lost.

Parking Taboo Is Considered

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Parking would be forbidden within 500 feet of fires outside of villages and cities under legislation headed for the Senate. The House Monday passed the bill sponsored by Rep. Ernest Nash, R-Dimondale, 99-0.

Millage Proposal Beaten In Bangor

BANGOR — Bangor city residents yesterday defeated a property tax proposal earmarked for snow removal and sidewalk repair, and elected a mayor and three councilmen.

The millage issue, which sought one mill for three years and a half-mill for two years, was defeated by an unofficial count of 130 to 57. The mill would have raised $7,800 yearly.

In the race for the three, two-year council seats, newcomer David Rignozzi Jr., Bangor postmaster, captured 196 votes to lead the winners. Incumbents David Wright and Harold Lafler, polled 171 and 160, respectively, in being re-elected. Larry Woodley was the loser with 75 votes.

Incumbent Mayor James McLarty received 176 votes. He was unopposed for re-election. One person received two write-in votes, and two people received one write-in vote each for mayor. One person also received one write-in vote for city council.

A total of 231 (25 per cent) of the city's 937 registered voters turned out. There were two spoiled ballots, election officials reported.

SCHOLARSHIP: Kevin Griffendorf, River Valley high school senior, has been awarded a $1,000 renewable scholarship from Adrian college, Adrian. He is son of Mr. and Mrs. James Griffendorf, 306 East Michigan street, Three Oaks. ## Seven Fathers Put On Probation

By SCOTT WIALLIAMSON
Staff Writer

Seven delinquent fathers, including one who has not made a child support payment in six years, were all placed on probation when sentenced Monday by Berrien Circuit Judge Julian E. Hughes.

Edward Pastrick, special investigator for the Berrien friend of the court's office, reported each father was held in contempt of court and placed on two years probation. Sentenced were:

Ivan McKinney, of North Red Bud trail, Buchanan, for $10,565 arrears, originally for six children not on ADC when the order was entered but most recently for only one child. He was told to pay $25 weekly towards the arrearage, but no child support was ordered since the one child now lives with him. Pastrick said McKinney has not made a support payment since November, 1970.

Donald Koern, of 109 Fourth street, Berrien Springs, was ordered to pay $50 immediately and $13 weekly support for an arrearage of $1,378 for one child not on ADC.

Anthony Workman, of 2157 South Third street, Niles, for $1,102 arrears for one child not on ADC. He was told to sign a wage assignment of $38 weekly support plus $5 each week towards the arrearage.

Johnnie S. McDaniel, Jr., of 1115 Castner street, Berrien Springs, for $645 arrears for one child on ADC. He was ordered to pay $15 weekly support and $5 weekly on the arrearage.

Stacy T. Scott, Jr., of California road, New Troy, for $575 arrears for one child not on ADC, and was ordered to sign a wage assignment of $10 weekly support and $5 each week on the arrearage.

Robert Cornelius, Jr., of 2285 Kurt road, Benton Harbor, for $2,192 arrears for two children on ADC. He was told to sign a wage assignment of $20 support per week plus $10 weekly towards the arrearage.

Gale Gillenwater, of Snyder road, Benton Harbor, for $2,404 arrears for one child on ADC. He was ordered to pay $80 immediately and $15 weekly support and $10 weekly on the arrearage.

Milliken Proclamation Notes 3,000-Year-Old Sales Method

The chant of the auctioneer has sounded since before 1000 B.C. until today it is more popular than ever and the practice is growing rapidly, Gov. William G. Milliken has proclaimed this week "National Auctioneers Week." John Glassman of Eau Claire, past president of the Michigan Auctioneers association, noted that National Auctioneers week recognizes that the auction way of selling is one of the oldest methods of bartering known to man, dating back to before 1,000 B.C. The governor's executive declaration notes that more than 60 per cent of all meat animals are marketed via the auction route and many other food products including fruits, vegetables, eggs and produce, fish and other commodities, are also marketed by auction. Liquidation sales of all types, including businesses, farm and estate sales, also are very popular. Glassman said auctioneers of Michigan and the nation are striving to render better services to their clients through mutual exchanges of ideas and experiences. They conduct their businesses according to the code of ethics set out by the National Auctioneers association, Glassman said.

Bridgman Will Establish Compensation Panel

BRIDGMAN — The Bridgman city commission last night voted final approval for a measure establishing a five-member compensation commission which will establish salaries for elected city officials. The five members, all to be appointed by Mayor Ronald Gelesko with city commission approval, will serve five-year terms on the compensation commission. The ordinance creating the compensation commission is to go into effect April 26.

Commissioner Alfred Tollas cast the only vote against creating the commission. He said the city charter stipulates that commissioners are to receive $100 a year, and he said it was his opinion that any salary changes should be up to city voters. Voting in favor of the compensation commission were Gelesko, Charles Gilmore, Vernon Stanard, James Catania and Mrs. Marilynn Stanard. James Bembenek was absent.

In other areas, a motion to continue prohibiting right-on-red turns from Lake street onto Red Arrow highway was defeated because of a tied vote. The matter was put up for a vote after it was noted that the sign prohibiting right-on-red turns had blown down. The commission originally agreed to install the sign last January.

Voting against continuing the prohibition were Gilmore, Stanard and Gelesko. Those in favor of retaining the prohibition were Catania, Tollas and Mrs. Stanard. The commission voted final approval for an ordinance prohibiting the use of snowmobiles on city streets or city owned property.

The commission agreed to share repair costs with Lake township on the Rambo railroad crossing. Mrs. Stanard, who is chairman of the park committee, said people seeking summer employment must turn their applications into city hall no later than April 12.

She also noted that the city had hired a ranger for Weko beach this summer who is a graduate of the University of Missouri. She said a temporary boat ramp made of slag and costing about $600 will be installed at the beach.

Mrs. Josephine Gilmore, chairman of the library board, told commissioners the library would need additional funding if it is to grow with the community. She asked the commission to restore to the library funding from up to a one mill levy. The request was tabled for further study.

Commissioners appointed three people to three-year terms on the planning commission. They were Gino Trame, Richard Renken and Donald Wilson.

Riverfront Plant Lease Terminated

By TOM RENNER
South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — A concrete mixing plant which has been located on city of South Haven property along the Black river for more than two decades was ordered to vacate the premises within a year.

The South Haven city council voted unanimously to terminate its lease with South Haven Redi-Mix, Inc. for the one acre tract on the north side of the river near the Dyckman avenue bridge.

The lease, which would have run until July 1, 1979, allows either party to terminate with a one year notice. The firm has been paying the city $2,700 per year to use the property.

City officials said they believe the property would be better utilized for recreation purposes.

The property has been used for mixing concrete since 1954 when Tony Canonie of South Haven constructed the plant. Its current owner, Timothy Horan purchased the business from Canonie in March, 1955.

Horan also owns concrete mixing plants in Watervliet and St. Joseph. The South Haven facility is the smallest of the three.

Horan said he owns property in South Haven township that he believes could be developed into a plant. He said the riverfront property was initially ideal for his operation because it allowed ships to deliver raw materials in large quantities. The increase of pleasure craft and recreation-oriented activities in recent years has reduced the amount of property available for storing the materials, according to Horan. His firm has not received a shipment by boat in several years.

In a related matter, the council referred to the planning commission a request from Rowland Sylvester of South Haven that Horan be allowed to sub-lease a parcel of the city's property to him for a proposed Lake Michigan maritime museum. Sylvester is already leasing other nearby property from private owners.

Sylvester is seeking to sub-lease a parcel measuring 95 feet by 45 feet long the water's edge. He proposes to locate a floating dock along the property and moor boats including a fishing tug that would comprise a maritime museum.

The proposal received a cold shoulder from at least one alderman. First ward alderman Matthew Goerg said he didn't see anything "romantic" about a fishing tug.

"This community is constantly plagued by things that lack beauty and as far as I'm concerned fish tugs fall into the same category," said Goerg who owns a marina downriver.

The proposed museum has been endorsed as a community Bicentennial project and recognized by the national Bicentennial commission because of its uniqueness.

In other matters, council by a 5-2 vote approved a $976 appropriation for the local Bicentennial celebration. The planning committee had requested a city contribution of $7,843 towards its $46,682 budget.

City fathers trimmed a $5,000 honorarium for the director of the program. They also said the proposed expenditure of $1,242 to redecorate the upstairs of the former recreation building could be expended through other department funds and that a $625 expense on the Fourth of July parade was already appropriated for the Blueberry Festival committee.

Opposed to the appropriation were aldermen Robert Warren and Joseph Seiler. In favor were Mayor Richard Lewis and aldermen Goerg, Wilbur Ingrham, Ronald Kozlik and Norvan Books.

The council by a 5 to 1 vote adopted an ordinance prohibiting smoking in the council chambers of city hall. Warren cast the dissenting vote.

Assessor Howard McDougall reported that the city's assessed real estate valuation dropped $300,175 to $25,696,975 during the past year. He said there was $900,925 in new construction during 1975.

The new business tax also caused the city's personal property value to drop $5,990,150 to $4,106,850. The city hopes to recoup revenue generated previously from the personal property tax from the state.

Mrs. Heald's husband leased the property from the city for a 10-year period in 1941, but through apparent oversight it was never renewed.

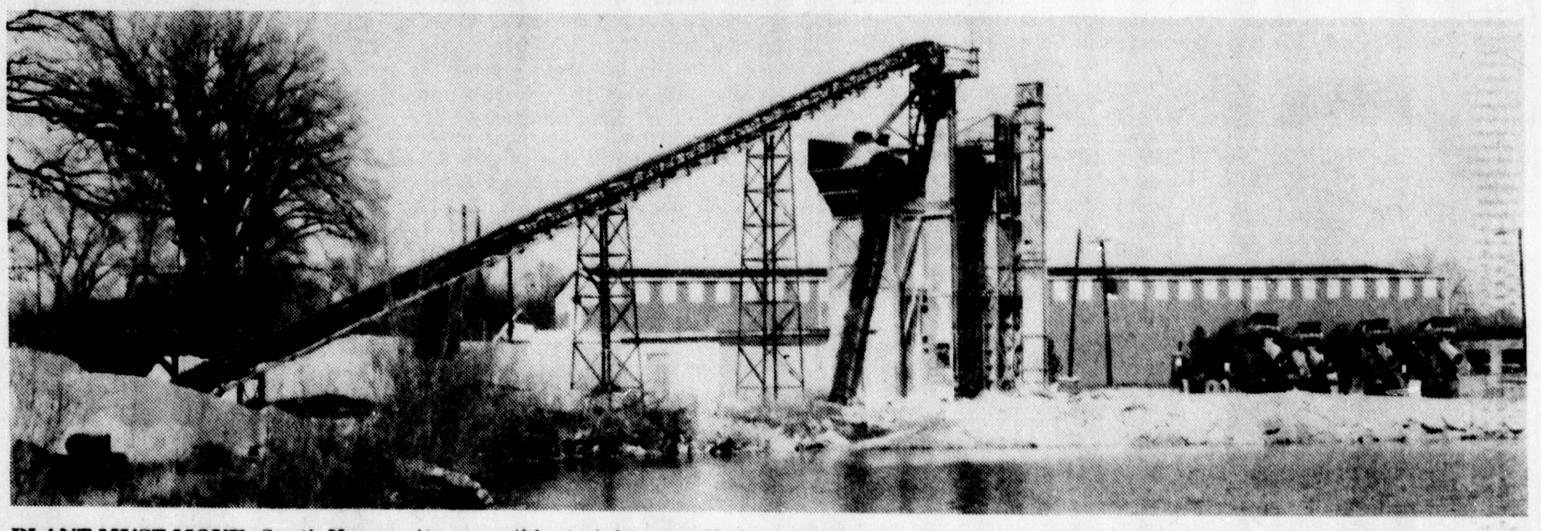

Mayor Lewis noted that Mrs. Heald is currently sub-leasing the hangar to another party at a substantially higher amount than the $25 per year she pays the city. City Manager Albert Pierce was instructed to negotiate purchase of the building from Mrs. Heald.

The council established a committee of aldermen Goerg, Ingrham, Kozlik and Mayor Lewis to conduct an operations study of the airport.

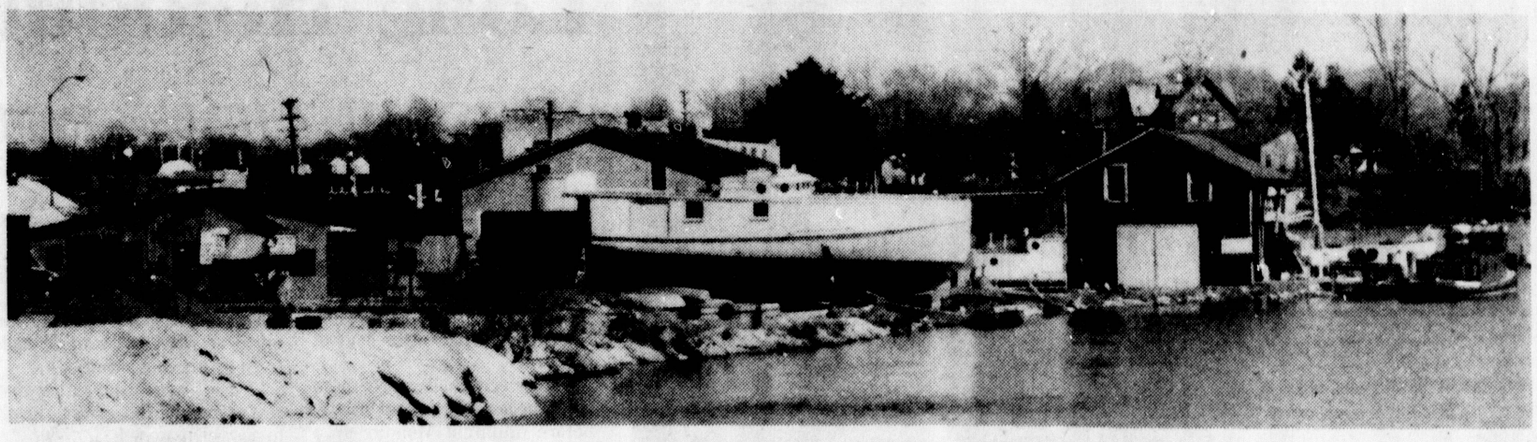

It set May 3 at 8 p.m. for a public hearing to present a proposed new zoning ordinance.

Goerg was appointed council representative to the Board of Public Utilities.

The council referred to the Board of Public Utilities a recommendation that the old power plant be demolished and that debris be used for Lake Michigan shoreline erosion control.

PLANT MUST MOVE: South Haven city council last night cancelled lease of city-owned property with South Haven Redi-Mix company saying riverfront land would be better used for recreation purposes. Company, which has been located there for 22 years, has one year to move. (Tom Renner photo)

'Everyone' Liked Slain Engineer

By JOHN DYE
South Berrien Bureau

ELKHART, Ind. — Police here said today they are baffled over the slaying yesterday of a Niles railroad engineer described as, "an ideal employe who was liked by everyone." Dave Pennington, police detective commander, said no motive has been established and there are no suspects in the shooting death of James McCrory, 50, Niles, at the old Penn Central railroad Robert Young yard.

Pennington said police are investigating a possible connection with two previous shootings at the yard since 1968, but no definite link between them and yesterday's slaying has been found.

McCrory, a 30-year employe of the railroad, was found slumped over on the floor of a train engine cab shortly after 1 a.m. yesterday by a student engineer, Rex Raymer of Elkhart, police said. Police had previously described Raymer as a fireman for the railroad.

Raymer told police he left McCrory to walk to the nearby diesel shops in the yard, talked briefly with fellow employes, and returned to the cab where he found the slain engineer.

Pennington said police have established that McCrory was shot in the right side of the head as he stood in the cab. He added that police are awaiting the results of an autopsy conducted yesterday to determine whether McCrory was shot at close range or from a distance. Pennington said police have not determined what type of murder weapon was used.

McCrory was, "an ideal employe, a real professional who was liked and respected by everyone," Pennington said an all day investigation revealed. He said police are baffled as to why anyone would want to murder McCrory.

Pennington described the mood of other employes at the yard as "a little tense" following the death.

He said employes were fearful of another shooting, but work at the yard continues at a normal pace.

The qard is now under control of the federal Conrail railroad system.

The two previous shootings occurred Aug. 6, 1968, when Wesley Marshall, 51, another Niles railroader, was killed by a shotgun blast, and on March 30, 1971, when two Penn Central employes, John Lewis Sayne, 46, New Buffalo, and Rudy Bladel, 38, of Elkhart, were wounded in an altercation at the yard. Bladel was convicted of assault with intent to kill in connection with the 1971 shooting and was released from an Indiana prison last year after serving time for the conviction. The 1968 slaying remains unsolved.

South Haven Ready To Name New Chief

SOUTH HAVEN — The announcement of the appointment of a new South Haven police chief is expected later this week, according to City Manager Albert Pierce. The city council during a closed executive session last night authorized Pierce to offer a contract to a Toledo, Ohio, man, whom it will not identify until an agreement is negotiated. The council also selected a second choice should the first decline the job.

The new police chief will succeed Otto Buelow who in January announced his intentions to retire. Two different citizens committees screened 365 applicants for the position.

Rogers, Heathcote New MSU Head Coaches

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — San Jose State University football coach Darryl Rogers and University of Montana basketball coach Judd Heathcote were named Monday to new coaching spots at troubled Michigan State University.

DARRYL ROGERS

Rogers, 40, replaces former MSU football coach Denny Stolz who resigned last month under pressure from MSU President Clifton Wharton, reportedly because Stolz knew of an athletic slush fund at the school.

Rogers' appointment, just days before spring practice is to open, is the latest step to purge MSU of the elements which brought the school a three-year probation from the NCAA for 34 violations in its football program.

In a telephone interview, Rogers said the scandal that has plagued the football program was a concern to him when he was considering taking the post.

But he said his attitude is that the program has a new coach and is getting off to a new start.

"I can't worry about all that stuff," said Rogers. "You have to take things from the start."

He added, "I think you consider those things, but Michigan State is a fine institution, both academically and athletically."

Had he taken a close look at the controversy surrounding MSU's football program? "No," said Rogers. "To tell you the truth, I don't know anything about it." He said he met the selection committee in Chicago last Saturday for the interview.

Heathcote, 48, replaces Gus Ganakas, whose one-year contract was not renewed by the MSU board of trustees after Ganakas headed seven years of mediocre basketball.

Asked whether he foresees the kind of racial problem Ganakas experienced when black team members refused to play two seasons ago, Heathcote said, "I'm sure that we're not going to have a black walkout.

"I do not envision problems with squad members," he said. "If the lines of communication are kept open and the players know where they stand and what's expected of them, I do not envision any problems whatsoever."

The appointments Monday came only three weeks after announcement of the vacancies. They came three days after the arrival at MSU of new athletic director Joseph Kearney.

Kearney recommended the men to Wharton and the trustees following weekend interviews. They are expected to be confirmed at a board of trustees meeting April 16.

Speculation had centered on candidates other than Rogers and Heathcote as top contenders for the coaching spots. But both Rogers and Heathcote have led their teams to recent championships and drawn up records heavy with victories.

The two will have longer and more lucrative contracts than their predecessors. Rogers receives a five-year contract at $34,500 a year, and Heathcote a four-year contract at $25,000 a year.

MSU President Wharton called them "men of outstanding talent and reputation.

"Together with our new athletic director, they represent a new direction in MSU athletics, one that will put behind us the negative revelations of recent months and accentuate a positive return to the integrity and high repute in athletics that I have promised," Wharton said.

While a Big Ten probe of the MSU football program continues, an internal investigation by MSU faculty members found evidence of a slush fund that may date back to the 1950s. Though MSU officials have not commented on the record about the fund, it allegedly involved more than $100,000 and was used to reward athletes.

Rogers has coached football at San Jose State in California for three years, where he whipped up a record of 22 victories, 9 losses and three ties. Last fall his team had a 9-2 record and was champions of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association.

Asked about his plans for the MSU football team, Rogers said, "I know they have some good players. After we evaluate, then we'll set some goals."

Rogers began his football career at Fresno State University, where he was a wide receiver and defensive back from 1955-57. He played pro football for two years, and later coached football at Fresno State from 1967-73, when he moved to San Jose University.

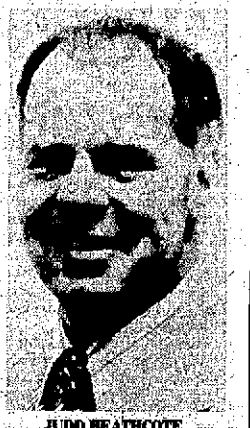

Earlier spots included Hayward State College where he was defensive backfield coach from 1961-63. He was head football coach there until he took the head coaching job at Fresno State.

Heathcote coached at the University of Montana for five years, in which his teams compiled 78 victories and 53 losses. In 1975 he won the school's first Big Sky Conference title, with a 21-8 record, and his squad lost by three points to eventual winner UCLA in the NCAA tournament.

Heathcote began coaching high school basketball in 1950. He became assistant coach at Washington State University in 1964 and Montana hired him as head coach in 1971.

He was assistant coach of the United State team in the 1975 Pan American games.

Heathcote said he favors a fast break and a pattern offense, not necessarily high scoring, and "a good tough defense."

San Francisco Obtains Plunkett

"Obtaining Jim Plunkett is a vital cornerstone toward building the kind of club we want the 49ers to become," new 49ers Coach Monte Clark said Monday after the trade with the New England Patriots finally was formalized.

"I'm glad to be back," said Plunkett, the Heisman Trophy winning star of Stanford's 1970 Rose Bowl championship team.

San Francisco's home attendance dropped alurmingly last year and the acquisition of the popular local boy could help turn that situation around.

To get Plunkett, whose home town is nearby San Jose, the 49ers sent 23-year-old quarterback Tom Owen to the Patriots and also gave up their two first round choices in Thursday's National Football League draft and their first and second round choices next year.

"It was the price we felt it was necessary to pay to get a quarterback of Jim's quality," said Clark. He added that the 49ers must improve in several other areas, after three straight losing seasons, "but we want to get to the Super Bowl."

THE WORLD OF Sports

Chuck Fairbanks, the Patriots' coach and general manager, agreed that the 49ers had acquired "one of the premier quarterbacks in the NFL, coming into the prime of his career at 28 years old."

But Fairbanks has two fine young passing prospects in Steve Grogan, who filled in capably for the injured Plunkett most of 1975, and Owen. The Pats have three first round picks Thursday, getting to choose the fifth, 12th and 22nd college players available.

The 49ers and Patriots agreed on the trade two weeks ago, as was evident when San Francisco dealt veteran quarterback Steve Spurrier to Tampa Bay last Friday. An NFL trading moratorium was lifted last week, and the Plunkett deal was announced after the 28-year-old passer signed a three-year contract Monday.

Seaver Ends Long Holdout

Mets Say He's Highest Paid Pitcher In History

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Tom Seaver can take off the black hat. He's back in the family. His long, bitter holdout is over.

Seaver reached agreement with the New York Mets shortly before midnight Monday on a three-year contract which the Mets say will make him the highest paid pitcher in baseball history.

"Tom Seaver becomes the first pitcher in baseball history to make $200,000 a year," said M. Donald Grant, chairman of the Board of the Mets.

There have been reports that Ferguson Jenkins will be paid $200,000 by the Boston Red Sox this season, but Grant termed that figure inaccurate.

"This is the highest salary a baseball player has ever been paid to pitch," Grant said of the accord with the 31-year-old right-hander, who compiled a 22-9 record last season and won the Cy Young Award as the National League's premier pitcher for the third time in his stellar career.

Seaver, one of the most visible members of the Major League Baseball Players Association during the labor negotiations this spring, became the first official holdout in Mets history. He accused the team of trying to make him look like a villain, between his holdout and his union activity, but said he had to go by his convictions.

"I can't wear a black hat the rest of my life," he said. "I have to answer to myself."

The contract dispute between Seaver and Mets' management became acrimonious, to the point where reports circulated that he was on the trading block. One story had him going to the Los Angeles Dodgers in a package deal that would have brought Don Sutton, among others, to New York, and Seaver said that at one point he was "90 per cent certain that I would be traded."

Comet 'Fair' At Kalamazoo

George Grenon, 18, of 5510 Newton in Coloma, is listed in fair condition today at Borgess Hospital, Kalamazoo, with head injuries suffered at track practice last Friday afternoon.

Grenon, a senior who throws the shot and discus and runs the 220-yard dash for Coloma, was hit in the head by a shot in an accident.

Tanana Continues 'Improved' Pitching

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Frank Tanana is confident, brash, cocky and good.

"I want to increase everything this season but my ERA," says the 22-year-old lefthander, who'll be the starting pitcher for the California Angels on opening day.

Improving on his 1975 figures — a 16-9 won-lost record, a 2.62 earned run average and 269 strikeouts, tops in the American League — won't be easy. But if Tanana's preseason efforts are any indication, don't bet against him.

In 15 innings he has not allowed a single earned run. His final tuneup before pitching the season opener against Oakland Friday was against the Chicago Cubs Monday, and he allowed just four hits and one unearned run in seven innings.

The Angels backed Tanana's pitching with a 14-hit attack, highlighted by a three-run homer by Joe Lahoud and a two-run shot by Ed Herrmann.

Three other opening-day probable pitchers also turned in impressive tuneups Monday. Lynn McGlothen went the distance as the St. Louis Cardinals routed the Boston Red Sox 10-3; Wilbur Wood pitched eight strong innings as the Chicago White Sox beat the Atlanta Braves 6-3, and Mike Torrez made his first appearances for Oakland and pitched six innings as the A's defeated the San Diego Padres 7-4.

In other games, the Montreal Expos blanked the Kansas City Royals 8-0, Richmond of the International League shut out the Texas Rangers 10-0, the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 8-6, the Cleveland Indians topped the Milwaukee Brewers 8-5, the Detroit Tigers beat the Cincinnati Reds 3-2 in 11 innings, the Houston Astros outscored the Minnesota Twins 12-5 in the first baseball game in the Superdome in New Orleans, the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the San Francisco Giants 8-3 and the New York Yankees edged the New York Mets 3-2 in 11 innings.

McGlothen allowed just six hits and rode St. Louis' 18-hit barrage past Boston. "He's ready to open the season," observed Cards catcher Ted Simmons.

"I don't figure on him going nine innings again," conceded Manager Red Schoendienst, "but he threw only 98 pitches."

Lou Brock and Don Kessinger had four hits apiece and Bake McBride three for St. Louis. McBride is hitting .567 in exhibition play.

Wood, the veteran knuckleballer, also gave up just six hits in his stint against Atlanta. The White Sox won it with three runs in the seventh on a sacrifice fly by Brian Downing and a two-run single by Jack Brohamer.

Torrez, obtained by Oakland from Baltimore in the Reggie Jackson trade, gave up three runs and eight hits in his six-inning stint and then was named by A's Manager Chuck Tanner as Oakland's opening day pitcher. Billy Williams' three-run homer in the bottom of the ninth provided Oakland's margin of victory.

Woodie Fryman and Dan Warthen of Montreal stopped Kansas City on two hits. Fryman, who has not given up a run in 13 innings this spring, allowed one single over the first five innings and Warthen allowed just one single over the final four.

George Beall and Dale Murphy hit three-run homers to help Richmond beat Texas. Dave Cash's two-run highlighted a five-run eighth inning that carried the Phillies past Pittsburgh. Rick Manning's three hits and three RBIs led the Indians past Milwaukee.

The Dodgers pounded John D'Acquisto for four runs in the fourth inning to defeat the Giants. Houston topped the Twins in the first baseball game ever played in the $163 million Superdome in New Orleans, which drew a crowd of 10,073. Thurman Munson's RBI single in the 11th drove in the winning run for the Yankees. A bases-loaded single by rookie Jerry Manuel knocked in the winning run for the Tigers.

In major signings, the Mets agreed to terms with Cy Young Award winning pitcher Tom Seaver on a three-year contract which the Mets say will make Seaver "the highest paid pitcher in baseball history," and San Francisco signed outfielder Bobby Murcer for a reported $175,000, making him the highest paid player in Giants history.

Among the roster cuts announced Monday were pitcher Dennis Blair, by the Montreal Expos; veteran pitcher Clalide Oglein and outfielder Nyls Nyman, by the Chicago White Sox; shortstop Craig Reynolds, who had been batting .391 in spring play, by the Pittsburgh Pirates; pitcher Dave Lemanczyk, by the Detroit Tigers; pitcher Oscar Zamora, by the Chicago Cubs, and first baseman Jim Holt and pinch runner Don Hopkins, by the Oakland A's.

In other moves, the Cincinnati Reds sold veteran outfielder Merv Rettenmund to the San Diego Padres and obtained shortstop Rudy Meoli from the Padres' minor league system for their Indianapolis farm club, and the New York Yankees placed center fielder Elliott Maddox, who still has not recovered from knee surgery, on the 21-day disabled list.

Don Hopkins Cut By A's

Former Benton Harbor standout Don Hopkins was among the players cut Monday by the Oakland A's.

Hopkins played in 82 games for Oakland last year, virtually all as a pinch-runner. The 6-1, 175-pounder scored 25 runs and stole 21 bases. He batted just six times with one hit, a single.

Hopkins also appeared in 24 games at Tucson, Ariz. (Class AAA) and batted .259 with 15 stolen bases.

Now 24, Hopkins was sent to Oakland's minor league camp in Tucson for reassignment.

Rogers, Heathcote New MSU Head Coaches

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — San Jose State University football coach Darryl Rogers and University of Montana basketball coach Judd Heathcote were named Monday to new coaching spots at troubled Michigan State University.

DARRYL ROGERS

Rogers, 40, replaces former MSU football coach Denny Stolz who resigned last month under pressure from MSU President Clifton Wharton, reportedly because Stolz knew of an athletic slush fund at the school.

Rogers' appointment, just days before spring practice is to open, is the latest step to purge MSU of the elements which brought the school a three-year probation from the NCAA for 34 violations in its football program.

In a telephone interview, Rogers said the scandal that has plagued the football program was a concern to him when he was considering taking the post.

But he said his attitude is that the program has a new coach and is getting off to a new start.

"I can't worry about all that stuff," said Rogers. "You have to take things from the start."

He added, "I think you consider those things, but Michigan State is a fine institution, both academically and athletically."

Had he taken a close look at the controversy surrounding MSU's football program? "No," said Rogers. "To tell you the truth, I don't know anything about it." He said he met the selection committee in Chicago last Saturday for the interview.

Heathcote, 48, replaces Gus Ganakas, whose one-year contract was not renewed by the MSU board of trustees after Ganakas headed seven years of mediocre basketball.

Asked whether he foresees the kind of racial problem Ganakas experienced when black team members refused to play two seasons ago, Heathcote said, "I'm sure that we're not going to have a black walkout.

"I do not envision problems with squad members," he said. "If the lines of communication are kept open and the players know where they stand and what's expected of them, I do not envision any problems whatsoever."

The appointments Monday came only three weeks after announcement of the vacancies. They came three days after the arrival at MSU of new athletic director Joseph Kearney.

Kearney recommended the men to Wharton and the trustees following weekend interviews. They are expected to be confirmed at a board of trustees meeting April 16.

Speculation had centered on candidates other than Rogers and Heathcote as top contenders for the coaching spots. But both Rogers and Heathcote have led their teams to recent championships, and drawn up records heavy with victories.

The two will have longer and more lucrative contracts than their predecessors. Rogers receives a five-year contract at $34,500 a year, and Heathcote a four-year contract at $25,000 a year.

MSU President Wharton called them "men of outstanding talent and reputation.

"Together with our new athletic director, they represent a new direction in MSU athletics, one that will put behind us the negative revelations of recent months and accentuate a positive return to the integrity and high repute in athletics that I have promised," Wharton said.

While a Big Ten probe of the MSU football program continues, an internal investigation by MSU faculty members found evidence of a slush fund that may date back to the 1950s. Though MSU officials have not commented on the record about the fund, it allegedly involved more than $100,000 and was used to reward athletes.

Rogers has coached football at San Jose State in California for three years, where he whipped up a record of 22 victories, 9 losses and three ties. Last fall his team had a 9-2 record and was champions of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association.

Asked about his plans for the MSU football team, Rogers said, "I know they have some good players. After we evaluate, then we'll set some goals."

Rogers began his football career at Fresno State University where he was a wide receiver and defensive back from 195557. He played pro football for two years, and later coached football at Fresno State from 1967-73, when he moved to San Jose University.

Earlier spots included Hayward State College where he was defensive backfield coach from 1961-65. He was head football coach there until he took the head coaching job at Fresno State.

Heathcote coached at the University of Montana for five years, in which his teams compiled 78 victories and 53 losses. In 1975 he won the school's first Big Sky Confere8ce title, with a 21-8 record, and his squad lost by three points to eventual winner UCLA in the NCAA tournament.

Heathcote began coaching high school basketball in 1950. He became assistant coach at Washington State University in 1964 and Montana hired him as head coach in 1971.

He was assistant coach of the United State team in the 1975 Pan American games.

Heathcote said he favors a fast break and a pattern offense, not necessarily high scoring, and "a good tough defense."

San Francisco Obtains Plunkett

"Obtaining Jim Plunkett is a vital cornerstone toward building the kind of club we want the 49ers to become," new 49ers Coach Monte Clark said Monday after the trade with the New England Patriots finally was formalized.

"I'm glad to be back," said Plunkett, the Heisman Trophy winning star of Stanford's 1970 Rose Bowl championship team.

San Francisco's home attendance dropped alarmingly last year and the acquisition of the popular local boy could help turn that situation around.

To get Plunkett, whose home town is nearby San Jose, the 49ers sent 23-year-old quarterback Tom Owen to the Patriots and also gave up their two first round choices in Thursday's National Football League draft and their first and second round choices next year.

"It was the price we felt it was necessary to pay to get a quarterback of Jim's quality," said Clark. He added that the 49ers must improve in several other areas, after three straight losing seasons, "but we want to get to the Super Bowl."

THE WORLD OF Sports

But Fairbanks has two fine young passing prospects in Steve Grogan, who filled in capably for the injured Plunkett most of 1975, and Owen. The Pats have three first round picks Thursday, getting to choose the fifth, 12th and 22nd college players available.

The 49ers and Patriots agreed on the trade two weeks ago, as was evident when San Francisco dealt veteran quarterback Steve Spurrier to Tampa Bay last Friday. An NFL trading moratorium was lifted last week, and the Plunkett deal was announced after the 28-year-old passer signed a three-year contract Monday.

Seaver Ends Long Holdout

Mets Say He's Highest Paid Pitcher In History

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Tom Seaver can take off the black hat. He's back in the family. His long, bitter holdout is over.

Seaver reached agreement with the New York Mets shortly before midnight Monday on a three-year contract which the Mets say will make him the highest paid pitcher in baseball history.

"Tom Seaver becomes the first pitcher in baseball history to make $200,000 a year," said M. Donald Grant, chairman of the Board of the Mets.

There have been reports that Ferguson Jenkins will be paid $200,000 by the Boston Red Sox this season, but Grant termed that figure inaccurate.

"This is the highest salary a baseball player has ever been paid to pitch," Grant said of the accord with the 31-year-old right-hander, who compiled a 22-9 record last season and won the Cy Young Award as the National League's premier pitcher for the third time in his stellar career.

Seaver, one of the most visible members of the Major League Baseball Players Association during the labor negotiations this spring, became the first official holdout in Mets history. He accused the team of trying to make him look like a villain, between his holdout and his union activity, but said he had to go by his convictions.

"I can't wear a black hat the rest of my life," he said. "I have to answer to myself."

The contract dispute between Seaver and Mets' management became acrimonious, to the point where reports circulated that he was on the trading block. One story had him going to the Los Angeles Dodgers in a package deal that would have brought Don Sutton, among others, to New York, and Seaver said that at one point he was "90 per cent certain that I would be traded."

Eight Clubs Start Playoffs Tonight

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

The long season is over for six National Hockey League clubs. It is just beginning for the other 12.

Months of work and miles of skating have earned playoff spots for a dozen NHL teams — four of whom can sit back and watch while the rest battle for their lives.

For those eight teams beginning best-of-three preliminary rounds tonight, the strategy is simple: to win. Each club will be trying to stress its strengths and overcome its weaknesses in order to accomplish that goal.

And it appears everybody has his own ideas about the key to victory.

"Playoff or not, if your power play is working, you're going to win," says center Marcel Dionne, whose Los Angeles Kings host the Atlanta Flames. "Nobody's going to go out in the playoffs and 'goon' anybody, so there won't be that many chances on the power play. That means it's even more important to score on it."

In so short a series, there is no room for needless penalties. The 'goons' will be left in the dressing room.

Toronto Maple Leafs Coach Red Kelly says his team will have to focus on keeping the high-scoring Pittsburgh Penguins "out of our zone because they have so many good shooters."

Entering the playoffs led by 20-year-old Pierre Larouche, who had 53 goals, and Jean Pronovost, who had 52, the Penguins are more concerned now with keeping the puck out of their net.

"We ended the season the same way we began it: by giving up too many goals," says Larouche. "It's frustrating."

The other two series starting tonight pit the Vancouver Canucks against the New York Islanders at Uniondale, N.Y., and the Buffalo Sabres against the Blues in St. Louis due to a scheduling problem.

The Sabres finished the regular season with the league's fourth-highest point total and should have been playing the opening contest at home, but a National Basketball Association game booked into the Memorial Auditorium sent the Sabres packing. Buffalo will host the second and, if necessary, the third game.

Buffalo is a prohibitive favorite in that series, having amassed 80 more goals than St. Louis, having given up 50 fewer and having collected 31 more points in the standings. Still, Sabres center Don Luce reminds that "in a short series, you can't have an off-game like you can in a seven-game series."

Meanwhile, the four division champions will look on with interest as their future opponents are going through the preliminary series. The Montreal Canadiens, Boston Bruins, Chicago Black Hawks and two-time defending champion Philadelphia Flyers have byes into the quarter-finals.

76ers Nip Houston For Playoff Spot

Bucks Edge Bulls, Stretch Midwest Lead

From Associated Press

The Philadelphia 76ers, the worst team in pro basketball just three years ago, reached the National Basketball Association playoffs with a victory almost as amazing as Coach Gene Shue's lightning rebuilding job.

The 76ers beat the Houston Rockets 130-129 in overtime Monday night after overcoming a five-point deficit with 29 seconds remaining in regulation. A driving layup with two seconds on the clock by Lloyd Free tied the score at 121-121 and sent the game into overtime.

A goaltending call against Houston rookie Joe Meriweather with 2:33 left in the overtime sent Philadelphia ahead to stay. With 25 seconds left, the Rockets' Mike Newlin, an 87.1 per cent foul shooter, missed three in a row and erased Houston's last hope.

"It was a bummer," said Calvin Murphy, whose 36 points and 11 assists couldn't keep the Rockets from being eliminated from playoff contention. "It's tough to go home with no place to go."

In the other NBA games Monday night, it was Milwaukee 102, Chicago 97, and Washington 133, Atlanta 105 ata 105.

Shue took over a Philadelphia team that had finished the 1972-73 season with a 9-73 mark, worst in NBA history. He promised a winning team — but even Shue didn't expect it this soon.

"I honestly didn't know how long it would take," said Shue. "Three years ago we were the worst in the history of the game. Last year we had a shot at the playoffs and didn't make it. This year we're a legitimate playoff team."

The victory moved Philadelphia into a tie with the Buffalo Braves for second place in the Atlantic Division. Whoever finishes ahead gets the odd game at home in the two-of-three initial playoff series.

Steve Mix scored 33 points and grabbed 11 rebounds for Philadelphia and George McGinnis, whose signing from the ABA put the 76ers over the top this year, had 28 points, 10 rebounds and eight assists.

First-place Milwaukee stretched its lead to 2½ games over Detroit in the Midwest Division by beating Chicago behind 28 points by center Elmore Smith. If Milwaukee finishes ahead of Detroit, it gets the home advantage in the odd game of their best-of-three series.

Washington moved to within two percentage points of firstplace Cleveland in the Central Division by handing Atlanta its 15th consecutive loss. Phil Chenier led Washington with 31 points.

Cleveland is now 48-32, Washington 47-33. The winner of that race gets the home-court advantage for their best-of-seven playoff set.

Brian Taylor, the only Nets starter to play more than one period, scored 29 points, including two free throws with four seconds left which were the margin of victory.

K-Wings Host Dayton Tonight In Playoffs

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Dayton and Kalamazoo face off tonight in the fourth game of their International Hockey League Turner Cup playoff series, and a Dayton victory could pull the Gems to within one game of joining Fort Wayne and Port Huron in the winners' circle.

Dayton leads the Series "B" playoffs two games to one. Kalamazoo will be looking for a victory in the best-of-seven series as the Wings try to even their playoff record at 2-2 with a home-ice triumph.

The other undecided match, Series "A" between Saginaw and Muskegon, could end Wednesday with a Saginaw triumph. The Gears lead their series 3-1 and have easily outscored the Mohawks 18-8 in the four games played so far.

Already assured of semi-final action are the Komets from Fort Wayne and the Flags from Port Huron. Port Huron downed Flint in four games straight just as Fort Wayne pushed Toledo out with a quartet of victories. Both the Series "C" and "D" action ended Sunday.

Although Muskegon has been outscored in the playoffs, Mohawks' goalie Don Cutts today was named the IHL's leading goalie for the 1975-76 season. Cutts, 23, receives the James Norris Memorial Trophy for his 2.82 goals against mark. He played in 58 of Muskegon's 78 games.

Cutts had five shutouts, leading the league in that category along with Jim Pettle of Dayton.

Montreal's Lafleur, Dryden Capture Top NHL Honors

MONTREAL (AP) — Guy Lafleur of the Montreal Canadiens snapped a 12-year Boston-Chicago monopoly on the scoring title and teammate Ken Dryden was the National Hockey League's top goaltender in 1975-76, according to the final league scoring statistics.

Lafleur, who had 56 goals and 69 assists for 125 points, became the first Montreal player to win the Art Ross Trophy for scoring since Boom Boom Geoffrion did it in 1960-61. He beat out Philadelphia's Bobby Clarke by six points, according to the final NHL statistics issued Monday.

The Vezina Trophy for goaltending went to Dryden, Montreal's rangy goalie, who had a 2.03 goals-against average. Dryden, who had eight shutouts this season, was the 20th Montreal player to win the award in its 50-year history.

Lafleur won $1,000 as scoring champion plus $500 as second-half leader and $250 as runner-up to Clarke in the first half of the season. Dryden and reserve goalie Bunny Laroque shared the $1,750 award money, which included $250 for leading in the first half of the season, but Laroque is not a co-winner of the Vezina Trophy because he did not play in the required 25 games.

Clarke had 30 goals and 89 assists for 119 points, and his 89 assists tied a league record for forwards. Boston defenseman Bobby Orr holds the record for assists in one season, 102 in 1970-71.

Buffalo center Gil Perreault finished third with 113 points. Philadelphia winger Bill Barber was fourth with 112 and Pittsburgh center Pierre Larouche was fifth with 111.

Even though 19 less goals were scored than last season — 4,913 to 4,832 — a record nine players reached the 100-point mark and six — Lafleur, Leach, Barber, Larouche, Pittsburgh's Jean Pronovost and Buffalo's Danny Gare — scored 50 goals or more.

Fidrych Survives Final Tiger Cut

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Suddenly, Mark Fidrych needs a new wardrobe and someone to drive his car to Detroit — "Bird" has made it to the bigs.

"It's hard to explain the tingle in my body," he said. "My legs were ready to give out. I can't wait to call my dad to tell him. He'll be shocked."

Fidrych, a rookie right-handed pitcher from Northboro, Mass., Monday was told he'll be going north with the Detroit Tigers as one of 10 pitchers on the 25-man baseball squad. He found out during a clubhouse meeting just before starting the night game against the World Champion Cincinnati Reds.

Four players were in the final cut: rookie catcher Bruce Kimm, pitchers Fernando Arroyo and Dave Lemanczyk and rookie outfielder Bob Molinaro. Molinaro was assigned outright to Evansville while the other three were optioned to the Triple-A farm club.

Fidrych is called "Bird" because of his resemblance to the Sesame Street character and he has the reputation of being a clown.

The cuts brought the Detroit spring training squad down to the regular season limit of 25.

The Tigers will start the 1976 campaign with 10 pitchers, three catchers, six infielders and six outfielders.

Fidrych, who was on Evansville's roster, no-hit the Reds for his three innings and Detroit eventually won 3-2 on rookie Jerry Manuel's bases-loaded single in the bottom of the 11th inning Monday.

Third-year pro Fidrych said he had been "neutral" about his chances of making the squad.

"I figured if I make it, I make it, and if I don't, I don't," the lanky 21-year-old said. "I know one thing, I've got to change my wardrobe. My clothes don't fit this team's dress code. I don't even own a sports coat."

Manager Ralph Houk had indicated he wouldn't want someone like Fidrych to be on the team if he wouldn't get a chance to pitch much.

"I'll bring him along slow," Houk said. "... I need a good starter sooner or later and he can step right in." Instead of being a fifth starter who normally wouldn't pitch much the first two months because of the many off days, Fidrych may wind up as the third or fourth man in the rotation.

"I'm not going through this summer what I went through last summer," Houk said. "If the pitchers don't deliver I'll get someone else."

While Fidrych was all smiles, those out were obviously disappointed.

"I'll be back in a month," Lemanczyk said.

Arroyo, tears streaming down his face, gave Fidrych a bear hug in a sad departure.

Two rookies who didn't get cut were stars against the Reds. Manuel's bases-loaded hit won Monday's game off Cincinnati's Will McEnaney after Steve Grilli came in to pitch eight straight outs.

He relieved Bruce Taylor, who was making his first spring training appearance in the ninth inning. Taylor, who actually made the team without throwing a pitch because of an arm ailment, loaded the bases with Reds' singles bfore George Foster ruined a 2-0 Tiger lead with a two-run single of his own.

Bill Laxton gave up one hit in five innings before Taylor came on.

Joe Coleman was scheduled to pitch today in Tampa against Cincinnati's Pat Darcy. Detroit breaks camp Thursday and opens the season Saturday in Cleveland with Coleman announced to pitch against Dennis Eckersley.

Carter Hurls Gobles Win

BANGOR — Lee Carter, a junior righthander, hurled a four-hitter to lead Gobles to a 2-1 non-conference baseball win over Bangor here Monday afternoon in the first game for both squads.

Jim Hansen gave the Tigers a 1-0 lead in the initial inning with an RBI single. Two innings later, Kendall Smith drove in the winning run with a triple.

Carter's shutout was spoiled by Ricky Ross in the bottom of the seventh inning when he singled home the Vikings' only run.

Bryan Clement and Ward Richards each rapped out a pair of singles for Gobles while teammate Pat Walborn had a double and a single. Carl Johnson had a double for Bangor and was also the losing pitcher.

Eight Clubs Start Playoffs Tonight

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

The long season is over for six National Hockey League clubs. It is just beginning for the other 12.

Months of work and miles of skating have earned playoff spots for a dozen NHL teams — four of whom can sit back and watch while the rest battle for their lives.

For those eight teams beginning best-of-three preliminary rounds tonight, the strategy is simple: to win. Each club will be trying to stress its strengths and overcome its weaknesses in order to accomplish that goal.

And it appears everybody has his own ideas about the key to victory.

"Playoff or not, if your power play is working, you're going to win," says center Marcel Dionne, whose Los Angeles Kings host the Atlanta Flames. "Nobody's going to go out in the playoffs and 'goon' anybody, so there won't be that many chances on the power play. That means it's even more important to score on it."

In so short a series, there is no room for needless penalties. The 'goons' will be left in the dressing room.

Toronto Maple Leafs Coach Red Kelly says his team will have to focus on keeping the high-scoring Pittsburgh Penguins "out of our zone because they have so many good shooters."

Entering the playoffs led by 20-year-old Pierre Larouche, who had 53 goals, and Jean Pronovost, who had 52, the Penguins are more concerned now with keeping the puck out of their net.

"We ended the season the same way we began it: by giving up too many goals," says Larouche. "It's frustrating."

The other two series starting tonight pit the Vancouver Canucks against the New York Islanders at Uniondale, N.Y., and the Buffalo Sabres against the Blues in St. Louis due to a scheduling problem.

The Sabres finished the regular season with the league's fourth-highest point total and should have been playing the opening contest at home; but a National Basketball Association game booked into the Memorial Auditorium sent the Sabres packing. Buffalo will host the second and, if necessary, the third game.

Buffalo is a prohibitive favorite in that series, having amassed 90 more goals than St. Louis, having given up 50 fewer and having collected 33 more points in the standings. Still, Sabres center Don Luce reminds that "in a short series, you can't have an off-game like you can in a seven-game series."

Meanwhile, the four division champions will look on with interest as their future opponents are going through the preliminary series. The Montreal Canadiens, Boston Bruins, Chicago Black Hawks and two-time defending champion Philadelphia Flyers have byes into the quarter-finals.

76ers Nip Houston For Playoff Spot

Bucks Edge Bulls, Stretch Midwest Lead

From Associated Press

The Philadelphia 76ers, the worst team in pro basketball just three years ago, reached the National Basketball Association playoffs with a victory almost as amazing as Coach Gene Shue's lightning rebuilding job.

The 76ers beat the Houston Rockets 130-129 in overtime Monday night after overcoming a five-point deficit with 29 seconds remaining in regulation. A driving layup with two seconds on the clock by Lloyd Free tied the score at 121-121 and sent the game into overtime.

A goaltending call against Houston rookie Joe Meriweather with 2:33 left in the overtime sent Philadelphia ahead to stay. With 25 seconds left, the Rockets' Mike Newlin, an 87.1 per cent foul shooter, missed three in a row and erased Houston's last hope.

"It was a bummer," said Calvin Murphy, whose 36 points and 11 assists couldn't keep the Rockets from being eliminated from playoff contention. "It's tough to go home with no place to go."

In the other NBA games Monday night, it was Milwaukee 102, Chicago 97, and Washington 133, Atlanta 105.nta 105.

Shue took over a Philadelphia team that had finished the 1972-73 season with a 9-73 mark, worst in NBA history. He promised a winning team — but even Shue didn't expect it this soon.

"I honestly didn't know how long it would take," said Shue. "Three years ago we were the worst in the history of the game. Last year we had a shot at the playoffs and didn't make it. This year we're a legitimate playoff team."

The victory moved Philadelphia into a tie with the Buffalo Braves for second place in the Atlantic Division. Whoever finishes ahead gets the odd game at home in the two-of-three initial playoff series.

Steve Mix scored 33 points and grabbed 11 rebounds for Philadelphia and George McGinnis, whose signing from the ABA put the 76ers over the top this year, had 28 points, 19 rebounds and eight assists.

First-place Milwaukee stretched its lead to 2½ games over Detroit in the Midwest Division by beating Chicago behind 28 points by center Elmore Smith. If Milwaukee finishes ahead of Detroit, it gets the home advantage in the odd game of their best-of-three series.

Washington moved to within two percentage points of firstplace Cleveland in the Central Division by handing Atlanta its 15th consecutive loss. Phil Chenier led Washington with 31 points.

Cleveland is now 46-32, Washington 47-33. The winner of that race gets the home-court advantage for their best-of-seven playoff set.

Brian Taylor, the only Nets starter to play more than one period, scored 29 points, including two free throws with four seconds left which were the margin of victory.

K-Wings Host Dayton Tonight In Playoffs

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Dayton and Kalamazoo face off tonight in the fourth game of their International Hockey League Turner Cup playoff series, and a Dayton victory could pull the Gems to within one game of joining Fort Wayne and Port Huron in the winners' circle.

Dayton leads the Series "B" playoffs two games to one. Kalamazoo will be looking for a victory in the best-of-seven series as the Wings try to even their playoff record at 2-2 with a home-ice triumph.

The other undecided match, Series "A" between Saginaw and Muskegon, could end Wednesday with a Saginaw triumph. The Gears lead their series 3-1 and have easily outscored the Mohawks 19-8 in the four games played so far.

Already assured of semi-final action are the Komets from Fort Wayne and the Flags from Port Huron. Port Huron downed Flint in four games straight just as Fort Wayne pushed Toledo out with a quartet of victories. Both the Series "C" and "D" action ended Sunday.

Although Muskegon has been outscored in the playoffs, Mohawks' goalie Don Cutts today was named the IHL's leading goalie for the 1975-76 season. Cutts, 23, receives the James Norris Memorial Trophy for his 2.82 goals against mark. He played in 58 of Muekgon's 78 games.

Cutts had five shutouts, leading the league in that category along with Jim Pettie of Dayton.

Montreal's Lafleur, Dryden Capture Top NHL Honors

MONTREAL (AP) — Guy Lafleur of the Montreal Canadiens snapped a 12-year Boston-Chicago monopoly on the scoring title and teammate Ken Dryden was the National Hockey League's top goaltender in 1975-76, according to the final league scoring statistics.

Lafleur, who had 56 goals and 69 assists for 125 points, became the first Montreal player to win the Art Ross Trophy for scoring since Boom Boom Geoffrion did it in 1960-61. He beat out Philadelphia's Bobby Clarke by six points, according to the final NHL statistics issued Monday.

The Vezina Trophy for goaltending went to Dryden, Montreal's rangy goalie, who had a 2.03 goals-against average. Dryden, who had eight shutouts this season, was the 20th Montreal player to win the award in its 50-year history.

Lafleur won $1,000 as scoring champion plus $500 as second-half leader and $250 as runnerup to Clarke in the first half of the season. Dryden and reserve goalie Bunny Laroque shared the $1,750 award money, which included $250 for leading in the first half of the season, but Laroque is not a co-winner of the Vezina Trophy because he did not play in the required 25 games.

Clarke had 30 goals and 89 assists for 119 points, and his 89 assists tied a league record for forwards. Boston defenseman Bobby Orr holds the record for assists in one season, 102 in 1970-71.

Buffalo center Gil Perreault finished third with 113 points, Philadelphia winger Bill Barber was fourth with 112 and Pittsburgh center Pierre Larouche was fifth with 111.

Even though 19 less goals were scored than last season — 4,913 to 4,932 — a record nine players reached the 100-point mark and six — Lafleur, Leach, Barber, Larouche, Pittsburgh's Jean Pronovost and Buffalo's Danny Gare — scored 50 goals or more.

Dip Netters At Berrien Frowning

Coho Fishermen Smiling

Salmon trollers are smiling and sucker dippers frowning these days on the southwestern Michigan fishing scene.

Trollers on Lake Michigan are making consistent catches, including some limits, of young coho in the two-pound range. Most are using "clean" lines, with the tadpolly and Little Cleo among favorite baits.

Salmon activity is reported all the way from New Buffalo to South Haven, with most of the catches in shallow water near the mouths of rivers.

Many are petitioning for an earlier opening (now April 1), but there chances for a change appear slim, according to district Department of Natural Resources fisheries biologist Dave Johnson.

"I certainly would be opposed to opening it sooner when steelhead are even denser in there," declares Johnson. "If anything, I would like a tighter rein on it."

Legislative action would be required to change the dates of the dip netting season.

Dip netters want the opener moved to March 15 so they can take advantage of the main portion of the spring sucker run. But as Johnson notes, an earlier date would probably conflict with the peak point of the steelhead fishery.

Dip netters can't keep steelhead lifted in nets, but because there have been cases of netters keeping these fish, there has even been talk of closing down dip netting at Berrien Springs.

Like sucker success, steelhead anglers are also coming away with smaller catches as the fish wind up spawning activity and start moving back out to Lake Michigan.

Very few steelhead were taken at Berrien Springs over the weekend, Shamrock Park attendant Alvin Aldridge counted 10 steelhead and one brown trout among 200 fishermen Saturday.

On inland lakes, bluegills are moving into the shallows and providing fun for fly fishermen.

Van Buren county conservation officer Stan Hayes reports good gill success on Van Auken and Saddle Lakes. Cass county officers report catches on Diamond, Painter, Lafferty and parts of the Chain of Lakes in Calvin township.

There has also been some good perch fishing on Diamond, Eagle and Indian Lakes in Cass county.

On the horizon for area fishermen is smelt dipping along the Lake Michigan shoreline.

"I've never known them to come in real good before the 7th of April...that's my magic date," states Hayes. "I've known them to come in much later, though."

New Chub Restrictions Proposed

The machinery is again turning in another attempt to stamp out commercial chub fishing in Lake Michigan.

The Natural Resources Commission is expected to approve this week the submission of rules to the Joint Legislative Rules Committee which would halt commercial chub netting on the Big Lake.

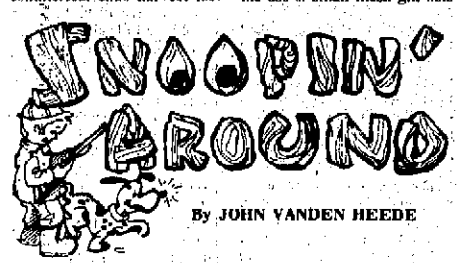

The Department of Natural Resources stopped the commerical chub harvest last year under an emergency rule, but the ban was dropped after a temporary restraining order against it was issued in December by the Allegan County Circuit Court.

Specifically, the new recommendations, which have certificates of approval from the Legislative Service Bureau and from the Office of the Attorney General, ban the taking of chubs from Lake Michigan and make the use of small mesh gill nets illegal in the Big Lake.

The latest proposal, which is much like chub restrictions already being enforced by Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin, comes after the holding of public hearings on the matter in St. Joseph and Traverse City in February.

If the new chub recommendation is adopted, it will include provisions for a research fishery to keep track of the chubs' status. The DNR says the commercial fishery would be resumed when the stock assessment program indicates a yield can be sustained without depletion of the resource.

Biologists claim bloater chub stocks in Lake Michigan have undergone a long and continuous decline, and the species is now endangered. It notes that six other species of chubs have already disappeared from the Great Lakes.

Early June is the target date for shipping commemorative sugar maple seedlings which were started from seeds taken from century-old trees near Niles.

The seedlings will go to various community groups for use as part of Bicentennial celebrations. They are being raised by foresters at Michigan State University.

By the time Gov. William G. Milliken plants the cream of the crop on the Capitol lawn on June 11 — "Bicentennial Tree Planting Day" in Michigan — the small trees should be about 18 inches tall.

Several hundred requests were received for the 4,000 sprigs when orders were taken last fall.

Recipients will be asked to fill out a short form describing the location of the plantings. The records will be housed in the State Archives until 2076 — the nation's Tricentennial year.

U.S. District Court judge Noel P. Fox of Grand Rapids has issued an order directing the taking of dispositions in the so-called "Guns of Autumn" suit brought against CBS News by the Michigan United Conservation Clubs.

He has given counsel for both parties six months in which to gather written testimony to be used in the $300 million class action suit brought against the television network by MUCC.

MUCC charged that CBS conspired to libel and slander hunters through the production and broadcast of the documentaries "Guns of Autumn" and "Echoes of the Guns of Autumn" that were aired last year. Parts of the documenturies were filmed in Michigan.

There is a possibility of court action by some Michigan boat owners against the new law requiring no-discharge sewage devices on craft using Great Lakes waters.

Boat Owners Association of the United States (BOAT/U.S.), the nation's largest representative service organization of boat owners, has announced it is prepared to act if a preponderance of boat owners favor such a suit.

According to Richard Swartz, the association's executive director, "EPA's action is arbitrary and unreasonable in our view, and could be overturned. But as a representative organization, we need to ascertain the consensus of boat owners on the Great Lakes and other navigable waters of this country."

Swartz believes Michigan doesn't have adequate pump-out facilities to handle boats with holding tanks.

"A law suit," he explains, "may be the only way Michigan and the other states can be forced to install adequate pump-out facilities if it is a no-discharge law that they really feel is necessary in their area."

Berrien Natural Areas Get Commission OK

Parts of Berrien county's Warren Woods and Warren Dunes State Park will be officially dedicated as Natural Areas at this Friday's meeting of the Natural Resources Commission in Lansing.

At Warren Woods, the Natural Area is being reduced from a previous dedicated area of 312 acres to 179 acres, to confine the dedicated area to the virgin forest only.

At Warren Dunes, the original 320 will be rededicated, and contiguous areas within the park totaling approximately 168 acres, will be dedicated for the first time.

Quebec Brook Trout Experiment Encouraging

A Quebec strain of brook trout now being tested in Michigan looks very encouraging to biologists in early results.

The fish, which were released in four lakes in northern Lower Michigan, are averaging over 14 inches in length after two summers growth. And according to Department of Natural Resources biologists, this is substantially better than any other brook trout have done in the same lakes.

The DNR now wants to protect this new strain for brood stock, so it has proposed fishing restrictions on the small lakes.

Expected to get approval at Friday's Natural Resources Commission meeting in Lansing will be recommendation that for a period of three years fishing on Moon Lake, Luce county; Dutch Fred Lake, Schoolcraft county; Green Lake, Antrim county, and Twin Lake No. 1, Cheboygan county, be restricted to the use of single hooked artificial lures. There would also be a creel limit of two trout and a minimum size limit of 15 inches on trout.

Rod, Gun Club Events Slated

WATERVLIET — Wesley Pinkerton of Benton Harbor will discuss the art of making black powder rifles at Wednesday's 7:30 p.m. meeting of the Watervliet Rod and Gun Club. The public is invited.

The club will also hold a trap shoot and spaghetti dinner — also open to the public — on Friday starting at 6 p.m.

Mini-Refuge Info Available

Homeowners can celebrate the Bicentennial year by participating in an officially-recognized Bicentennial activity — the creation of a mini-refuge for wildlife in their own backyards.

The backyard habitat information can be obtained by writing to: National Wildlife Federation, Dept. BY'76, 1412 16th St. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Summer Fishing Guide Offered

"Michigan's Better Summertime Fishing Waters" guide is now available — free of charge — by writing the Travel Bureau, Michigan Department of Commerce, 300 Capitol Avenue, Lansing, Mich. 48913.

The publication, compiled by Stan Lievense, manager of natural resources for the Travel Bureau, lists lakes, ponds, rivers, streams and creeks which are best, by species, throughout the state.

Big Muskie

A 38-inch female muskie was netted by district Department of Natural Resources fisheries workers last week from Bankson Lake in Van Buren county.

New Area Ideas For Giant Canada

Pairs Being Concentrated On Barry Game Area

Biologists are making changes in southwestern Michigan's Giant Canada goose program which hopefully will help efforts to establish area breeding flocks.

Key changes include picking out established pairs before releases and concentrating the birds on the Barry State Game Area.

When birds were obtained for area stocking in the first three years of the program, they were immediately released. This year they are being held at the Kellogg Bird Sanctuary near Battle Creek for about a week for observation. When a pair is spotted, they will be marked and later released together.

District Department of Natural Resources wildlife biologist Tim Payne says this new procedure should enhance the possibilities of the geese bringing off broods in the first year at their new homes.

Also, pairs will be put off by themselves so there won't be the conflict of "territorial rights," which can arise when several birds are released together.

Payne says geese have a "strong pair bond" and "mate pretty much for life."

Biologists also feel that the Barry State Game Area is the best bet for the Giant goose program. It includes almost 15,000 square acres and has about 20 small impoundments.

Other advantages at Barry include the fact the area has been closed to goose hunting for a five-year period in an effort to protect the birds. Habitat work on the Barry impoundments, such as the building of "nesting islands", and establishing grazing meadows, is also underway.

About 50 of the Giant Canadas, which come from the DNR's Mason Game Farm, will be released this year. The Giant is a sub species of the Canada. It looks much like its smaller relative, but is about four pounds heavier with an average weight of 11-12 pounds.

The birds being released this week are wing clipped and won't be able to fly again until late summer.

Dip Netters At Berrien Frowning

Coho Fishermen Smiling

Salmon trollers are smiling and sucker dippers frowning these days on the southwestern Michigan fishing scene.

Trollers on Lake Michigan are making consistent catches, including some limits, of young coho in the two-pound range. Most are using "clean" lines, with the tadpolly and Little Cleo among favorite baits.

Salmon activity is reported all the way from New Buffalo to South Haven, with most of the catches in shallow water near the mouths of rivers.

Many are petitioning for an earlier opening (now April 1), but there chances for a change appear slim, according to district Department of Natural Resources fisheries biologist Dave Johnson.

"I certainly would be opposed to opening it sooner when steelhead are even denser in there," declares Johnson. "If anything, I would like a tighter rein on it."

Legislative action would be required to change the dates of the dip netting season.

Dip netters want the opener moved to March 15 so they can take advantage of the main portion of the spring sucker run. But as Johnson notes, an earlier date would probably conflict with the peak point of the steelhead fishery.

Dip netters can't keep steelhead lifted in nets, but because there have been cases of netters keeping these fish, there has even been talk of closing down dip netting at Berrien Springs.

Like sucker success, steelhead anglers are also coming away with smaller catches as the fish wind up spawning activity and start moving back out to Lake Michigan.

Very few steelhead were taken at Berrien Springs over the weekend, Shamrock Park attendant Alvin Aldridge counted 10 steelhead and one brown trout among 200 fishermen Saturday.

On inland lakes, bluegills are moving into the shallows and providing fun for fly fishermen.

Van Buren county conservation officer Stan Hayes reports good gill success on Van Auken and Saddle Lakes. Cass county officers report catches on Diamond, Painter, Lafferty and parts of the Chain of Lakes in Calvin township.

There has also been some good perch fishing on Diamond, Eagle and Indian Lakes in Cass county.

On the horizon for area fishermen is smelt dipping along the Lake Michigan shoreline.

"I've never known them to come in real good before the 7th of April...that's my magic date," states Hayes. "I've known them to come in much later, though."

New Chub Restrictions Proposed

The machinery is again turning in another attempt to stamp out commercial chub fishing in Lake Michigan.

The Natural Resources Commission is expected to approve this week the submission of rules to the Joint Legislative Rules Committee which would halt commercial chub netting on the Big Lake.

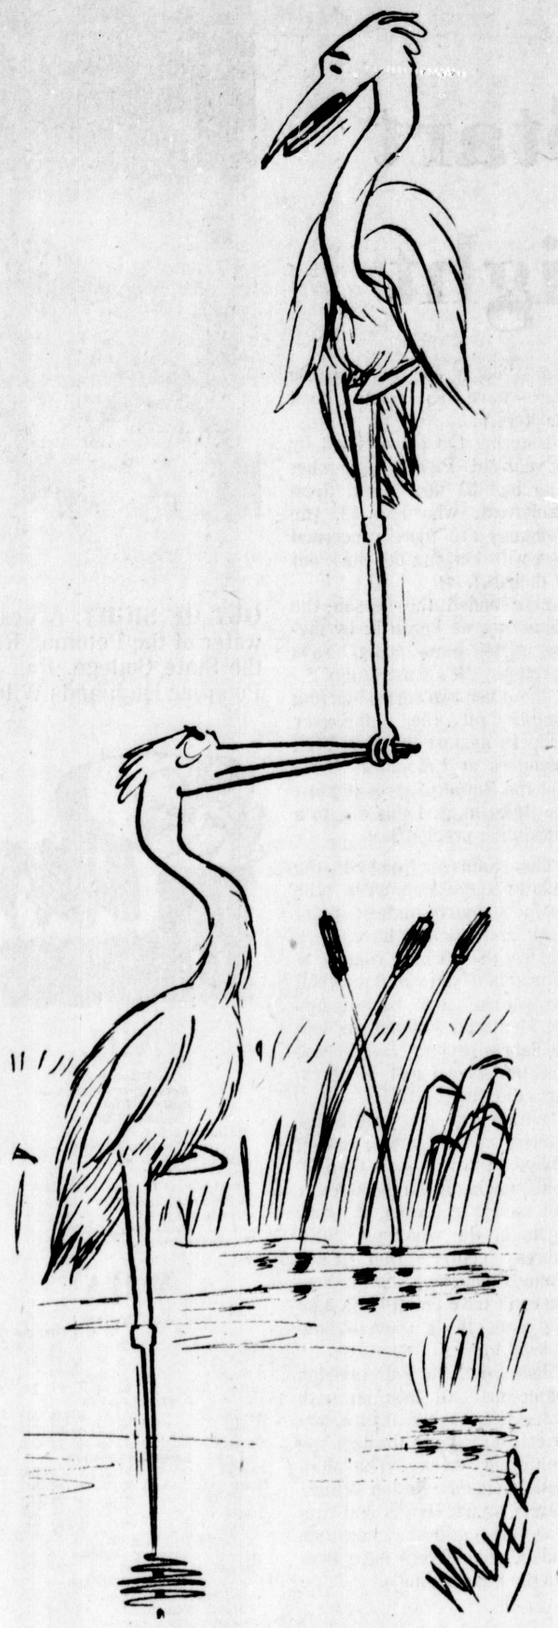

The Department of Natural Resources stopped the commerical chub harvest last year under an emergency rule, but the ban was dropped after a temporary restraining order against it was issued in December by the Allegan County Circuit Court.

Specifically, the new recommendations, which have certificates of approval from the Legislative Service Bureau and from the Office of the Attorney General, ban the taking of chubs from Lake Michigan and make the use of small mesh gill nets illegal in the Big Lake.

The latest proposal, which is much like chub restrictions already being enforced by Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin, comes after the holding of public hearings on the matter in St. Joseph and Traverse City, in February.

If the new chub recommendation is adopted, it will include provisions for a research fishery to keep track of the chubs' status. The DNR says the commercial fishery would be resumed when the stock assessment program indicates a yield can be sustained without depletion of the resource.

Biologists claim bloater chub stocks in Lake Michigan have undergone a long and continuous decline, and the species is now endangered. It notes that six other species of chubs have already disappeared from the Great Lakes.

New Area Ideas For Giant Canada

Pairs Being Concentrated On Barry Game Area

Biologists are making changes in southwestern Michigan's Giant Canada goose program which hopefully will help efforts to establish area breeding flocks.

Key changes include picking out established pairs before releases and concentrating the birds on the Barry State Game Area.

When birds were obtained for area stocking in the first three years of the program, they were immediately released. This year they are being held at the Kellogg Bird Sanctuary near Battle Creek for about a week for observation. When a pair is spotted, they will be marked and later released together.

District Department of Natural Resources wildlife biologist Tim Payne says this new procedure should enhance the possibilities of the geese bringing off broods in the first year at their new homes.

Also, pairs will be put off by themselves so there won't be the conflict of "territorial rights," which can arise when several birds are released together.

Payne says geese have a "strong pair bond" and "mate pretty much for life."

Biologists also feel that the Barry State Game Area is the best bet for the Giant goose program. It includes almost 15,000 square acres and has about 20 small impoundments.

Other advantages at Barry include the fact the area has been closed to goose hunting for a five-year period in an effort to protect the birds. Habitat work on the Barry impoundments, such as the building of "nesting islands" and establishing grazing meadows, is also underway.

About 50 of the Giant Canadas, which come from the DNR's Mason Game Farm, will be released this year. The Giant is a sub species of the Canada. It looks much like its smaller relative, but is about four pounds heavier with an average weight of 11-12 pounds.

The birds being released this week are wing clipped and won't be able to fly again until late summer.

Shoot Sunday

NEW BUFFALO — The New Buffalo Rod and Gun Club will sponsor beginners trap shoots on Sundays, starting April 11. The shoots will run from 2 to 5 p.m.

By JOHN VANDEN HEEDE

Early June is the target date for shipping commemorative sugar maple seedlings which were started from seeds taken from century-old trees near Niles.

The seedlings will go to various community groups for use as part of Bicentennial celebrations. They are being raised by foresters at Michigan State University.

By the time Gov. William G. Milliken plants the cream of the crop on the Capitol lawn on June 11 — "Bicentennial Tree Planting Day" in Michigan — the small trees should be about 18 inches tall.

Several hundred requests were received for the 1,000 sprigs when orders were taken last fall.

Recipients will be asked to fill out a short form describing the location of the plantings. The records will be housed in the State Archives until 2076 — the nation's Tricentennial year.

U.S. District Court judge Noel P. Fox of Grand Rapids has issued an order directing the taking of dispositions in the so-called "Guns of Autumn" suit brought against CBS News by the Michigan United Conservation Clubs.

He has given counsel for both parties six months in which to gather written testimony to be used in the $300 million class action suit brought against the television network by MUCC.

MUCC charged that CBS conspired to libel and slander hunters through the production and broadcast of the documentaries "Guns of Autumn" and "Echoes of the Guns of Autumn" that were aired last year. Parts of the documentaries were filmed in Michigan.

There is a possibility of court action by some Michigan boat owners against the new law requiring no-discharge sewage devices on craft using Great Lakes waters.

Boat Owners Association of the United States (BOAT/U.S.), the nation's largest representative service organization of boat owners, has announced it is prepared to act if a preponderance of boat owners favor such a suit.

According to Richard Swartz, the association's executive director, "EPA's action is arbitrary and unreasonable in our view, and could be overturned. But as a representative organization, we need to ascertain the consensus of boat owners on the Great Lakes and other navigable waters of this country."

Swartz believes Michigan doesn't have adequate pump-out facilities to handle boats with holding tanks.

"A law suit," he explains, "may be the only way Michigan and the other states can be forced to install adequate pump-out facilities if it is a no-discharge law that they really feel is necessary in their area."

Berrien Natural Areas Get Commission OK

Parts of Berrien county's Warren Woods and Warren Dunes State Park will be officially dedicated as Natural Areas at this Friday's meeting of the Natural Resources Commission in Lansing.

At Warren Woods, the Natural Area is being reduced from a previous dedicated area of 312 acres to 179 acres, to confine the dedicated area to the virgin forest only.

At Warren Dunes, the original 320 will be rededicated, and contiguous areas within the park totaling approximately 168 acres, will be dedicated for the first time.

Quebec Brook Trout Experiment Encouraging

A Quebec strain of brook trout now being tested in Michigan looks very encouraging to biologists in early results.

The fish, which were released in four lakes in northern Lower Michigan, are averaging over 14 inches in length after two summers growth. And according to Department of Natural Resources biologists, this is substantially better than any other brook trout have done in the same lakes.

The DNR now wants to protect this new strain for brood stock, so it has proposed fishing restrictions on the small lakes.

Expected to get approval at Friday's Natural Resources Commission meeting in Lansing will be recommendation that for a period of three years fishing on Moon Lake, Luce county; Dutch Fred Lake, Schoolcraft county; Green Lake, Antrim county, and Twin Lake No. 1, Cheboygan county, be restricted to the use of single hooked artificial lures. There would also be a creel limit of two trout and a minimum size limit of 15 inches on trout.

Rod, Gun Club Events Slated

WATERVLIET — Wesley Pinkerton of Benton Harbor will discuss the art of making black powder rifles at Wednesday's 7:30 p.m. meeting of the Watervliet Rod and Gun Club. The public is invited.

The club will also hold a trap shoot and spaghetti dinner — also open to the public — on Friday starting at 6 p.m.

RABBIT SPEEDY

Only a greyhound can run down a jackrabbit in a fair chase. Coyotes and foxes must resort to their wits to catch it.

Mini-Refuge Info Available

Homeowners can celebrate the Bicentennial year by participating in an officially-recognized Bicentennial activity — the creation of a mini-refuge for wildlife in their own backyards.

The backyard habitat information can be obtained by writing to: National Wildlife Federation, Dept. BY'76, 1412 16th St. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Summer Fishing Guide Offered

"Michigan's Better Summertime Fishing Waters" guide is now available — free of charge — by writing the Travel Bureau, Michigan Department of Commerce, 300 Capitol Avenue, Lansing, Mich. 48913.

The publication, compiled by Stan Lievense, manager of natural resources for the Travel Bureau, lists lakes, ponds, rivers, streams and creeks which are best, by species, throughout the state.

Big Muskie

A 38-inch female muskie was netted by district Department of Natural Resources fisheries workers last week from Bankson Lake in Van Buren county.

Decatur Wants Policewoman To Stick To Office

DECATUR — This village's only female police officer wants to know why she has been ordered to stay in the office and out of the village police car. Apparently hinting at what she believes may be sex discrimination, Mrs. Joan Henderson said she previously handled patrol duties when any of the village's three male officers were absent but has recently been told to make the office her place of duty.

In a letter read to the Decatur village council last night, Mrs. Henderson said she wants specific, written reasons from the council why she can't handle patrol duties as the other officers.

Copies of her letter have gone to several other agencies, she said, including the state civil rights commission.

The council last night set a special meeting for April 19 to try and reach a settlement in the potential dispute.

Officials last night emphasized that Mrs. Henderson was hired originally as a clerk-typist in the police department and that the village has no need for a fourth, full-time patrol officer.

Village President C. Blaine Rex said today that in the last several months Police Chief William Purdy told her she could go out and make arrests.

The past administration objected, Rex said, and when the new council took office it also asked the chief to put her back in the office.

When she continued to make patrols, Rex added, the council "decided to take the bull by the horns," and in a special session in late March ordered Purdy to put her back in the job for which she was hired: the office.

Generally, he said, it is the feeling of the council that if she doesn't want to be a clerk-typist, she can work elsewhere.

Mrs. Henderson was hired under the CETA program by the village in February, 1975, and in the fall of 1975 graduated from a basic law enforcement training course at Lake Michigan college.

Successful completion of the course enabled her to become a state-certified police officer.

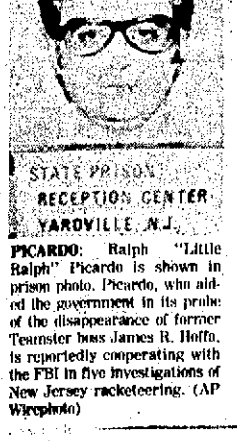

The mother of two boys, the 5-foot-5 Mrs. Henderson also has a degree from Western Michigan university and is a former substitute school teacher.

But even if Mrs. Henderson persuades the council to let her make patrols, she may still lose her job by the end of June when the federal program that pays her CETA salary comes to an end.

Mrs. Henderson said she could be transferred to another title under the same program and continue to work for the village, while being paid by federal funds, until February, 1977.

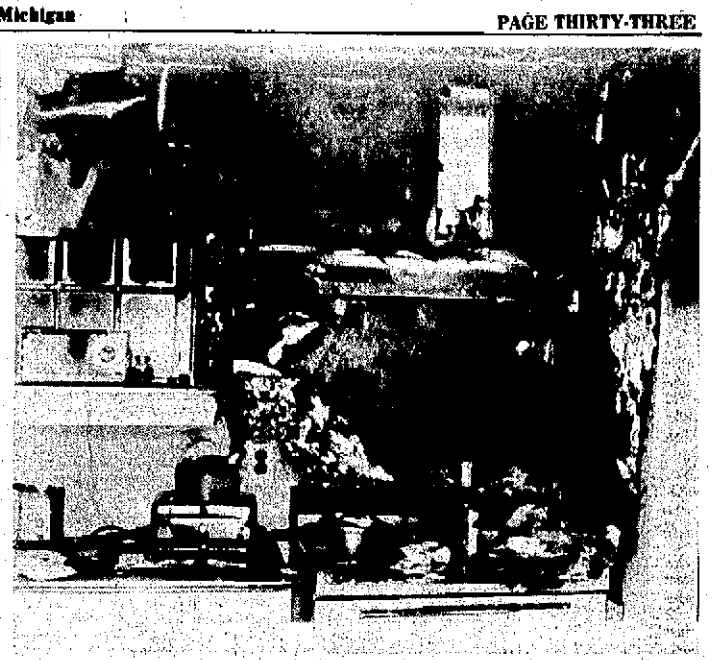

She said that in effect, the village is being robbed of additional police protection it could have at no extra cost if she is not transferred to the other CETA title.

She said she wants to know, also in writing, why her job title has not been changed to that longer-running, federally funded job.

Decatur Approves Water Rate Hike

DECATUR — A 20 per cent boost in village water rates to become effective in June was approved by the Decatur village council last night. The increase is to cover higher costs of maintenance, village councilmen said.

Under present rates, homeowners pay a flat rate of $8.50 twice a year for under 15,000 gallons used per six-month period.

The new rate is $1.50 per month - or $9 per six-month period - for under 10,000 gallons used in the period.

The ordinance first introduced in February also provides for additional charges for over the 10,000-gallon minimum.

In other areas last night, the council set its annual village cleanup day for Saturday, May 1. A village street truck will pick up trash placed at curbs.

The council also rejected the only bid it got to cut down diseased or dead trees in the village. The bid was from John Schur of Lawton and was for $804 to remove five trees.

On the sewer and water committee are Trustees Charles Carson and Lyle Overton; streets and parking, Travis Graves and Carl Keyes; police and fire, Donald Wickett and Elanor Smith; parks and recreation, Smith and Keyes.

$500,000 Restaurant Wins SJ City Approval

St. Joseph city commissioners last night approved a new $500,000 restaurant-lounge on the site of the present Lake lodge on the condition that it be constructed under the Planned Development concept.

The commission declined to rezone the property from A-3 residential to C-2 commercial, saying that the property could then be used for purposes other than a restaurant.

City officials said they were all for the new restaurant, but wanted to be sure that's what would be built at 1820 Lake Shore drive, and Planned Development was the way.

The rezoning had been sought by James Wedell, co-owner with his mother, Mrs. Opal Wedell, of Lake lodge. Wedell said last night he accepted the commission's decision.

City Atty. Arthur G. Preston Jr. said, "Once we OK C-2 outright you can do what you want (with the property) and it's out of the city's hands." Preston said the city got "burned" a few years ago when rezoning was approved for a certain project that never went through.

City Manager Gerald W. Heppler explained that planned development "falls under the special use category" and the property will remain zoned A-3. He said the city, through the planning commission, will become directly involved in the project as they will be called on to approve certain phases of the project.

Heppler said it's the first time the city has used planned development for such a project.

The city planning commission last week recommended rezoning with the provision that building plans be submitted before the rezoning took effect.

Wedell, at last night's meeting, questioned if planned development "wasn't too much city control" and said it "will make it much harder to get financing."

Commissioner William Gillespie said he did not think lending institutions would go against Wedell as long as they knew he'd gotten permission from the commission to go ahead with the project.

Also last night the commission voted approval to enter into an agreement with the Army Corps of Engineers for a five-year easement to dock the dredge Hains along the St. Joseph river below the bandshell.

The agreement is for docking privileges from April through June for five years beginning this year. Heppler also reported the Corps has commenced placement of dredged material into the St. Joseph feeder beach area beginning at Park street to the water plant.

The commission voted acceptance of a low bid from Wesley Thomas, Benton Harbor, to do work for the sidewalk repair program this spring.

The program will be concentrated in the area bounded by Lake Shore drive to the west, Harrison avenue to the north, Wallace and Kingsley avenues to the south and the St. Joseph river to the east. Under the program city employes inspect the sidewalks and residents are contacted if the sidewalk near their home is in need of reapair.

The repair can be done by the resident or the city (Thumps) in which case the resident is billed. Bids were based on price estimates for repair of 4-inch concrete, 6-inch concrete per square foot and root removal. Thomas' bids were $1.17, $1.40 and $17.50, respectively. Other bids were by Victor Haak ($1.75, $1.85 and $12, respectively) and M&S Construction ($1.75, $2 and $15, respectively).

Fennville Ambulance Chief Expects Approval Of Grant

FENNVILLE — John Kelly, director of Fennville's volunteer ambulance service, expressed optimism last night that the city's request for a federal grant to purchase a second ambulance would be approved.

Kelly told the city commission the grant application had been endorsed by the West Michigan Comprehensive Health Planning unit, and he expected a favorable decision on the grant by April 19.

Estimated cost of the new ambulance, along with necessary equipment, is $8,800. Kelly said the federal grant, if approved, would pay 70 per cent of the cost, with the city and four townships (Clyde, Manlius, Ganges and Lee) participating in the service picking up the remaining 30 per cent.

In other areas, the commission said the Lacey property at the south end of Maple street, had been appraised by two realtors at $8,000. In February, the commission gave tentative approval to purchase to land to build a fourth lagoon to the city's sewage disposal system. Mrs. Raymond Lacey, owner of the property is asking $9,000 for the land.

The commission instructed the city attorney to set up a lease whereby Mrs. Lacey may live in her home as long as she lives. The commission will also meet with owners of adjoining Recra-Lan, to discuss the possibility of obtaining a right-a-way across the Recra-Lan corporation property.

An amendment to a city ordinance allowing city residents to shoot birds which destroy crops was approved by the commission. The resident must first obtain a permit to do so. The permit is good for four months.

Mrs. Rita Barrington, 220 Elizabeth street, requested the commission to look into the possibility of installing a street light in front of the Methodist church on Elizabeth street.

The commission instructed its attorney to check into who is liable for payment of a $77 water and sewer bill. Steve Kiff, route 4, Fennville, said a person who had bought the land from him on a land contract has left town with the bill unpaid.

The commission will meet in special session Monday, April 12, to discuss the city's proposed budget, which will be presented at a public hearing Monday, May 17, at 7:30 p.m. at city hall.

Robert Peterson was appointed to serve the remaining 2½ year term on the cemetery board.

Robert Pratt, police chief, was granted permission to seek bids for a new radar gun. Chief Pratt announced the city's new patrol car is expected in about two weeks.

DECATUR — A 20 per cent boost in village water rates to become effective in June was approved by the Decatur village council last night. The increase is to cover higher costs of maintenance, village councilmen said.

Under present rates, homeowners pay a flat rate of $8.50 twice a year for under 15,000 gallons used per six-month period.

The new rate is $1.50 per month - or $9 per six-month period - for under 10,000 gallons used in the period.

The ordinance first introduced in February also provides for additional charges for over the 10,000-gallon minimum.

In other areas last night, the council set its annual village cleanup day for Saturday, May 1. A village street truck will pick up trash placed at curbs.

The council also rejected the only bid it got to cut down diseased or dead trees in the village. The bid was from John Schur of Lawton and was for $894 to remove five trees.

On the sewer and water committee are Trustees Charles Carson and Lyle Overton; streets and parking, Travis Graves and Carl Keyes; police and fire, Donald Wickett and Elanor Smith; parks and recreation, Smith and Keyes.

$500,000 Restaurant Wins SJ City Approval

St. Joseph city commissioners last night approved a new $500,000 restaurant-lounge on the site of the present Lake lodge on the condition that it be constructed under the Planned Development concept.

The commission declined to rezone the property from A-3 residential to C-2 commercial, saying that the property could then be used for purposes other than a restaurant.

City officials said they were all for the new restaurant, but wanted to be sure that's what would be built at 1820 Lake Shore drive, and Planned Development was the way.

The rezoning had been sought by James Wedell, co-owner with his mother, Mrs. Opal Wedell, of Lake lodge. Wedell said last night he accepted the commission's decision.

City Atty. Arthur G. Preston Jr. said, "Once we OK C-2 outright you can do what you want (with the property) and it's out of the city's hands." Preston said the city got "burned" a few years ago when rezoning was approved for a certain project that never went through.

City Manager Gerald W. Heppler explained that planned development "falls under the special use category" and the property will remain zoned A-3. He said the city, through the planning commission, will become directly involved in the project as they will be called on to approve certain phases of the project.

Heppler said it's the first time the city has used planned development for such a project.

The city planning commission last week recommended rezoning with the provision that building plans be submitted before the rezoning took effect.

Wedell, at last night's meeting, questioned if planned development "wasn't too much city control" and said it "will make it much harder to get financing."

Commissioner William Gillespie said he did not think lending institutions would go against Wedell as long as they knew he'd gotten permission from the commission to go ahead with the project.

Also last night the commission voted approval to enter into an agreement with the Army Corps of Engineers for a five-year easement to dock the dredge Hains along the St. Joseph river below the bandshell.

The agreement is for docking privileges from April through June for five years beginning this year. Heppler also reported the Corps has commenced placement of dredged material into the St. Joseph feeder beach area beginning at Park street to the water plant.

The commission voted acceptance of a low bid from Wesley Thomas, Benton Harbor, to do work for the sidewalk repair program this spring.

The program will be concentrated in the area bounded by Lake Shore drive to the west, Harrison avenue to the north, Wallace and Kingsley avenues to the south and the St. Joseph river to the east. Under the program city employes inspect the sidewalks and residents are contacted if the sidewalk near their home is in need of reapair.

The repair can be done by the resident or the city (Thomas) in which case the resident is billed. Bids were based on price estimates for repair of 4-inch concrete, 6-inch concrete per square foot and root removal. Thomas' bids were $1.17, $1.40 and $17.50, respectively. Other bids were by Victor Haak ($1.75, $1.95 and $12, respectively) and M&S Construction ($1.75, $2 and $15, respectively).

Fennville Ambulance Chief Expects Approval Of Grant

FENNVILLE — John Kelly, director of Fennville's volunteer ambulance service, expressed optimism last night that the city's request for a federal grant to purchase a second ambulance would be approved.

Kelly told the city commission the grant application had been endorsed by the West Michigan Comprehensive Health Planning unit, and he expected a favorable decision on the grant by April 19.

Estimated cost of the new ambulance, along with necessary equipment, is $8,300. Kelly said the federal grant, if approved, would pay 70 per cent of the cost, with the city and four townships (Clyde, Manlius, Ganges and Lee) participating in the service picking up the remaining 30 per cent.

In other areas, the commission said the Lacey property at the south end of Maple street, had been appraised by two realtors at $8,000. In February, the commission gave tentative approval to purchase to land to build a fourth lagoon to the city's sewage disposal system. Mrs. Raymond Lacey, owner of the property is asking $9,000 for the land.

The commission instructed the city attorney to set up a lease whereby Mrs. Lacey may live in her home as long as she lives. The commission will also meet with owners of adjoining Recra-Lan, to discuss the possiblity of obtaining a right-a-way across the Recra-Lan corporation property.

An amendment to a city ordinance allowing city residents to shoot birds which destroy crops was approved by the commission. The resident must first obtain a permit to do so. The permit is good for four months.

Mrs. Rita Barrington, 220 Elizabeth street, requested the commission to look into the possibility of installing a street light in front of the Methodist church on Elizabeth street.

The commission instructed its attorney to check into who is liable for payment of a $77 water and sewer bll. Steve Kiff, route 4, Fennville, said a person who had bought the land from him on a land contract has left town with the bill unpaid.

The commission will meet in special session Monday, April 12, to discuss the city's proposed budget, which will be presented at a public hearing Monday, May 17, at 7:30 p.m. at city hall.

Robert Peterson was appointed to serve the remaining 2½-year term on the cemetery board.

Robert Pratt, police chief, was granted permission to seek bids for a new radar gun. Chief Pratt announced the city's new patrol car is expected in about two weeks.

Coloma Residents Oppose Apartments

COLOMA — A group of residents told the Coloma township board last night they were opposed to construction of a 48 unit low-rent apartment center proposed for the township.

Mrs. Howard Lorenz appeared before the board to learn how residents could start a petition drive to oppose the construction of the units and rezoning of the land involved.

She was told petitions opposing the project could be submitted at the next township planning commission meeting, Monday, April 26, at 7:30 p.m., at the township hall.

Another township resident, John Cannaven, told the board the apartments, which he labelled "rat traps", would lead to tripling the police force and having to build another school.

Other comments concerning the proposed apartments covered the possible lowering of property values in the surrounding area and an increase in low rental type housing throughout the township if the apartments are built.

The apartments proposal was made by Al Kolberg of Coloma, during the planning commission's March 29 meeting.

Kolberg said the units would rent for between $120 and $140 per month and would be located on 6.7 acres of land he owns across from the Wil-O-Paw bowling alley, off Paw Paw Lake road. No action was taken, pending receipt of additional information.

The land must be rezoned from single-family to multi-family before the development would be permitted.

In other areas, the board approved rezoning 10 acres of land on Mountain road clearing the way for construction of a 20-lane bowling alley and lounge by Ken Sulko of Coloma. Sulko said construction on the building would not begin until early 1977.

Board action followed approval by both the township planning commission and county planning commission.

The board postponed action until May on a proposal by Coloma Fire Chief Leonard Dolezan whereby the township would pay 60 per cent of the costs of fire fighting apparatus (coats, boots, helmets) for the department. Coloma city would pay the balance.

According to Dolezan, the fire department has more fires in the township, resulting with the higher percentage of costs for the equipment.

The board took no action on paying $450 for six plectron units purchased by the fire department. The city is to pay a similar amount.

The board accepted the resignation of Robert Becht as secretary of the township zoning board of appeals, effective March 2. A replacement is expected to be named next month.

The board approved plans for the proposed Lake Pointe subdivision, to contain 13 lakefront and channel front houses, at Paw Paw Lake and Beech roads.

Supervisor Ewald Eckblom said a complaint from Javis Pappalardo, Curtis Island, about the condition of Curtis drive, would be referred to the Berrien county road commission.

A complaint from John Hayhurst, Paw Paw Lake road, about noise from motorcyclists in a vacant lot near his home was referred to the police department.

Lake Twp. Water Plant Site Paid Off

BRIDGMAN — The land on which Lake township's water pumping station is located now belongs to the township.

Lake township Supervisor Wade Shuler said the township board last night authorized the final payment of $35,333 which makes the 52-acre tract on Livingston road the township's.

Approval to buy the land for $135,000 from Lavey Tharpe Pansche of Norway was given by township residents at the 1973 annual township meeting.

The land included two parcels, about 19.7 acres at the Lake Michigan end of Livingston, and 33 acres at the I-94 — Livingston road overpass.

Infant Is Killed In Fall From Car

OTSEGO — A 23-month-old girl was killed here last night at about 6:30 p.m. when she fell from the rear door of a car driven by a friend of the infant's mother, according to Otsego police.

Police said the infant, Dana Lovett, was pronounced dead on arrival at Pipp Community hospital, Plainwell. The infant was the daughter of Kal and Deborah Lovett, both of Otsego.

Mrs. Lovett, 18, said she had allowed a friend to take the infant for a car ride while Mrs. Lovett was washing clothes in a laundromat.

She identified the friend as Marilyn Root, 19, 228 Temple street, Otsego.

Officers said the car, a four-door Lincoln, was rounding a curve on east Allegan street when the left rear door swing open and the infant, alone in the back seat, was thrown to the street.

Police said the door was hinged at the rear and may have been blown wide open by wind after being opened slightly. The infant died of head injuries and was not run over, officers said.

Miss Root has not been charged, but the accident remains under investigation, officers said.

A passenger, Thomas Sherburne, 17, was riding in the front seat when the accident occurred, Mrs. Lovett said.

Dowagiac's Angry About Taxes

DOWAGIAC — The Dowagiac city council last night in a strongly worded statement declared its opposition to the present system of property taxation in Michigan.

The council unanimously passed a resolution blasting rising property taxes, rising assessments and the state-mandated system of applying an equalization factor (SEV) to assessments.

The resolution also petitioned the governor and legislature to propose a "more fair and equitable means" of raising funds for school districts. Most school districts in Michigan, including Dowagiac's, obtain about half their revenues from local property taxation.

The resolution was drafted by City Atty. Herbert Phillipson Jr. at the request of Councilman David Graper.

The resolution says real property is "essential to the production of goods, the earning of income and the foundation of wealth in this country." It complains that owners are punished for improving their property by increased assessments which result in higher taxes, and it protests "the inequities of assessment, multiplied by erroneous evaluations."

It also complains that "the improvement of property and the investment of money in real estate is deterred, inhibited and prevented by the penalty imposed through taxation on the increased value arising from improvements."

Copies of the resolution are to be sent to the various area state legislators.

In other areas, the council voted to vacate Plato street, an undeveloped one-block street on the city's north side following a public hearing where no objections were received. Previously, the council rezoned five lots in the same area for light industrial use to permit construction of a metal building for occupation by a plastics plant.

The council voted to accept the low bid of Bob McCaleb Fire Equipment company, Muskegon Heights, for 1,000 feet of fire hose at a total cost of $1,750.

The council granted required approval to Mr. and Mrs. William Burroughs for a farmland tax exemption agreement with the state for property located along California road, two miles west of the city.

Council approval is needed in cases where the property concerned is less than three miles from a municipal boundary.

Mayor Graham Woodhouse presented a trophy to Mrs. Madelynn Terkos and her son, Michael, 3, of 103 East Prairie Ronde street, for their winning entry in the winter snow sculpture contest sponsored by the city parks and recreation department.

City Manager Henry E. Graper Jr. told the council he will be meeting Thursday with the airport board to discuss the use of surplus property at the city-owned airport. Graper said some land is being sought for hangar construction.

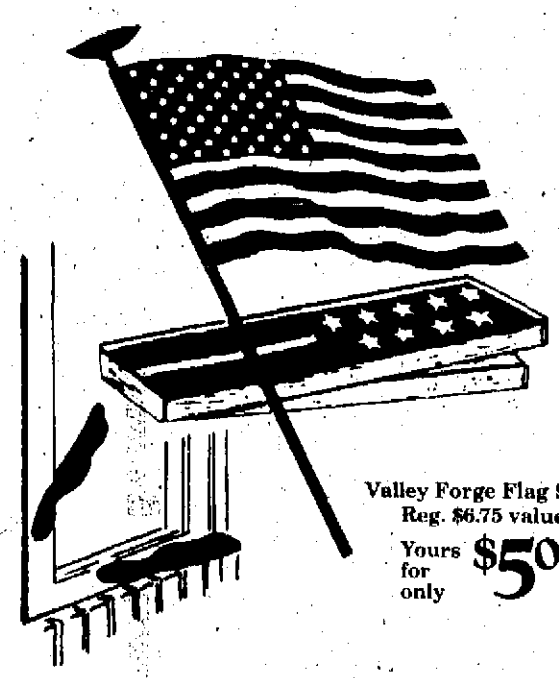

Graper also told the council that over the past weekend someone tried to tear down part of the Bicentennial flag display in front of city hall. Two flag poles were damaged and one was removed. It was found in a nearby alley.

Graper termed the incident "sad" and said the vandals will be prosecuted if apprehended.

Willard Osborne told the council that the annexation of the Vahi-Land and Bob Howe Ford properties into the city is still being held up through a court appeal by Pokagon and Silver Creek townships.

A hearing is to be held April 23 in Ingham county circuit court, he said.

U.S. Senate Hopeful Invites Comparisons

By PIET BENNETT
Associated Press Writer
(Seventh of a Series)

Rep. James O'Hara is leaning on his reputation in bidding for a U.S. Senate seat.

"I'm basing my effort on my record. I'd be happy to have my record compared to anybody else," O'Hara says. At 50, the Democrat from Macomb County has spent nine terms in Congress.

REP. JAMES O'HARA
Senate hopeful

Talk about possible repeal of the treaty allowing free exchange of autos between the United States and Canada is just one instance of how O'Hara is relying on his record.

"The rest of the state is finally catching up with me. I was one of three Michigan representatives to vote against it" when the treaty came up during the 1960s, he notes.

O'Hara insists he's contended consistently that the 11-year-old treaty would cost American jobs "and it has cost us jobs." He says he believed from the beginning the agreement would create jobs in Canada rather than this country.

Although labeling the treaty "a bad deal from the beginning," O'Hara doubts "there is anything the Congress can do." He says the treaty can be ended by one year's notice from either nation but predicts the major auto makers would battle any efforts to do so.

O'Hara says he's a Senate candidate because, "I think with my experience and background in the U.S. Congress, I can do more in the U.S. Senate than I can in the House."

He backs certain increases in federal spending such as in "terms of economic stimulus areas" and health care. But he calls for cutting defense expenditures, especially for some weapons systems he terms "redundant."

O'Hara says the nation "ought to make some choices and not go ahead with the development" for a multitude of weapons systems. He cites the B-1 bomber in that context.

The Congressman expresses strong opposition to busing for school integration.

"I'm against busing," he says flatly. "It was wrong when it was done in the South 20 years ago and it is wrong when it is done in the North today."

But he predicts that issue will have little impact on the Senate race since, "I don't think there are going to be any pro-busing candidates."

O'Hara says he has made no firm decision about the Navy's efforts to install a giant underground communications system in the Upper Peninsula.

But he says the Navy "must demonstrate there is no significant environmental impact."

Car Ferry Schedules Announced

CLEVELAND, Ohio — Chessie System today announced 1976 passenger schedules for its Lake Michigan auto and passenger ferries effective from Friday, June 11, to Tuesday, Sept. 7.

Three ships will provide two round trips daily between Ludington, Mich., and Manitowoc, Wisc. The port of Kewaunee, Wis., will also be serve by the ferries, but on an unscheduled basis.

Ferries will leave Ludington westbound at 8 a.m. EDT and 7 p.m. EDT, with arrival at Manitowoc at 9 a.m. CDT and at 10 p.m. CDT, respectively. The 8 a.m. sailing is on a daily basis and the evening one operates Tuesday through Saturday.

Ships will depart for Milwaukee daily at 8:30 a.m. EDT and 1:30 p.m. EDT, with arrival at 1:30 p.m. CDT and 6:30 p.m. CDT, respectively.

Eastbound, the autoferries will leave Milwaukee daily at 3:30 p.m. CDT AND —:30 p.m. CDT, with arrival at Ludington at 10:30 p.m. EDT and 3:30 a.m. EDT, respectively.

They will leave Manitowoc for Ludington at 12 noon CDT and 1:30 a.m. CDT, with arrival at 5 p.m. EDT and 6:30 a.m. EDT, respectively. The earlier departure will operate daily and the overnight one Wednesday through Sunday.

One-way fares at $8.50 for adults, $4.25 for children age 5-15, and $15 for automobiles. For passengers without a vehicle, a Chessie Cruise Package — a continuous round trip, without stopover and including one meal — is available at $14 for adults and $7 for children, age 5-15. Children under 5 travel free.

The fare schedule is subject to approval by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Fares will become effective April 19 if approved.

They'd Put Warning In Writing

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A warning against eating PCB-tainted Great Lakes fish would be included in a state fishing booklet under a proposal from the Michigan United Conservation Clubs.

The group will ask the Natural Resources Commission this week to okay the warning for inclusion in the fishing digest which is given to anyone who buys a Michigan fishing license.

MUCC Executive Director Tom Washington said Monday the warning would be similar to those printed on cigarette packages.

It would warn fishermen against eating Great Lakes chinook, coho salmon, rainbow trout and lake trout more than once every week or two. It would tell fishermen that levels of polychlorinated biphenyl, an industrial chemical, in the fish exceed safe limits for public consumption.

It's An Early Education Plan For Tots

U.S. Educators Watching BEEP

By SHELLY COHEN
Associated Press Writer

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — They're revolutionaries in rompers, these two-year-olds running around the playroom, throwing blocks, sliding down a slide.

They may look just like any two-year-olds, but they're among the most diagnosed, tested and observed youngsters in the country. They're the children of BEEP (Brookline Early Education Project) and, educators from all over the country are watching this pilot program which one day could revolutionize public education.

BEEP is the first known program to involve a public school system in the education of children from birth.

It is based on the concept put forth by several psychologists and education experts that a child's most critical learning is done before the age of three. They say that nearly all achievement after that depends on what is learned during that crucial period.

"If BEEP proves successful school systems will have to take another look at their order of priorities," said Dr. Donald Pierson, program director.

School systems usually spend the most money on high school students, far less on elementary school pupils and little or none on pre-schoolers.

BEEP by contrast provides support and education to toddlers in the program and "especially to parents, who we consider the most important educators," Pierson said.

BEEP was opened to residents of Brookline, a Boston suburb, who had children born between March 1973 and October 1974 and some black and Hispanic youngsters from nearby Boston born during the same period. The program started with 285 children in October 1974 and is now down to 230 families because some have moved.

Pierson said he expects to have about 125 families still participating when the children reach second grade and the project ends.

BEEP, which provides physical and psychological testing, play groups and in some cases day care, is free to all of its participants. It's financed by grants from the Carnegie Corp. of New York and the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation.

"If important benefits do seem to occur then recommendations will be made to the Brookline School Committee and school committees around the country," Pierson said.

Madison, Wis., and the St. Louis suburb of Clayton adopted similar programs in the past year.

The Clayton program, which started in January for children age one to 24 months, differs from BEEP in that it is centered in the school rather than the home. Sessions are held daily including Saturday.

Barbara Geno, program coordinator and an early visitor to the Brookline educators' program, said:

"Our program is geared to the parents rather than the children. We felt that parents needed a support system. We teach them to become better observers of their children and to understand the stages of growth and development."

The Madison project, which began in September, serves 90 children, most of them handicapped and ranging from infants to the age of 5. Some normal children serve for the handicapped youngsters as examples to follow.

"We're playing catch-up because the kids are developmentally delayed," said staff director Kay Broome. "We have families that are super-excited about the progress their kids have made since September."

Parents of BEEP children are excited.

The mother of one two-yearold girl said: "It's helped me be more aware of her development. It's taught me what to look for and what to look out for."

While her daughter is in day care, she stops by the once elegant old mansion that now houses the BEEP offices and playrooms. She chats with other mothers, passing on her experiences — "Don't worry, kids often get a rash with a high fever" — and shares a look at a new catalog of baby clothes.

In fact, the chance for parents to get together is as much a part of the program as its battery of tests.

"We've found most families with young children around here don't have family nearby," Pierson said. "They experience a feeling of isolation. We are open to provide a place to get together, provide contact with experts in the field and teach parents how to better utilize existing resources."

Last Of Two Articles

EDITOR's NOTE: Many child psychologists say the first three years of life are the most important and new educational programs should be created to assure adequate child development. The Brookline, Mass., school system has such a program. It's described in this last of two articles on early learning experiences.

Much of the education is aimed at the parents, rather than the children, and even then it's subtle.

"We don't pretend to tell parents what they should do," Pierson said. "We want them to pick and choose. We try to get them to relax and realize there's no formula and to enjoy their child at this time — to realize their child is unique and that the child's development is not totally dependent on them. That the child brings something, too."

Teachers from the BEEP Center meet with parents at home and spend time with the children at the center joining in their play groups. All of the teachers are also parents of young children.

They help other parents tackle such problems as how to make the house safe for crawling infants or what to do about sibling rivalries.

Next year the youngsters, who will then be three to four years old, will be eligible for a daily nursery school. "For parents who choose that option," Pierson said. It's the options that BEEP instructors emphasize. They try to build on whatever family situation exists, whether that includes a single parent, a working mother or an extended family where grandparents share the home.

Although the parent is recognized as the child's most important educator "we think the quality of time spent with a child may be as important as the amount of time," Pierson said.

It will be nearly five years before anyone knows whether BEEP has been a success. When the children are in second grade, they will be tested and compared with a group of children not given BEEP's advantages.

Researchers will try to determine if the BEEP children have fewer health and learning problems and whether parents take a more active role in the school their child attends than most parents. They also will be looking at the impact of BEEP youngsters on the school system. Pierson said, and how the school system responds to the needs of those children.

Laser Beam Fights Quakes

SEATTLE (AP) — A highly sensitive laser beam device developed and tested in the hills around Seattle is at work along California's San Andreas Fault in what scientists hope will lead to an early warning system for earthquakes.

A University of Washington research team uses the beam to detect any movement in the earth's crust. Surface deformation often precedes earthquakes.

Going Back Today In History

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, April 6, the 97th day of 1976. There are 269 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1917, President Woodrow Wilson signed a Declaration of War between the United States and Germany.

On this date:

In 1777, Marquis de Lafayette's French volunteers arrived in America to assist in the revolution against Britain.

In 1841, Vice President John Tyler was sworn in as the 10th American president after the death of President William Harrison.

In 1965, the world's first commercial satellite, the communications satellite Early Bird, was launched from Florida's Cape Canaveral.

Ten years ago: The Brooklyn-born opera star, Maria Callas, gave up her American citizenship in an attempt to solve her marital and financial problems.

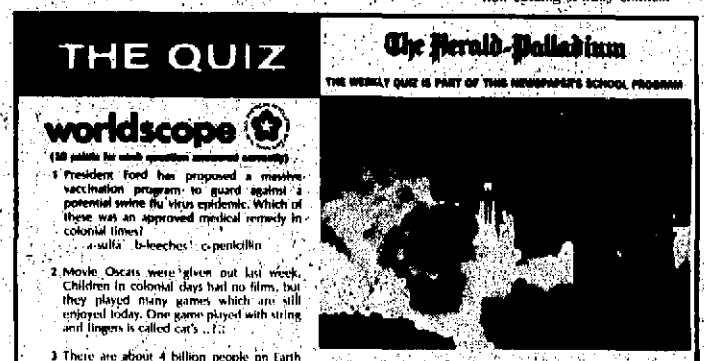

Five years ago: Composer Igor Stravinsky died in New York. He was 88.

One year ago: U.S. Embassy personnel were being evacuated from Phnom Penh as enemy forces carried out ground attacks seven miles from the Cambodian capital.

Thought for today: Imagination is more important than knowledge — physicist Albert Einstein, 1879-1955.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, the Continental Congress in Philadelphia resolved that any merchandise could be exported from the American Colonies except to British ports.

WATCHING PILOT PROGRAM: Lauren Dropkin, 3, of Brookline, Mass., is coaxed through tunnel by Maureen Rooney of Boston, in Brookline Early Education Project. BEEP is the first known program to involve a public school system in the education of children from birth. (AP Wirephoto)

It's An Early Education Plan For Tots

U.S. Educators Watching BEEP

By SHELLY COHEN
Associated Press Writer

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — They're revolutionaries in rompers, these two-year-olds running around the playroom, throwing blocks, sliding down a slide.

They may look just like any two-year-olds, but they're among the most diagnosed, tested and observed youngsters in the country. They're the children of BEEP (Brookline Early Education Project) and, educators from all over the country are watching this pilot program which one day could revolutionize public education.

BEEP is the first known program to involve a public school system in the education of children from birth.

It is based on the concept put forth by several psychologists and education experts that a child's most critical learning is done before the age of three. They say that nearly all achievement after that depends on what is learned during that crucial period.

"If BEEP proves successful school systems will have to take another look at their order of priorities," said Dr. Donald Pierson, program director.

School systems usually spend the most money on high school students, far less on elementary school pupils and little or none on pre-schoolers.

BEEP by contrast provides support and education to toddlers in the program and "especially to parents, who we consider the most important educators," Pierson said.

BEEP was opened to residents of Brookline, a Boston suburb, who had children born between March 1973 and October 1974 and some black and His panic youngsters from nearby Boston born during the same period. The program started with 285 children in October 1974 and is now down to 230 families because some have moved.

Pierson said he expects to have about 125 families still participating when the children reach second grade and the project ends.

BEEP, which provides physical and psychological testing, play groups and in some cases day care, is free to all of its participants. It's financed by grants from the Carnegie Corp. of New York and the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation.

"If important benefits do seem to occur then recommendations will be made to the Brookline School Committee and school committees around the country," Pierson said.

Madison, Wis., and the St. Louis suburb of Clayton adopted similar programs in the past year.

The Clayton program, which started in January for children age one to 24 months, differs from BEEP in that it is centered in the school rather than the home. Sessions are held daily including Saturday.

Barbara Geno, program coordinator and an early visitor to the Brookline educators' program, said:

"Our program is geared to the parents rather than the children. We felt that parents needed a support system. We teach them to become better observers of their children and to understand the stages of growth and development."

The Madison project, which began in September, serves 90 children, most of them handicapped and ranging from infants to the age of 5. Some normal children serve for the handicapped youngsters as examples to follow.

"We're playing catch-up because the kids are developmentally delayed," said staff director Kay Broome. "We have families that are super-excited about the progress their kids have made since September."

Parents of BEEP children are excited.

The mother of one two-yearold girl said: "It's helped me be more aware of her development. It's taught me what to look for and what to look out for."

While her daughter is in day care, she stops by the once elegant old mansion that now houses the BEEP offices and playrooms. She chats with other mothers, passing on her experiences — "Don't worry, kids often get a rash with a high fever" — and shares a look at a new catalog of baby clothes.

In fact, the chance for parents to get together is as much a part of the program as its battery of tests.

"We've found most families with young children around here don't have family nearby," Pierson said. "They experience a feeling of isolation. We are open to provide a place to get together, provide contact with experts in the field and teach parents how to better utilize existing resources."

Last Of Two Articles

EDITOR's NOTE: Many child psychologists say the first three years of life are the most important and new educational programs should be created to assure adequate child development. The Brookline, Mass., school system has such a program. It's described in this last of two articles on early learning experiences.

Much of the education is aimed at the parents, rather than the children, and even then it's subtle.

"We don't pretend to tell parents what they should do," Pierson said. "We want them to pick and choose. We try to get them to relax and realize there's no formula and to enjoy their child at this time — to realize their child is unique and that the child's development is not totally dependent on them. That the child brings something, too."

Teachers from the BEEP Center meet with parents at home and spend time with the children at the center joining in their play groups. All of the teachers are also parents of young children.

They help other parents tackle such problems as how to make the house safe for crawling infants or what to do about sibling rivalries.

Next year the youngsters, who will then be three to four years old, will be eligible for a daily nursery school, "for parents who choose that option," Pierson said. It's the options that BEEP instructors emphasize. They try to build on whatever family situation exists, whether that includes a single parent, a working mother or an extended family where grandparents share the home.

Although the parent is recognized as the child's most important educator "we think the quality of time spent with a child may be as important as the amount of time," Pierson said.

It will be nearly five years before anyone knows whether BEEP has been a success. When the children are in second grade, they will be tested and compared with a group of children not given BEEP's advantages.

Researchers will try to determine if the BEEP children have fewer health and learning problems and whether parents take a more active role in the school their child attends than most parents. They also will be looking at the impact of BEEP youngsters on the school system, Pierson said, and how the school system responds to the needs of those children.

U.S. Senate Hopeful Invites Comparisons

By PIET BENNETT
Associated Press Writer
(Seventh of a Series)

Rep. James O'Hara is leaning on his reputation in bidding for a U.S. Senate seat.

"I'm basing my effort on my record. I'd be happy to have my record compared to anybody else," O'Hara says. At 50, the Democrat from Macomb County has spent nine terms in Congress.

REP. JAMES O'HARA
Senate hopeful

Talk about possible repeal of the treaty allowing free exchange of autos between the United States and Canada is just one instance of how O'Hara is relying on his record.

"The rest of the state is finally catching up with me. I was one of three Michigan representatives to vote against it" when the treaty came up during the 1960s, he notes.

O'Hara insists he's contended consistently that the 11-year-old treaty would cost American jobs "and it has cost us jobs." He says he believed from the beginning the agreement would create jobs in Canada rather than this country.

Although labeling the treaty "a bad deal from the beginning," O'Hara doubts "there is anything the Congress can do." He says the treaty can be ended by one year's notice from either nation but predicts the major auto makers would battle any efforts to do so.

O'Hara says he's a Senate candidate because, "I think with my experience and background in the U.S. Congress, I can do more in the U.S. Senate than I can in the House."

He backs certain increases in federal spending such as in "terms of economic stimulus areas" and health care. But he calls for cutting defense expenditures, especially for some weapons systems he terms "redundant."

O'Hara says the nation "ought to make some choices and not go ahead with the development" for a multitude of weapons systems. He cites the B-1 bomber in that context.

The Congressman expresses strong opposition to busing for school integration.

"I'm against busing," he says flatly. "It was wrong when it was done in the South 20 years ago and it is wrong when it is done in the North today."

But he predicts that issue will have little impact on the Senate race since, "I don't think there are going to be any pro-busing candidates."

O'Hara says he has made no firm decision about the Navy's efforts to install a giant underground communications system in the Upper Peninsula.

But he says the Navy "must demonstrate there is no significant environmental impact" for its proposed Project Seafarer.

O'Hara says he has no preference in the presidential race because, "I've got my own canoe to paddle. I think most of them (the candidates) would be acceptable."

He says says he has disclosed his personal finances in the Congressional Record for more than a decade and will do so again this year. O'Hara contends such financial reporting is relatively simple for him since, "I have all my assets tied up in kids. So, I don't have any stock holdings."

Despite relying on his record, O'Hara apparently was the first Senate candidate to start campaign advertising. A series of radio spots began running in early March.

The spots address no issues and merely introduce O'Hara, give his age, say he is the father of seven and that he has been in the House since 1959.

"These are dollars we won't have to spend later," O'Hara says when asked the reason for such early ads. He estimates his campaign will try to raise about $300,000.

When asked about any other major issue he is stressing, O'Hara says he is trying to do something for working folks who "pay the full shot to the tax collector and they can't get any help" from the government to send children to college or for family illnesses.

Car Ferry Schedules Announced

CLEVELAND, Ohio — Chessie System today announced 1976 passenger schedules for its Lake Michigan auto and passenger ferries effective from Friday, June 11, to Tuesday, Sept. 7.

Three ships will provide two round trips daily between Ludington, Mich. and Manitowoc, Wisc. The port of Kewaunee, Wis., will also be serve by the ferries, but on an unscheduled basis.

Ferries will leave Ludington westbound at 6 a.m. EDT and 7 p.m. EDT, with arrival at Manitowoc at 9 a.m. CDT and at 10 p.m. CDT, respectively. The 6 a.m. sailing is on a daily basis and the evening one operates Tuesday through Saturday.

Ships will depart for Milwaukee daily at 8:30 a.m. EDT and 1:30 p.m. EDT, with arrival at 1:30 p.m. CDT and 6:30 p.m. CDT, respectively.

Eastbound, the autoferries will leave Milwaukee daily at 3:30 p.m. CDT AND —:30 p.m. CDT, with arrival at Ludington at 10:30 p.m. EDT and 3:30 a.m. EDT, respectively.

They will leave Manitowoc for Ludington at 12 noon CDT and 1:30 a.m. CDT, with arrival at 5 p.m. EDT and 6:30 a.m. EDT, respectively. The earlier departure will operate daily and the overnight one Wednesday through Sunday.

One-way fares at $8.50 for adults, $4.25 for children age 5-15, and $15 for automobiles. For passengers without a vehicle, a Chessie Cruise Package — a continuous round trip without stopover and including one meal — is available at $14 for adults and $7 for children, age 5-15. Children under 5 travel free.

The fare schedule is subject to approval by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Fares will become effective April 19 if approved.

They'd Put Warning In Writing

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A warning against eating PCB-tainted Great Lakes fish would be included in a state fishing booklet under a proposal from the Michigan United Conservation Clubs.

The group will ask the Natural Resources Commission this week to okay the warning for inclusion in the fishing digest which is given to anyone who buys a Michigan fishing license.

MUCC Executive Director Tom Washington said Monday the warning would be similar to those printed on cigarette packages.

It would warn fishermen against eating Great Lakes chinook, coho salmon, rainbow trout and lake trout more than once every week or two. It would tell fishermen that levels of polychlorinated biphenyl, an industrial chemical, in the fish exceed safe limits for public consumption.

Laser Beam Fights Quakes

SEATTLE (AP) — A highly sensitive laser beam device developed and tested in the hills around Seattle is at worklong California's San Andreas Fault in what scientists hope will lead to an early warning system for earthquakes.

A University of Washington research team uses the beam to detect any movement in the earth's crust. Surface deformation often precedes earthquakes.

Going Back Today In History

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, April 6, the 97th day of 1976. There are 269 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1917, President Woodrow Wilson signed a Declaration of War between the United States and Germany.

On this date:

In 1830, the first Mormon church was organized by Joseph Smith at Fayette, N.Y.

In 1841, Vice President John Tyler was sworn in as the 10th American president after the death of President William Harrison.

In 1965, the world's first commercial satellite, the communications satellite Early Bird, was launched from Florida's Cape Canaveral.

Ten years ago: The Brooklyn-born opera star, Maria Callas, gave up her American citizenship in an attempt to solve her marital and fianancial problems.

One year ago: U.S. Embassy personnel were being evacuated from Phnom Penh as enemy forces carried out ground attacks seven miles from the Cambodian capital.

Thought for today: Imagination is more important than knowledge — physicist Albert Einstein, 1879-1855.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, the Continental Congress in Philadelphia resolved that any merchandise could be exported from the American Colonies except to British ports.

Four Inmates Escape

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP) — Four inmates at the St. Clair County jail escaped Monday after locking two guards in cells, deputies reported. A fifth inmate was caught shortly after he broke out, deputies reported. Deputies said the four broke out of the maximum security section of the jail about 8:35 p.m. Deputies say the escapees apparently pushed out new security screening put in escape. The guards who were placed in cells were not hurt. Officials say two of the escapees were in prison awaiting murder trials. One of them is Robert Taylor, 31, who is charged with the robbery-abduction-murder of a Port Huron motel clerk.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Funeral services will be held today for David M. Dennison, professor emeritus of physics at the University of Michigan. He died Saturday at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital at the age of 75.

The Bag Wasn't Sealed

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Results of a judge's race cannot be recounted in certain Detroit precincts because the ballot box and bag weren't properly sealed, the Michigan Supreme Court has ruled. The Monday ruling, which overturns an earlier decision in the state Court of Appeals, came on a suit filed by George Ryan against the Wayne County Board of Canvassers. Ryan was a candidate for Detroit Recorder's Court in November 1972, according to court record. Seven people were elected to the bench. Ryan finished eighth. He asked the board of commissioners for a recount of 192 of the 1185 election precincts. The canvassers refused to recount 16 absentee voter precincts. The high court noted that the ballot box and bag for those precincts were not sealed with a seal of record as requires for a recount.

Four Inmates Escape

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP) — Four inmates at the St. Clair County jail escaped Monday after locking two guards in cells, deputies reported. A fifth inmate was caught shortly after he broke out, deputies reported. Deputies said the four broke out of the maximum security section of the jail about 8:35 p.m. Deputies say the escapees apparently pushed out new security screening out to escape. The guards who were placed in cells were not hurt. Officials say two of the escapees were in prison awaiting murder trials. One of them is Robert Taylor, 31, who is charged with the robbery-abduction-murder of a Port Huron motel clerk.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Market Trading Active

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pushed ahead again today in active trading, building on its spirited rally Monday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stock prices was up about three points after early trades.

And New York Stock Exchange issues advancing in price held a 3-1 margin on those declining.

The pace was brisk in the early going, with the NYSE ticker tape running five minutes behind in recording trades at one point.

The market's swift rise Monday was attributed to the weekend settlement of the nationwide Teamsters strike, which many investors feared could have hindered the economy's recovery.

Analysts noted that investors were also encouraged by the expectation that corporate profits in the first quarter would be higher than earlier forecasts.

Early prices today included American Telephone & Telegraph, up ¼ at 57; Fruehauf Corp., a truck trailer company, down ⅜ at 24½; and Wang Laboratories, off ⅞ at 18½.

On Monday, the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 12.51 to close at 1,000.09, its first close above the 1,000 mark since March 26.

New York Stock Exchange issues advancing in price led those declining by more than a 3-1 margin.

Volume on the Big Board rose to 21.94 million sahres from Friday's 17.42 million.

The NYSE composite index of all its listed common stocks was up .06 at 55.20.

And at the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was .80 higher at 104.89.

New Tractor Pulling Club Picks Norris

BUCHANAN — Erich Norris of Berrien Center has been elected president of the Berrien county Tractor Pullers association, according to Mrs. Mary Ellen Best, the club's newly elected secretary.

Mrs. Best said two vice presidents were also elected at the club's organizational meeting here last week. They were Lester Sobusty, Buchanan, and Kenneth Bohn, Galien.

She said the club will have an open meeting Sunday, April 11, at 8 p.m. at the Buchanan Westerners' clubhouse on Mead road during which plans will be formed for a July 5 tractor pulling contest.

'HEARD NOTHING'

Dairyman Awaits Action By State

COOPERSVILLE, Mich. (AP) — Gerald Woltjer sat and waited Monday for state and local officials to decide what to do with 235 cows he killed, saying they were contaminated with a poisonous chemical.

"We haven't heard a thing," said Donna Woltjer. "They haven't been here."

Woltjer said state and Polkton Township officials "threatened me with jail. But I'm going to fight and I'm just waiting for them."

Polkton Township officials told the Ottawa County farmer on Saturday he had until 4 p.m. Monday to remove the dead animals. Woltjer refused, saying they should be buried in a state burial site near Kalkaska.

"Nobody's showed up yet," Woltjer said late Monday. He added that he understood the township board members were still meeting with the county prosecutor.

Meanwhile, the state Department of Agriculture delayed its decision on whether to quarantine Woltjer's farm. A quarantine would make certain the animals are buried at a state site.

But the question of quarantine depends upon whether the dead animals contain more than 3 parts per million of polybrominated biphenyl (PBB). Woltjer insisted state tests showed two of the eight animals checked did exceed the PBB tolerance level.

Woltjer and other farmers said they planned to be in Lansing today and Thursday to see what Gov. William Milliken will do about PBB problems.

Dr. B.C. Hekhuis, a Coopersville veterinarian, reported Monday he cannot locate the eight animals he tested last week. Woltjer said he sold several to a tallow company at Howard City but at least two remained on his 80-acre farm.

The farmer contended he shot the animals to prevent them from further suffering after he lost a total of $750,000 from PBB poisoning. Woltjer also claimed his farm was recontaminated after PBB cost the former owner that property.

Since the chemical accidentally was mixed into feed sold by Michigan Farm Bureau in 1973, nearly 30,000 cattle, 1.5 million chickens, 4.5 million eggs and huge quantites of milk and butter have been destroyed because they were contaminated with PBB.

Berrien S&L's Join Association

Two Berrien county savings and loan associations have joined the Michigan Automated Clearing House association, MACHA President Alastair Carlyle has announced.

Peoples Savings association of Benton Harbor and First Federal Savings and Loan association of Niles are among six new members of MACHA who represent about 25 per cent of savings and loan assets in the state, according to Carlyle.

MACHA is an automated clearing house for transferring funds electronically among financial institutions, reducing the need for paper checks. It is a non-profit corporation owned by banks, credit unions and savings and loan associations throughout Michigan.

According to Carlyle, 28 savings and loan associations have joined MACHA since its by-laws were revised last December to allow these institutions the same membership privileges as the banks that originated the clearing house a year ago.

He said that membership currently includes 190 banks representing 96 per cent of bank assets in Michigan.

The MACHA computer facilities and administrative offices are located at the Federal Reserve bank in Detroit.

Lee Gives Dog Census To County

PULLMAN — Lee township officials have given up on trying to find someone to conduct a dog census in the township for them and have turned the job back to the Allegan county board of commissioners.

The county board has given townships the alternative of conducting their own census or having the county do it.

Lee Township Clerk Melvin Riston said the township has been unsuccessful in finding someone locally to conduct the census and the township board voted last night to turn the job back over to the county.

In other action, the board approved the township's 1976-77 budget of $60,522 that got preliminary approval from township residents at the annual township meeting Saturday.

The budget is up $8,700 from the 1975-76 budget, with most of the increase coming in a $5,000 boost for road improvements.

Also last night, the board accepted a county offer of $24 monthly as reimbursement for power the sheriff's department uses in operating its communications antenna in the township; adopted a policy requiring people who want to use the township hall to make their request in person before the board; and gave its approval for the purchase of three hand pumps, for about $100 each, by the fire department.

The township's zoning inspector, Edward Yetzke, said March building permits for an estimated $50,000 in construction included four issued for additions to homes, five for mobile homes and two for garages, according to Riston.

May 11 Hearing Set On Tax Law

LANSING — Proposed revisions of Michigan's new Single Business tax will be discussed at a public hearing Tuesday May 11, according to state Sen. Gary Byker R-Hudsonville).

The hearing, sponsored by the Senate Taxation committee which is currently studying the proposal, is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. in the Law building auditorium, Lansing.

The proposal, which was co-sponsored by 30 members of the Senate, is designed to reduce the unexpectedly heavy burden of the Single Business tax on small businesses in Michigan.

Under the proposal, Single Business tax assessments for certain businesses would be reduced by up to 75 percent. It is estimated that as many as 110,000 out of the 132,000 businesses could benefit by the bill which applies to businesses whose gross receipts are $1.5 million or less per year.

Proposed reductions are based on the proportion of federal taxable income to gross receipts. If the proportion is 1 percent or less, the tax would be reduced by 75 percent. A proportion greater than 1 percent but less than 2 percent would yield a 50 percent reduction in the tax, while a proportion of more than 2 percent but less than 3 percent would result in a 25 percent deductionn.

Byker said current projections indicate that the Single Business tax will generate between $36 and $100 million more than anticipated when the legislation was enacted and, in the process, will place a crippling tax burden on small business in Michigan.

Communications from businessmen across the state in recent weeks have indicated support for the proposal which is designed to ease the tax burden on small businesses while guaranteeing adequate revenue as originally deemed necessary.

Byker said it is anticipated that as many as 500 businessmen from across the state will attend the public hearing to testify on behalf of the proposal. Business representatives should plan to participate at the May hearing so that the urgency of the revisions will be made apparent to the full legislature, Byker said.

Four Flags Hotel Fire Cause Unclear

NILES — Cause of a fire that struck the Four Flags Hotel here Saturday remains undetermined, according to Marion Fuller, acting Niles fire chief.

The early morning fire injured seven people and caused an estimated $20,000 to $30,000 damage.

Fuller said yesterday that an investigation by the state fire marshal's office of the four-story hotel late Saturday morning found "nothing conclusive."

Samples of charred wood in the basement storage area where the blaze broke out were taken and results of tests on the material should be known sometime later this week, Fuller said.

Some 200 people, including 150 University of Notre Dame students and their dates attending a dance, between 38 to 40 hotel guests and 10 to 12 people in the hotel bar, were in the four-story structure when the fire was reported at 12:46 a.m. Saturday.

Niles firemen and police said about 30 of the hotel guests either jumped or were rescued from their room windows after smoke and heat prevented them from using stairways and elevators.

Of the seven injured in the blaze, three were hospitalized Saturday. Only one man, David Mortimore, 47, a hotel resident, remained hospitalized today at Pawating hospital, Niles. He was listed in good condition recovering from second degree burns.

Mrs. Alice Fortier, who with her husband, Dennis, owns the building, said the hotel is referring all new customers to surrounding motels until clean up operations are completed.

Three of the businesses in the building, Graham Photography, the Four Flags Beauty shop and the Craft Closet remained closed today. The hotel bar, the Colonial Waffle stop and AA Vacuum Sales and Service opened for business yesterday, Mrs. Fortier said.

Clean up crews and painters began work Sunday morning and are working from the "first floor up," Mrs. Fortier said. She said she was not sure how long the clean up would take, but added it would be, "quite some time," before all operations at the hotel return to normal.

Baroda's 'Pre-Application' For HUD Grant Approved

BARODA — Baroda village council learned last night its pre-application, filed jointly with Baroda township for a $300,000 federal community development grant has been approved by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

President Jerry Pilley stated the approval does not mean the local municipalities will receive the grant but that another application must now follow and approval of it will guarantee them an amount to be determined by HUD.

Approved by the village and township last December as priority projects to be financed by the grant, if approved, were housing rehabilitation and/or loan guarantee programs; construction of water lines, sidewalks and a new Lake street bridge.

Leslie R. Cripps, Berrien Springs, planning consultant, prepared and presented the pre-application for a fee of $4,000, which was shared equally by the two municipalities. The final application fee of $1,000 will be reimbursed by HUD, Cripps stated last December.

In other business, council voted to again make the intersection of Second and Center streets, a four-way stop intersection. It had been made a two-way stop intersection recently, but the council felt the change was not working.

Council tabled for further study the possibility of decreasing the billing for village water useage from a monthly to quarterly basis, which would result in annual savings of $484, according to Ileen Tollas, clerk. In a related matter, council voted to increase the salary of Mrs. Tollas from $15 to $25 for water department billing.

It was voted to obtain estimates for repair work to end a drainage problem on Lemon Creek road from Hickory Creek to Cleveland avenue. Larry Nye, trustee, reported he was informed by Central Advertising, Kalamazoo, that the firm will tear down and remove four billboards, on Lake street, on Wednesday.

Council agreed to obtain further information on a notification from Indiana & Michigan Electric company that the power firm will no longer make inspections of entry service on new buildings and that book ups will not be made until inspection is made by a qualified person appointed by the council.

It was voted to hire Roberts and Merkel, Berrien Springs, to make the water department audit. Permission was granted to Mrs. Connie Schmidt to use the village park pavillion every Thursday morning to hold a Bible study group, which will be open to the public. Howard Gaul, trustee, reported the park's facilities will be officially opened on Saturday, weather permitting.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Market Trading Active

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pushed ahead again today in active trading, building on its spirited rally Monday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stock prices was up about three points after early trades.

The pace was brisk in the early going, with the NYSE ticker tape running five minutes behind in recording trades at one point.

The market's swift rise Monday was attributed to the weekend settlement of the nationwide Teamsters strike, which many investors feared could have hindered the economy's recovery.

Analysts noted that investors were also encouraged by the expectation that corporate profits in the first quarter would be higher than earlier forecasts.

Early prices today included American Telephone & Telegraph, up ¼ at 57; Fruehauf Corp., a truck trailer company, down ⅜ at 24⅛; and Wang Laboratories, off ⅞ at 18½.

On Monday, the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 12.51 to close at 1,004.09, its first close above the 1,000 mark since March 26.

New York Stock Exchange issues advancing in price led those declining by more than a 3-1 margin.

Volume on the Big Board rose to 21.94 million sahres from Friday's 17.42 million.

The NYSE composite index of all its listed common stocks was up .66 at 55.20.

And at the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was .80 higher at 104.89.

New Tractor Pulling Club Picks Norris

BUCHANAN — Erich Norris of Berrien Center has been elected president of the Berrien county Tractor Pullers association, according to Mrs. Mary Ellen Best, the club's newly elected secretary.

Mrs. Best said two vice presidents were also elected at the club's organizational meeting here last week. They were Lester Sebasty, Buchanan, and Kenneth Bohn, Galien.

She said the club will have an open meeting Sunday, April 11, at 6 p.m. at the Buchanan Westerners' clubhouse on Mead road during which plans will be formed for a July 5 tractor pulling contest.

'HEARD NOTHING'

Dairyman Awaits Action By State

COOPERSVILLE, Mich. (AP) — Gerald Woltjer sat and waited Monday for state and local officials to decide what to do with 235 cows he killed, saying they were contaminated with a poisonous chemical.

Woltjer said state and Polkton Township officials "threatened me with jail. But I'm going to fight and I'm just waiting for them."

Polkton Township officials told the Ottawa County farmer on Saturday he had until 4 p.m. Monday to remove the dead animals. Woltjer refused, saying they should be buried in a state burial site near Kalkaska.

"Nobody's showed up yet," Woltjer said late Monday. He added that he understood the township board members were still meeting with the county prosecutor.

Meanwhile, the state Department of Agriculture delayed its decision on whether to quarantine Woltjer's farm. A quarantine would make certain the animals are buried at a state site.

But the question of quarantine depends upon whether the dead animals contain more than .3 parts per million of polybrominated biphenyl (PBB). Woltjer insisted state tests showed two of the eight animals checked did exceed the PBB tolerance level.

Woltjer and other farmers said they planned to be in Lansing today and Thursday to see what Gov. William Milliken will do about PBB problems.

Dr. B.C. Hekhuis, a Coopersville veterinarian, reported Monday he cannot locate the eight animals he tested last week. Woltjer said he sold several to a tallow company at Howard City but at least two remained on his 80-acre farm.

The farmer contended he shot the animals to prevent them from further suffering after he lost a total of $750,000 from PBB poisoning. Woltjer also claimed his farm was recontaminated after PBB cost the former owner that property.

Since the chemical accidentally was mixed into feed sold by Michigan Farm Bureau in 1973, nearly 30,000 cattle, 1.5 million chickens, 4.5 million eggs and huge quantites of milk and butter have been destroyed because they were contaminated with PBB.

Berrien S&L's Join Association

Two Berrien county savings and loan associations have joined the Michigan Automated Clearing House association, MACHA President Alastair Carlyle has announced.

Peoples Savings association of Benton Harbor and First Federal Savings and Loan association of Niles are among six new members of MACHA who represent about 25 per cent of savings and loan assets in the state, according to Carlyle.

MACHA is an automated clearing house for transferring funds electronically among financial institutions, reducing the need for paper checks. It is a non-profit corporation owned by banks, credit unions and savings and loan associations throughout Michigan.

According to Carlyle, 26 savings and loan associations have joined MACHA since its by-laws were revised last December to allow these institutions the same membership privileges as the banks that originated the clearing house a year ago.

He said that membership currently includes 190 banks representing 96 per cent of bank assets in Michigan.

The MACHA computer facilities and administrative offices are located at the Federal Reserve bank in Detroit.

Lee Gives Dog Census To County

PULLMAN — Lee township officials have given up on trying to find someone to conduct a dog census in the township for them and have turned the job back to the Allegan county board of commissioners.

The county board has given townships the alternative of conducting their own census or having the county do it.

Lee Township Clerk Melvin Riston said the township has been unsuccessful in finding someone locally to conduct the census and the township board voted last night to turn the job back over to the county.

In other action, the board approved the township's 1976-77 budget of $60,522 that got preliminary approval from township residents at the annual township meeting Saturday.

The budget is up $8,700 from the 1975-76 budget, with most of the increase coming in a $5,000 boost tor road improvements.

Also last night, the board accepted a county offer of $24 monthly as reimbursement for power the sheriff's department uses in operating its communications antenna in the township; adopted a policy requiring people who want to use the township hall to make their request in person before the board; and gave its approval for the purchase of three hand pumps, for about $100 each, by the fire department.

The township's zoning inspector, Edward Yetzke, said March building permits for an estimated $50,000 in construction included four issued for additions to homes, five for mobile homes and two for garages, according to Riston.

$50,000 Bond

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A 28-year-old man charged with killing a 2-year-old Oakland, Calif., child was ordered held Monday for California authorities under $50,000 bond. Howard Wayne Hawk was arrested in Lansing by the FBI on Sunday.

May 11 Hearing Set On Tax Law

LANSING — Proposed revisions of Michigan's new Single Business tax will be discussed at a public hearing Tuesday May 11, according to state Sen. Gary Byker R-Hudsonville).

The hearing, sponsored by the Senate Taxation committee which is currentty studying the proposal, is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. in the Law building auditorium, Lansing.

The proposal, which was cosponsored by 30 members of the Senate, is designed to reduce the unexpectedly heavy burden of the Single Business tax on small businesses in Michigan.

Under the proposal, Single Business tax assessments for certain businesses would be reduced by up to 75 percent. It is estimated that as many as 110,000 out of the 132,000 businesses could benefit by the bill which applies to businsses whose gross receipts are $1.5 million or less per year.

Proposed reductions are based on the proportion of federal taxable income to gross recipts. If the proportion is 1 percent or less, the tax would be reduced by 75 percent. A proportion greater than 1 percent but less than 2 percent would yield a 50 percent reduction in the tax, while a proportion of more than 2 percent but less than 3 percent would result in a 25 percent deductionm.

Byker said current projections indicate that the Single Business tax will generate between $36 and $100 million more than anticipated when the legislation was enacted and, in the process, will place a crippling tax burden on small business in Michigan.

Communications from businessmen across the state in recent weeks have indicated support for the proposal which is designed to ease the tax burden on small businesses while guaranteeing adequate revenue as originally deemed necessary.

Byker said it is anticipated that as many as 500 businessmen from across the state will attend the public hearing to testify on behalf of the proposal. Business representatives should plan to participate at the May hearing so that the urgency of the revisions will be made apparent to the full legislature, Byker said.

Four Flags Hotel Fire Cause Unclear

NILES — Cause of a fire that struck the Four Flags Hotel here Saturday remains undetermined, according to Marion Fuller, acting Niles fire chief.

The early morning fire injured seven people and caused an estimated $20,000 to $30,000 damage.

Fuller said yesterday that an investigation by the state fire marshal's office of the four-story hotel late Saturday morning found, "nothing conclusive."

Samples of charred wood in the basement storage area where the blaze broke out were taken and results of tests on the material should be known sometime later this week, Fuller said.

Some 200 people, including 150 University of Notre Dame students and their dates attending a dance, between 38 to 40 hotel guests and 10 to 12 people in the hotel bar, were in the four-story structure when the fire was reported at 12:46 a.m. Saturday.

Niles firemen and police said about 30 of the hotel guests either jumped or were rescued from their room windows after smoke and heat prevented them from using stairways and elevators.

Of the seven injured in the blaze, three were hospitalized Saturday. Only one man, David Mortimore, 47, a hotel resident, remained hospitalized today at Pawating hospital, Niles. He was listed in good condition recovering from second degree burns.

Mrs. Alice Fortier, who with her husband, Dennis, owns the building, said the hotel is referring all new customers to surrounding motels until clean up operations are completed.

Three of the businesses in the building, Graham Photography, the Four Flags Beauty shop and the Craft Closet remained closed today. The hotel bar, the Colonial Waffle shop and AA Vacuum Sales and Service opened for business yesterday, Mrs. Fortier said.

Clean up crews and painters began work Sunday morning and are working from the "first floor up," Mrs. Fortier said. She said she was not sure how long the clean up would take, but added it would be, "quite some time," before all operations at the hotel return to normal.

Baroda's 'Pre-Application' For HUD Grant Approved

BARODA — Baroda village council learned last night its pre-application, filed jointly with Baroda township for a $300,000 federal community development grant has been approved by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

President Jerry Pliley stated the approval does not mean the local municipalities will receive the grant but that another application must now follow and approval of it will guarantee them an amount to be determined by HUD.

Approved by the village and township last December as priority projects to be financed by the grant, if approved, were housing rehabilitation and/or loan guarantee programs, construction of water lines, sidewalks and a new Lake street bridge.

Leslie R. Cripps, Berrien Springs, planning consultant, prepared and presented the pre-application for a fee of $4,000, which was shared euqually by the two municipalties. The final application fee of $1,000 will be reimbursed by HUD, Cripps stated last December.

In other business, council voted to again make the intersection of Second and Center streets, a four-way stop intersection. It had been made a two-way stop intersection recently, but the council felt the change was not working.

Council tabled for further study the possibility of decreasing the billing for village water useage from a monthly to quarterly basis, which would result in annual savings of $464, according to Ileen Tollas, clerk. In a related matter, council voted to increase the salary of Mrs. Tollas from $15 to $25 for water department billing.

It was voted to obtain estimates for repair work to end a drainage problem on Lemon Creek road from Hickory Creek to Cleveland avenue. Larry Nye, trustee, reported he was informed by Central Advertising, Kalamazoo, that the firm will tear down and remove four billboards, on Lake street, on Wednesday.

Council agreed to obtain further information on a notification from Indiana & Michigan Electric company that the power firm will no longer make inspections of entry service on new buildings and that hook ups will not be made until inspection is made by a qualified person appointed by the council.

It was voted to hire Roberts and Merkel, Berrien Springs, to make the water department audit. Permission was granted to Mrs. Connie Schmidt to use the village park pavillion every Thursday morning to hold a Bible study group, which will be open to the public. Howard Gaul, trustee, reported the park's facilities will be officially opened on Saturday, weather permitting.

Parent Complaints Bring Quick Action At Gobles

GOBLES — Parental complaints about disciplinary problems in the district's two fourth grade rooms brought action by the Gobles school board last night.

There are 87 pupils in the two fourth grade rooms and the two first-year teachers are having trouble keeping order in the crowded rooms, parents told school officials.

The board gave Supt. Guy Leversee authority to either hire two more teachers, or two teachers aides, for the rooms.

In another area, some of the estimated 17 parents attending the meeting, asked, and received permission from the school board, to meet with the school's curriculum committee during the selection of the school's textbooks.

Supt. Leversee also announced that the board may seek approval in the June school election of an additional two-mill property tax levy to finance school operations.

Based on the school's 1975 tax base, the millage would raise about $25,000. The district's 1976 tax base has not yet been set, Leversee said.

The board also approved a preliminary 1976-77 school budget of $1,182,853 to be submitted to the county allocation board.

The preliminary budget is about $89,993 more than the school's present budget.

The board took under consideration a request from Gobles area Girl Scouts that the school act as a co-sponsor for the 94 scouts in five different units.

Scout officials said the co-sponsorship is needed as a source for transportation to and from a June summer scout camp near Oshtemo.

Van Buren Judge Hands Flint Policeman Jail, Fine

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — A Flint policeman convicted on a charge of resisting arrest by a Van Buren circuit court jury March 2 was sentenced yesterday to serve five days in jail and fined $000.

According to a spokesman for the Flint police department, Wendell Banks, 33, has been suspended without pay because of the case and is currently appealing the suspension.

He was charged with resisting arrest by Troopers Val Gardner and James Baker after they had stopped a car for speeding on I-94 near Decatur on Dec. 30, 1974. An initial trial ended with a hung jury last Oct. 31.

The sentence was handed down by Judge Meyer Warshawsky who said he considered Banks' generally good past record in making the determination.

Following the sentencing, Judge Warshawsky denied a motion by Banks' attorney, Justin Brocato of Kalamazoo, that the guilty verdict in the trial be set aside because it was unclear. Brocato argued that in the instructions to the jury Judge Warshawsky listed three possible verdicts — guilty of resisting arrest; guilty of assault and battery, or not guilty.

Brocato said the jury foreman said in announcing the verdict that the jury found Banks guilty, but did not elaborate on of which charge.

Judge Warshawsky said he found no question of the jury's intent that they meant guilty of resisting arrest.

In other cases, Judge Warshawsky delayed sentencing for six months in the case of Marta Chandler, 10th avenue, South Haven, so that she might enroll in a drug rehabilitation program in Flint. Mrs. Chandler had pleaded guilty to charges of possession of heroin and delivery of heroin in South Haven during December, 1974.

Ronald Wrenfrow, 20, 428 East Main, Hartford, was sentenced to serve 10 days in jail, fined $200, and placed on two years probation as a result of his earlier guilty plea to a charge of delivering marijuana to a sheriff's department undercover agent.

William Foster, 40, Chicago, was fined $100 and placed on one year probation as a result of his guilty plea to a charge of attempting to carry a concealed weapon, a .38-caliber revolver, in Antwerp township last November.

In arraignments, Roosevelt Sutton, 23, also known as "Daddy-O" Williams, 501 East Linden, Hartford, pleaded innocent to one count each of delivery of marijuana, PCP, and LSD August 15 in Bangor.

Steven M. Angier, 19, 1671 Lillian, Benton Harbor, pleaded innocent to a charge of attempting to obtain drugs by fraud. He is accused of using a forged prescription March 8 to obtain the drug Seconal at the Gard Drug store, Sister Lakes.

Jeffrey C. Koster, 17, Mattawan, pleaded innocent to a charge of breaking and entering Mattawan high school last December.

Eula Lee Foster, 28, South Haven, pleaded innocent to a charge of felonious assault in connection with the shooting Feb. 15 of her husband, Willie, 33.

Seth Smit Jr., 19, route 2, Grand Junction, pleaded innocent to a charge of breaking and entering the Bloomingdale elementary school Feb. 14.

Permission Given For Music Festival

BUCHANAN — The Buchanan township board last night granted Gene Ritchie permission to hold a "bluegrass" music festival at his recreation area, Saturday, May 8, from noon to 7 p.m.

Ritchie is owner of Red Bud Track and Trail, located on Red Bud Trail North. The area will accommodate some 5,000 people, he said. Ritchie said he would have uniformed officers, including off-duty deputies, present to maintain order.

The board has requested that Ritchie submit his request in writing.

In other areas, the board adopted a master plan for township land use which it had requested be prepared by Berrien county planners. The master plan, which cost the township $3,000 in preparation charges, was drafted by the assistant planning director for the county, Brian Sodt.

He said the township will use the master plan as the basis for a new zoning ordinance now being prepared.

Although the board tabled a request from Lynn Ferris for an easement through the area in back of the township hall to his property, he was given permission to use a lane to his property for truck traffic. He plans on building a house this summer and the other entrance is not suitable for trucks.

The board requested the county road commission restore and maintain a section of Brookwood drive that has been damaged by heavy loaded truck traffic.

It was decided to rename Terre Coupe road, north of Buchanan, from Glendora road to the Buchanan-Oronoko township line, to Garr road.

Trustee Dale Nelson, representative on the Southwest Berrien Landfill authority, explained it has been proposed to franchise the landfill. The board voted in opposition to the plan, since it felt the landfill could then be monopolized by a private interest.

The board approved purchase of 20 monitors and a decoder for the fire department at the request of Charles Weaner, fire chief.

Supervisor Kenneth Jones was instructed to contact Indiana & Michigan Electric company to have electric lines now in front of the fire station changed to the rear of the building. The request is being made in case the wires are blown down and prevent fire trucks from leaving.

The board also approved payment of $8,500 to be used with county matching funds for road improvements.

Benton Man Injured In BH Crackup

A Benton township driver was treated for a cut on the head and ticketed by Benton Harbor police after a two-car collision Monday on Britain avenue west of Packard street shortly after 9 p.m.

Released after treatment at Mercy hospital was James William Woods, 62, of 600 South Crystal avenue. He was cited for careless driving, police reported. The other driver, Eli Burton, 57, of 804 Buss avenue, Benton Harbor, was unhurt in the accident, police said.

Jesse Howard Will Speak To Recall Committee

Jesse Howard of Union Pier, a Democratic candidate for U.S. Congressman, will speak at a meeting of the Benton Harbor recall committee at 7 p.m., tonight, at the Benton Harbor public library, according to Vida Smith, secretary of the recall committee. On Feb. 25, Howard appeared at an anti-recall meeting and spoke against the recall movement.

Parent Complaints Bring Quick Action At Gobles

GOBLES — Parental complaints about disciplinary problems in the district's two fourth grade rooms brought action by the Gobles school board last night.

There are 87 pupils in the two fourth grade rooms and the two first-year teachers are having trouble keeping order in the crowded rooms, parents told school officials.

The board gave Supt. Guy Leversee authority to either hire two more teachers, or two teachers aides, for the rooms.

In another area, some of the estimated 17 parents attending the meeting, asked, and received permission from the school board, to meet with the school's curriculum committee during the selection of the school's textbooks.

Supt. Leversee also announced that the board may seek approval in the June school election of an additional two-mill property tax levy to finance school operations.

Based on the school's 1975 tax base, the millage would raise about $25,000. The district's 1976 tax base has not yet been set, Leversee said.

The board also approved a preliminary 1976-77 school budget of $1,182,653 to be submitted to the county allocation board.

The preliminary budget is about $89,893 more than the school's present budget.

The board took under consideration a request from Gobles area Girl Scouts that the school act as a co-sponsor for the 94 scouts in five different units.

Scout officials said the co-sponsorship is needed as a source for transportation to and from a June summer scout camp near Oshtemo.

Van Buren Judge Hands Flint Policeman Jail, Fine

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — A Flint policeman convicted on a charge of resisting arrest by a Van Buren circuit court jury March 2 was sentenced yesterday to serve five days in jail and fined $500.

According to a spokesman for the Flint police department, Wendell Banks, 33, has been suspended without pay because of the case and is currently appealing the suspension.

He was charged with resisting arrest by Troopers Val Gardner and James Baker after they had stopped a car for speeding on I-94 near Decatur on Dec. 30, 1974. An initial trial ended with a hung jury last Oct. 31.

The sentence was handed down by Judge Meyer Warshawsky who said he considered Banks' generally good past record in making the determination.

Following the sentencing, Judge Warshawsky denied a motion by Banks' attorney, Justin Brocato of Kalamazoo, that the guilty verdict in the trial be set aside because it was unclear. Brocato argued that in the instructions to the jury Judge Warshawsky listed three possible verdicts — guilty of resisting arrest, guilty of assault and battery, or not guilty.

Brocato said the jury foreman said in announcing the verdict that the jury found Banks guilty, but did not elaborate on of which charge.

Judge Warshawsky said he found no question of the jury's intent that they meant guilty of resisting arrest.

In other cases, Judge Warshawsky delayed sentencing for six months in the case of Maria Chandler, 10th avenue, South Haven, so that she might enroll in a drug rehabilitation program in Flint. Mrs. Chandler had pleaded guilty to charges of possession of heroin and delivery of heroin in South Haven during December, 1974.

Ronald Wrenfrow, 20, 428 East Main, Hartford, was sentenced to serve 10 days in jail, fined $200, and placed on two years probation as a result of his earlier guilty plea to a charge of delivering marijuana to a sheriff's department undercover agent.

William Foster, 40, Chicago, was fined $100 and placed on one year probation as a result of his guilty plea to a charge of attempting to carry a concealed weapon, a .38-caliber revolver, in Antwerp township last November.

In arraignments, Roosevelt Sutton, 23, also known as "Daddy-O" Williams, 501 East Linden, Hartford, pleaded innocent to one count each of delivery of marijuana, PCP, and LSD August 15 in Bangor.

Steven M. Angier, 19, 1671 Lillian, Benton Harbor, pleaded innocent to a charge of attempting to obtain drugs by fraud. He is accused of using a forged prescription March 8 to obtain the drug Seconal at the Gard Drug store, Sister Lakes.

Jeffrey C. Koster, 17, Mattawan, pleaded innocent to a charge of breaking and entering Mattawan high school last December.

Eula Lee Foster, 28, South Haven, pleaded innocent to a charge of felonious assault in connection with the shooting Feb. 15 of her husband, Willie, 33.

Seth Smit Jr., 19, route 2, Grand Junction, pleaded innocent to a charge of breaking and entering the Bloomingdale elementary school Feb. 14.

Permission Given For Music Festival

BUCHANAN — The Buchanan township board last night granted Gene Richie permission to hold a "bluegrass" music festival at his recreation area, Saturday, May 8, from noon to 7 p.m.

Richie is owner of Red Bud Track and Trail, located on Red Bud Trail North. The area will accommodate some 5,000 people, he said. Ritchie said he would have uniformed officers, including off-duty deputies, present to maintain order.

The board has requested that Ritchie submit his request in writing.

In other areas, the board adopted a master plan for township land use which it had requested be prepared by Berrien county planners. The master plan, which cost the township $3,000 in preparation charges, was drafted by the assistant planning director for the county, Brian Sodt.

He said the township will use the master plan as the basis for a new zoning ordinance now being prepared.

Although the board tabled a request from Lynn Ferris for an easement through the area in back of the township hall to his property, he was given permission to use a lane to his property for truck traffic. He plans on building a house this summer and the other entrance is not suitable for trucks.

The board requested the county road commission restore and maintain a section of Brookwood drive that has been damaged by heavy loaded truck traffic.

It was decided to rename Terre Coupe road, north of Buchanan, from Glendora road to the Buchanan-Oronoko township line, to Garr road.

Trustee Dale Nelson, representative on the Southwest Berrien Landfill authority, explained it has been proposed to franchise the landfill. The board voted in opposition to the plan, since it felt the landfill could then be monopolized by a private interest.

The board approved purchase of 20 monitors and a decoder for the fire department at the request of Charles Wesner, fire chief.

Supervisor Kenneth Jones was instructed to contact Indiana & Michigan Electric company to have electric lines now in front of the fire station changed to the rear of the building. The request is being made in case the wires are blown down and prevent fire trucks from leaving.

The board also approved payment of $8,500 to be used with county matching funds for road improvements.

Benton Man Injured In BH Crackup

A Benton township driver was treated for a cut on the head and ticketed by Benton Harbor police after a two-car collision Monday on Britain avenue west of Packard street shortly after 9 p.m.

Released after treatment at Mercy hospital was James William Woods, 62, of 650 South Crystal avenue. He was cited for careless driving, police reported. The other driver, Eli Burton, 57, of 804 Buss avenue, Benton Harbor, was unhurt in the accident, police said.

Jesse Howard Will Speak To Recall Committee

Jesse Howard ot Union Pier, a Democratic candidate for U.S. Congressman, will speak at a meeting of the Benton Harbor recall committee at 7 p.m., tonight, at the Benton Harbor public library, according to Velta Smith, secretary of the recall committee. On Feb. 25, Howard appeared at an anti-recall meeting and spoke against the recall movement.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING on
ESTABLISHMENT OF A SOYBEAN PROMOTION AND DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

A public hearing will be held pursuant to 1969 PA 306, Section 71, on Monday, April 12, 1976, at 10:00 a.m. in the Michigan Department of Agriculture hearing room, 5th floor, Lewis Cass Building, Walnut Avenue, Lansing, Michigan, to consider a soybean promotion and development program proposed by a soybean industry committee pursuant to 1965 PA 232, Section 10, as amended by 1974 PA 324. A petition signed by over 300 soybean producers, has been filed with the Director of Agriculture.

The proposed program was developed to improve the economic position of the Michigan soybean growers by:

a. Conducting advertising and promotion programs.

b. Developing projects to expand soybean markets.

c. Authorizing and carrying on research programs.

d. Gathering and disseminating market information.

e. Cooperating with other organizations and agencies.

f. Assessing producers for funds to conduct the above programs.

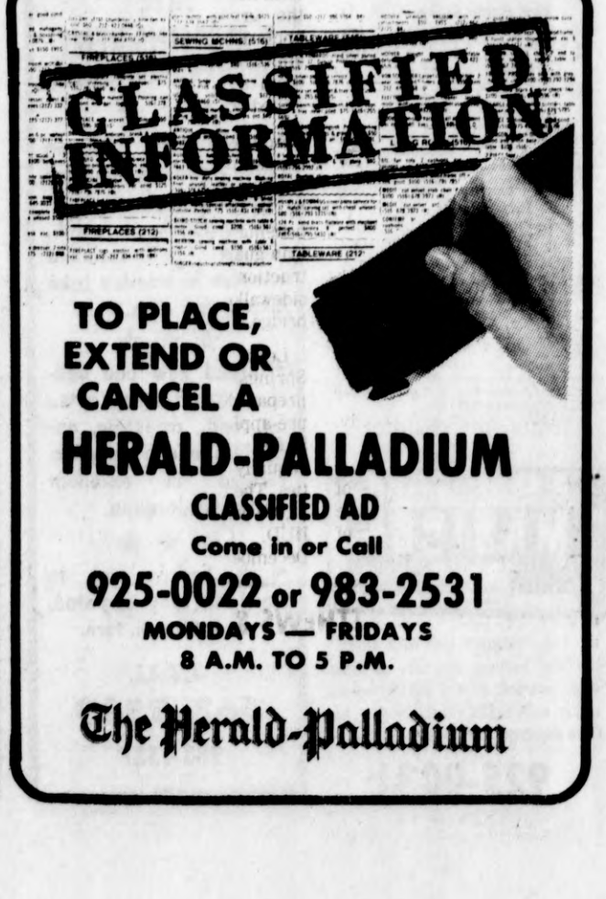

The department urges all Michigan soybean produers to study the proposal carefully. Interested persons are invited to present their views orally or in writing.

Please bring the enclosed copy of the proposal with you if you attend the hearing.

B. Dale Ball,
Director,
Dated at Lansing, Michigan
this 31st day of March, 1976.

Two Judges Give Three Oaks Man 2 Prison Terms

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

After a Three Oaks man got a 1 to 2-year prison sentence in one Berrien Circuit courtroom he was taken to a different courtroom where another judge gave him an identical sentence.

Sentenced Monday to the concurrent prison terms was James E. Sutfin, 23, of Route 1, Three Oaks, who gets credit for 104 days already served in jail.

Judge Julian E. Hughes sentenced him for unlawful use of a motor vehicle while Judge William S. White imposed sentence for a probation violation — which resulted automatically when Sutfin pleaded guilty to the auto charge. Sutfin was placed on probation last June by White for the unlawful use of a paybnader owned by Clark Equipment Co. in Buchanan. Sutfin's latest charge stemmed from the use of a truck in Niles Dec. 24.

"You were given a chance and failed it," Hughes said in passing sentence.

In other sentences by Hughes: Raymond W. Terpening, 19, of Three Oaks, and Terry D. Eastman, 17, of Sawyer, each got two years probation for larceny in a building — the theft of food and $1,855 in cash and checks Feb. 14 from Damaske Brothers grocery store in St. Joseph. Each was also ordered to spend five weekends in jail, make restitution of $31, and pay $250 fine and costs.

St. Joseph police said $1,800 in cash and checks, plus items of merchandise were recovered after the burglary of the Damaske store.

Raymond A. Keys, 49, of Grand Rapids, was sentenced to 18 to 30 months in prison for attempting to carry a concealed weapon — a revolver — Sept. 28, 1974, on I-196 in Hagar township.

Judge White sentenced Lemuel P. Clemons, 23, of 1244 Superior street, Benton Harbor, to 2 to 5 years imprisonment for entering the home of Evelyn King, at 693 East Main street, Benton Harbor, without breaking Aug. 23.

In arraignments before White:

Edward C. Weaver, 24, of 227 Butternut, Benton township, pleaded guilty to attempted uttering and publishing a check for $250 Jan. 20 at Inter-City Bank in Benton Harbor.

Ruby B. Morris, 47, of 357 Gilson, Coloma, pleaded no contest to a charge of attempted welfare fraud over $500. She was accused of receiving public assistance from February, 1970, to October, 1975, while failing to report bank deposits in excess of $2,000.

Cleven R. Robertson, 27, and William L. Finnie, 25, both of Battle Creek, both pleaded innocent to charges of possession of heroin March 8 in St. Joseph township.

Ruben Sanchez, 17, of 1813 Ferry street, Niles, pleaded guilty to breaking and entering Saipis Jewelry store, at 1849 Oak street, Niles, on Nov. 7.

Two Ask Hearings In Death Cases

Two men demanded examinations when arraigned in Berrien Fifth District court on charges resulting from shooting deaths. Arraigned on an open charge of murder was James L. Williams, 29. He is accused in the 1974 slaying of Maxine Lynn Thomas, 15, at her home, Jones street, Sodus township. Williams, formerly of Benton Harbor, was arrested March 24 in San Antonio, Texas, by the FBI on a fugitive warrant and returned to Berrien county the past weekend. He was jailed in lieu of bond.

Arraigned on a charge of manslaughter was Dan Hunter, Jr., 26, Sandusky, Ohio. He is accused in the shooting death of his uncle, Henry McAfee, 25, of 389 Maple street, who died Saturday afternoon of a gunshot wound to the chest. Hunter was jailed in lieu of $15,000 bond.

Three To Face Circuit Court

Three Chicago residents charged with possession with intent to deliver heroin and cocaine allegedly valued at $300,000 were bound over to Berrien circuit court from Fifth District court yesterday. Bound over were Pedro C. Garcia, 32, Raul A. Perez, 28, and Miss Betzaida Garcia, 20, all of Chicago. Pedro Garcia remained jailed in lieu of $300,000 bond, Perez failed to furnish $100,000 bail, and Betzaida Garcia remained in jail unable to provide $50,000 bond. The three were arrested along with a 16-year-old girl on March 26 in Coloma township. A pound of alleged heroin and seven ounces of cocaine were confiscated at the time of the arrests. The 16-year-old girl also from Chicago was turned over to local juvenile authorities. Bonds had been originally set at $300,000 for each defendant when they first appeared in court and demanded preliminary examination.

Radio Theft Case Charges Dropped

Charges against two young men were dismissed, and 21 other people were sentenced in Berrien Fifth District court Monday and Saturday.

Dismissed were charges against Michael A. Koroch, 17, 6100 Empire avenue, Bainbridge township, and Joe Churchill, 18, Park road, rural Benton Harbor. The prosecutor's office announced the charges were dismissed because they are being placed on deferred prosecution.

Koroch was charged with receiving and concealing stolen property over $100, and Churchill had been accused of larceny from a motor vehicle. Both charges involved theft of a radio from the car of St. Joseph township Police Chief Keith Mills.

Demanding examination in District Court were:

Calvin Curry, 20, of 407 Edwards, Benton Harbor, on a charge of attempted larceny from an auto April 4 in Benton Harbor. He was jailed in lieu of $1,500 bond.

Larry Harris, 28, Lloyd Zech farm, Hinchman road, Berrien Springs, on a charge of breaking and entering a building with intent to commit larceny April 2. He was jailed in lieu of $10,000 bond. He is accused of breaking into the offices of Drs. Ernesto Medina and Urdolpho Quillon, 429 Paw Paw avenue, Coloma.

Eugene Johnson, 54, 289 Chestnut, Benton Harbor, on a charge of driving under the influence of intoxicants, third offense, April 4 in Benton Harbor. He was released on $1,500 personal recognizance bond.

Bound over to Circuit court was Anthony L. Wallace, 17, of 187 East Britain avenue, Benton Harbor, on a charge of breaking and entering Empire Cleaners, 190 West Empire avenue, Benton Harbor with intent to commit larceny March 24. He failed to post $2,500 bond.

Sentenced were:

James W. Cleary, 21, of 2259 Butler, Benton township, three days in jail and $90 in fine and costs or 30 days in jail total for driving while license suspended; also $30 or six days in jail for reckless driving April 2 in Benton township.

Manuel R. Garcia, 26, Odem, Texas, $152 for possession of unregistered gun March 24 in Benton township.

Louis D. Sorget, 47, of 1317 Hickory drive, St. Joseph, $152 for driving under the influence of intoxicants.

Jeffery L. Cutshaw, 17, of 6029 Willow Creek Path, Stevensville, $65 for reckless driving in connection with a personal injury accident in which two people were hurt March 26 in Stevensville.

Lloyd E. Lewin, 32, Grand Rapids, $62, disorderly person, loitering, in Stevensville March 3.

Ernest J. Leach, 31, Detroit, three days in jail and $62 or a total of 30 days for driving while license suspended.

Sentenced for the following violations were:

Impaired driving — Ronald D. Lloyd, 34, Michigan City, Ind., $100; Larry K. Riddle, 31, Dearborn Heights, Mich., $102 or 30 days; James M. Edling, 18, Michigan City, Ind., $102 or 30 days.

Use of marijuana — Richard K. Pegg, 19, Tommy W. Kwan, 21, and Steven W. Belske, 17, all of Muncie, Ill., each $100 or 30 days; Mary Jane Murnn, 19, Detroit, $100 and six months probation; Kevin M. Johnston, 19, Livonia, $100 and six months probation; Dorene B. Ginzler, 19, Oak Park, Mich., $100 and six months probation; Stephanie E. Lumpkin, 22, St. Louis, Mo., $50 and six months probation; and Nunzio R. Fresta, 20, Ypsilanti, $100 and six months probation.

Assault and battery — Freddie Lee, 27, of 1041 Waukonda and James H. Duncan, 23, 1180 Broadway, both of Benton Harbor, 90 days each for assault and battery against a 15-year-old girl.

Receiving and concealing stolen property under $100 — Valerie A. Young, 17, of 259 Burton, and Linda L. Holmes, 21, of 892 Ogden, both of Benton Harbor, each nine days in jail and $105 or 20 days total.

Home Planning Can Conserve Energy

Professional home improvement contractors and remodelers who are members of local affiliates of the National Association of Home Builders have some energy wise advice for home owners.

The advice: make a thorough survey of all the improvements and additions you would like to make to your home. Begin with the exterior and the top of your house and go from top to bottom. Then take the interior room by room. If you anticipate needing additional rooms, such as baths or bedrooms note these.

Next assign a priority to each of the items on your list. Which ones are immediate needs? Which are short term future needs? Which are long term?

Then obtain a number of manila file folders (or make them from heavy paper). Mark each with a single home improvement project and indicate the priority with a 1, 2 and 3. Into each folder put the magazine clippings, product ads and any ideas you may have for that project.

For example: Your immediate need is to find a way to cut the cost of heating (or cooling your home.) A less urgent need is to provide an additional room for a growing boy or girl. A long term need might be to turn your kitchen and dining room into a modern combined kitchen and family room. Or your carport might make a fine room if it were closed in and finished off.

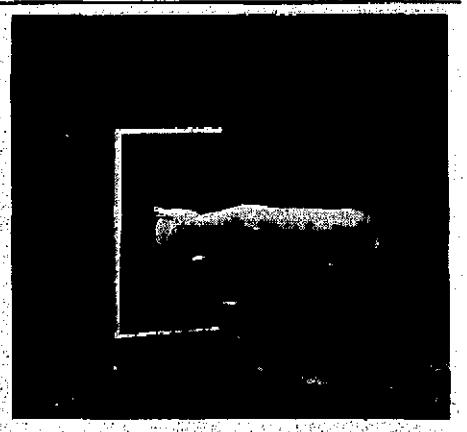

Each one of these projects would have its own folder marked with the priority you assign to it. Into each you would put ideas and clippings from magazines and newspapers, advertising literature, etc. Thus when the time comes to initiate a project you would be able to determine if it is a do-it-yourself job or a professional job.

The very first time you discuss any home improvement work with a professional member of the NAHB you should show him the entire batch of file folders, not just the immediate project. The reason is that a professional would be able to detect the effect of one job on another and make suggestions that would save you trouble and money in the long run.

For example, you would like to modernize your heating system. If the modernizer knew you had dreams of adding on to your home, he could design and install a new heating system that would take care of that addition. And he would know better than to put the outside compressor for the air conditioning in the middle of the future location of that room.

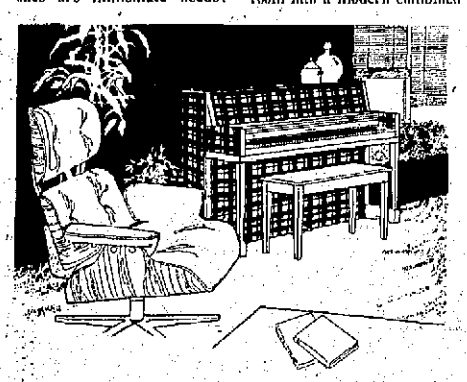

A professional survey will pay off from the start because energy costs are going to rise, according to the Federal Energy Administration. Professional remodelers know that adding insulation at the top of the home can help conserve energy. But this will do nothing for energy lost around the gaps in loose fitting doors and windows. According to the Research Institute of the National Association of Home Builders a properly insulated home must be as tight as possible at all points.

Caulking, putting good quality shields around door and window openings and otherwise assuring that cold (or hot) air cannot get in or out is as important as adding insulation in preventing energy losses. Good quality "storm" windows and doors, properly fitted and installed are a necessity. "Leaky" storm windows and doors that allow the movement of air into and out of the home are inefficient and fail to do a proper job of conserving energy. Professional work pays for itself, especially in the area of home improvements aimed at energy conservation. And you get a bonus added comfort.

ENERGY-SAVING TIMER...A homeowner sets a newly installed time switch that turns on and off an attic exhaust fan.

Plans Available For Plaid Piano

THERE'S NO REASON TO TUCK THAT UPRIGHT PIANO INTO A CORNER. With a little paint, stain or fabric and an ample helping of imagination, a jazzed-up piano can become a unique, functional addition to your home's decor.

A plaid piano?

Why not! With a little imagination, the ambitious do-it-yourselfer can turn the time-honored vehicle of musical self-expression into a bold, individual statement as part of the home's decor.

To create the plaid effect over a painted or stained cabinet, start by finding the exact center of each horizontal plane. Then divide the piano into equal sections sufficient to make a big, bold plaid. Apply masking tape in vertical strips, alternating them about 2" and ½" apart; then paint or stain between them. Let dry completely and repeat procedure to make horizontal stripes. Bench can be painted or stained to match.

Piano customizing is easier than you might think — especially with the help of a new do-it-yourself piano finishing guide, "New Looks for Old Pianos." It's a 16-page, illustrated booklet that explains how to use various finishing techniques on a new, unfinished 45" upright — the Plainpiano — as well as on old pianos and other furniture. It gives step-by-step instructions for working with four basic mediums; stain, paint, fabric and self-adhesive materials. There are tips on working with pianos in general, stripping instructions for old furniture, and piano outlines for sketching ideas.

Copies of "New Looks for Old Pianos" and information on the ready - to - customize Plainpiano are available through Everett piano dealers nationwide, or by writing: "New Looks" Booklet, Everett Piano Co., Dept. SC, South Haven, MI 49090. Please include 50c to cover postage and handling.

Timer Can Pay For Itself

Consumption of home electricity may be reduced substantially by use of a new time switch which will turn on and off, automatically, such heavy energy users as attic exhaust fans as well as basement, porch, and workshop lights.

Installed in a normal wall switch-box this Intermatic timer, known as the F60, is spring wound and consequently doesn't use any electricity while performing automatic cut-off chores.

Time limits can be set from one minute up to 12 hours depending on the model selected and the service required. Thirty and sixty-minute or 12-hour models are available. Others provide a "hold" position for continuous service.

The F-60 switch requires a 2 wire installation only, like any standard toggle switch. A replacement for the standard toggle switch that controls lighting and other energy-consuming equipment, may be installed by the average homeowner, and is available at most hardware stores, home centers, and other retail centers.

PROPERTY OWNERS WOULD DO WELL TO READ THESE HINTS:

- Don't be hurried. Shy away from any propsal that cannot be delayed for one day. Any reputable firm will always welcome investigation.
- Know what you are buying. Sometimes the contractor will make the estimate far above the actual cost. Sometimes the excess material is never delivered.
- Do not rely on verbal promises or guarantees and don't make cash payments to strangers.
- If you do contract for home improvements know what you are signing. It's safer to have your lawyer check the fine print in the contract. BEST OF ALL, get: an estimate from a LOCAL FIRM...they'll always be there to back up their guarantees for many years.

Bath Spruce-Up Begins With Walls

IN RECOGNITION OF THE NATION'S Bicentennial Celebration, the Heritage bath is the second in the American Standard Americana Collection, an exciting concept in bathrooms. The dominant color in this setting is Americana brown which proves itself the perfect complement to strong, contrasting hues as well as subtle shades. Reflecting the naturalness of our early pioneer days, the bath is aglow with wooden walls and flooring which have been stenciled in an Early American design. The clean modern design of the fixtures fit in perfectly with the warm ambience of the natural brown and earthtones.

Problem 1: That tired old bath of yours needs a facelift.

Problem 2: The remodeling estimate looks like a down payment on the Russian war debt.

The solution: Do-It-Yourself. It's the inexpensive way to put the new bloom back into that bath, and it can be easier than you think.

First, take a good look at the walls. Decorators contend that changing how the walls look can freshen a room and bring it up to date.

Washable-strippable coated fabric wall coverings by Formica Corporation are your best answer for long-lasting good looks you can achieve by doing it yourself.

They are easy to hang. The fabric backing of these durable wall coverings allows them to be removed from the wall when you've made a mistake. Then you put the strip right back in place without any wetting, scraping or ruining the wall or the job. With a little patience it is a mistake-proof process.

Maybe that old bath of yours needs more than a once over with wall covering. One of the smartest new fashions in bath styling is open shelf storage of bath linens and accessories. Today, these go beyond the antiseptic common look to yesterday's bathroom.

Coordinating open shelf storage units with attractive vanities can replace old free-standing wash bowls and bring a fresh new look to your bath.

Again, you can do-it-yourself even if you think you have two thumbs.

To help beat today's high cost of bath renovation, a complete "Do-It-Yourself Bath Remodeling Kit," is available containing the wall covering installation instruction booklet, a do-it-yourself guide for plastic laminate fabrication and plans for two original design vanity and open-shelf storage units.

The Bath Remodeling Kit is available from the D-I-Y Department, Formica Corporation, Cincinnati, Ohio 45202.

Remodeling Guidelines

By JACK MARSHALL
(1975 Quality Remodeler of the Year, Brand Names Foundation)

Listed here are 14 points to help you get the most — and easiest satisfaction when embarking on a remodeling project.

1. Put your ideas on paper. Keep a file of ideas from advertisements as well as editorial material.

2. Engage an architect if your remodeling involves any structural alterations. He can provides you with rough sketches or working drawings and also provide on-the-job supervision.

3. Don't rush when selecting a contractor. Take time to check a man's bank references, talk with some of his former customers and personally look at a few of his completed projects. Investigate at least three contractors and invite each to submit a bid.

4. Let each contractor know you're considering other bids and give each candidate the same specifications. Name exact models, product types.

5. Make certain the contractor your hire carries adequate insurance: workmen's compensation, property damage, personal liability coverage.

6. Ask your contractor if he complies with the Code of Ethics of the National Home Improvement Council.

7. Don't automatically snap up the lowest bid for your remodeling project. Consider the interest and professional attitude an individual contractor shows toward your project.

8. Make absolutely certain your remodeling plans are not at odds with any building codes or zoning regulations.

9. Don't try to handle a job yourself unless you're fairly knowledgable about building materials. This is especially true with plumbing and electrical work.

10. Don't introduce a lot of work changes once the remodeling is under way. These can be costly, will slow up the time schedule and cause unnecessary friction between you and your contractor or architect.

11. Insist that the contract include exact date work is to be begin, a schedule of step-by-step proceedings and an approximate completion date. If delays seem unreasonable and unnecessary, you have right to take action.

12. Don't sign a completion certificate (if work is financed) or make final payment until the contractor gives you a release from liens and you're 100 per cent satisfied.

13. Ask for a contractor's guarantee (usually for one year).

14. Finally, ask for a clean-up provision in your contract so your house will be returned to its original condition after the work is completed — at the contractor's expense.

Windows At Heart Of Savings In Heat

Millions of dollars of expensively-heated air will go through your windows this winter. What makes this even more painful is that millions of American consumers think that they have avoided this money (and heat) loss by using stopgap measures to cut fuel bills.

In the summer, of course, this money-losing process will be repeated as expensively-cooled air escapes and warm air enters via the same route.

Even with recommended insulation, which is very important, you're not going to the heart of your insulating problems unless your windows are doing their part to stop heat loss.

Who says so? Well, for one, the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD says that "almost 70 per cent of a typical single-family unit's heating load is associated with windows and doors."

Frank Gorell, president of Season-all Industries, Inc., world's largest manufacturers of aluminum custom-made storm windows and doors and replacement windows, pinpoints the problem more precisely: "It is sad to see so much time and effort go into partial solutions like weatherstripping and caulking. All the caulking in the world will not stop heat loss through glass.

"Engineers have proven that one square foot of glass can lose as much heat as ten square feet of wall. And weatherstripping is equally negligible if you do not have first-class windows with multiple panes of glass or storm windows.

"Why? Because engineers know that, with a typical single-glazed, double-hung window, almost three times the energy is lost through the glass as is lost around the sash area."

The only effective remedy for heat loss, says Gorell, is the use of good prime windows which prevent air infiltration or heat loss. If these prime windows are bad, they should be replaced with custom-fit windows (the most economical way to go.

For more effective savings, storm windows insulate the frame as well as the prime window. Other measures include replacement windows with insulating glass — or thermally-improved windows, which are here today and represent the standards by which tomorrow's windows will be judged.

Gorell points out that caulking and weatherstripping may be cheapest — but they are also least effective. "Replacing windows which are worn out with custom-fit types can be a simple job which can be done even by a do-it-yourselfer in less than an hour.

"There's no need for carpentry or masonry alterations if the window is made to fit the opening. Best of all, it's ready to save real money as soon as it's installed, instead of making your think that it does," he said.

For a booklet on things you should know about replacement windows, write to Fred Schmidt, Season-all Industries, Inc., Indiana, Pa. 15701.

CHEMICAL TWINS

REMODELING TO CONSERVE ENERGY need not result in dullness. This modernization, including the wood casement windows with insulating glass, helps to conserve energy while adding to the family's comfort and improving the home's appearance.

Colorful Illusions

Colors are helpful in correcting decorating problems, too, like making small rooms seem larger. You can give the illusion of more space by painting walls and woodwork the same shade, using a cool, light color.

By the same token, a room that's too large can be made to look cozier with warm colors on the walls, and contrasting colors on furniture and woodwork.

A ceiling that's too high can be made to appear lower with a darker color than that on the walls.

There's Big Difference In Windows, Materials

There's a big difference in windows and the materials they are made of, just as there's a big difference in how they look and perform.

While it may cost more to install precision-made, quality-built wood windows, any savings from buying less-expensive units are likely to disappear up the chimney because of higher fuel bills.

That's why remodeling to conserve energy is becoming just as important as modernizing to improve a home's looks. Not only do the right windows enhance a home's appearance, but they add to a family's comfort and convenience and help to conserve energy.

Selecting the correct units means wood windows with insulating glass. Wood is a poor conductor, which means it doesn't transfer heat and cold easily. Metal without a specific thermal barrier does. In other words, wood is a natural insulator.

The insulating properties of wood windows combined with insulating glass — two panes of glass with an insulating air space between — substantially reduce both heat loss and condensation.

Factory-applied weatherstripping assures snug closure and limits heat-robbing air infiltration. Remodeling that results in a snug, well-insulated house means a homeowner can achieve an adequate comfort level with lower fuel consumption. Adequate insulation combined with wood windows equipped with insulating glass not only diminishes heat loss in winter but also keeps heat gain at a minimum in summer.

The insulating glass in wood windows eliminates the need for storm sash and thus does away with the problem of storing storm sash. Window-washing time is also cut in half, since there are only two glass surfaces to clean with insulating glass instead of the four with ordinary windows and storm sash.

Because they are available in a wide range of styles and sizes at local building supplies dealers, wood windows with insulating glass make any remodeling job easier.

Barn Wood Easy To Get Now

Down-home nostalgia, or just plain love of rustic textures — whatever the reason, old weather-aged barn siding is becoming as treasured as a Currier & Ives print and has zoomed to popularity for interior paneling.

For the ambitious, this has meant scouring local countryside for deserted barns, and then, if lucky enough to make a discovery, laboriously treating the acceptable planks with insecticides and disinfectants before installing them inside the house.

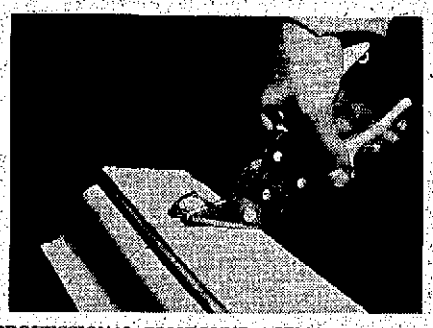

The desire for a room so rustically paneled has to be measured, at least in part, by the memory of pleasant experiences: a cozy country inn; a hunting lodge warmed by a large fireplace; or the festive holidays at grandparent's farm packed with all the wonder the countryside had to offer.

Now, however, a visit to the nearby paneling dealer will turn up hardboard paneling that looks and feels enough like the real thing to pass close inspection, complete with all of the beauty marks of distressed wood with raised knots and deep, aged graining. The total effect is further enhanced by careful use of subtle, earthy hues — to achieve just the right not of realism. The "Hand Hewn" and "New England Barnboard" panels introduced by the Abitibi Corporation are available in several basic color shades, even white, suitable for a variety of interior schemes.

Hardboard panels are easy to install, with either nails or adhesive, direct to studs or to any smooth, firm, wall surface. Furring strips are necessary when application is made over masonry walls. Once up, the pre-finished panels require little if any maintenance. The surface is completely washable with mild soap and water if needed. Normally a wipe with a damp cloth is all that's needed to keep the durable, baked-on surface tidy. Acceptable for new construction or remodeling, the panels meet FHA requirements for application direct to studs and also provide excellent reduction of sound transmission.

In essence, hardboard panels are the best of two worlds — the beauty and charm of an enduring past and the convenience and advantages of a modern wall material.

(For more information see your local dealer or write to the Abitibi Corporation, Dept. CA-HTJ, 3250 West Big Beaver Road, Troy, Michigan 48084)

PROFESSIONAL COMPOUND ACTION snips M-41R by Wiss, is now available to consumers. It's capable of starting a cutting point anywhere on flat sheet metal, and is perfect for cutting a hole in leaders for downspouts.

Home Handyman Needs Right Kind Of 'Snips'

When it comes to handling repair work around the house, the modern craftsman needs at least one and possibly more metal cutting snips for his workbench. And sometimes this same person is also likely to use the same tools in fashioning handcrafts for some of his more leisurely workshop hobbies.

If you are a do-it-yourselfer who fits either or both of these types, you'll surely want to know how the work can go easier and faster and more pleasantly with the correct cutting implements.

J. Wiss & Sons Co., a leading metal snips manufacturer, says there's a basic assortment of snips that the home handyman should know about for cutting fiber glass, rubber, wire, leather and other tough materials. There are snips that make left or right handed cuts on sheet metal, and those primarily for cutting straight lines.

The hobbyist will also appreciate the capabilities of these same tools (recognized by numbers on their blades such as M1, M2, MPC-3 and A-10) in creating tin-can art and metal wall sculptures as well as for working with metal grill work, aluminum edgings, etc.

For this busy home craftsman, who undoubtedly is doing more of his own repairs today due to rising costs in professional services, Wiss has taken one of its top professional tools — M-41R pipe and duct snips — and packaged it for the consumer. Featuring compound level action that transmits exceptional power with half the effort required of regular snips, they also have a patented ball spreading action for faster, cleaner cutting, even through seams. An extra sharp piercing tip permits you to start your cutting point anywhere on a flat metal sheet.

They cut any shape ducts — square, rectangular or round. They are ideal for cutting an opening to attach a downspout to a gutter and a myriad of other home improvement projects.

They are also excellent for cutting non-metallic sheet materials such as fiber glass panels, vinyl tiles, decorative plastic kitchen laminates, synthetic shingles and lots more. The ball bearing jaw plus the vinyl offset handles protect the hands from cuts and bruises. Wiss snips make a great gift for dad on any occasion. You'll find them attractively packaged at your local hardware store.

Ruthless Sorting Can Mean More Elbow Room At Home

If you feel your home needs something but you don't know what, maybe it's because the rooms are so cluttered with outgrown and outmoded possessions that you can't get a clear picture. Instead of rushing to add something new, why not subtract?

This is a family project. Get everyone into the spirit of shedding excess THINGS. Clear a large area in the garage and stand back. It'll fill up right before your eyes with an amazing assortment of once-loved but no longer useful objects.

The child's furniture that has been taking up space in the bedroom although the child outgrew it years ago — add it to the pile. The darkroom equipment your husband used enthusiastically six years ago for the last time — add it to the pile. Those wornout blankets you keep in back of the linen closet although you haven't the faintest intention of ever using them again — add them to the pile. Your son's mandolin that sits in wall brackets, gathering cobwebs — add it to the pile.

While you're at it, attack all the clothes closets including those that store out-of-season clothes in the attic or spare room. If an article of clothing hasn't been worn in several years, the chances are that it won't be worn again. Though you may feel a momentary pang at parting with a suit that was so becoming seven years ago, you'll get an ever greater sense of satisfaction from bringing wardrobes up to date.

Of course you should be discarding clothes only if they no longer fit into your lifestyle. If it's you who no longer fits into the clothes, that's another story. Start controlling calories the easy way with Slender diet food from Carnation. Mixed with 6 oz. fresh whole milk, Slender has just 225 calories. Substitute this "mini meal" for one or more regular meals as needed, and shed excess weight fast.

When the house has been stripped of unused and unwanted possessions, you'll be surprised how much better it looks. Not only does this kind of home improvement cost nothing, it can even make money for you. Advertise a weekend garage sale in the local newspaper, specifying major objects for sale — such as a tricycle, radio, or baby carriage.

Barn Wood Easy To Get Now

Down-home nostalgia, or just plain love of rustic textures — whatever the reason, old weather-aged barn siding is becoming as treasured as a Currier & Ives print and has zoomed to popularity for interior paneling.

For the ambitious, this has meant scouring local countryside for deserted barns, and then, if lucky enough to make a discovery, laboriously treating the acceptable planks with insecticides and disinfectants before installing them inside the house.

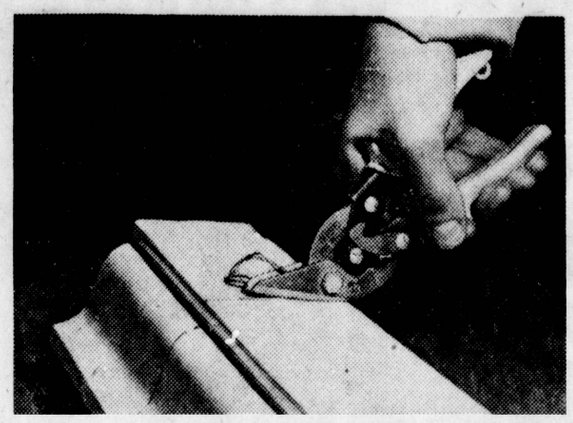

The desire for a room so rustically paneled has to be measured, at least in part, by the memory of pleasant experiences: a cozy country inn; a hunting lodge warmed by a large fireplace; or the festive holidays at grandparent's farm packed with all the wonder the countryside had to offer.

Now, however, a visit to the nearby paneling dealer will turn up hardboard paneling that looks and feels enough like the real thing to pass close inspection, complete with all of the beauty marks of distressed wood with raised knots and deep, aged graining. The total effect is further enhanced by careful use of subtle, earthy hues — to achieve just the right not of realism. The "Hand Hewn" and "New England Barnbord" panels introduced by the Abitibi Corporation are available in several basic color shades, even white, suitable for a variety of interior schemes.

Hardboard panels are easy to install, with either nails or adhesive, direct to studs or to any smooth, firm, wall surface. Furring strips are necessary when application is made over masonry walls. Once up, the pre-finished panels require little if any maintenance. The surface is completely washable with mild soap and water if needed. Normally a wipe with a damp cloth is all that's needed to keep the durable, baked-on surface tidy. Acceptable for new construction or remodeling, the panels meet FHA requirements for application direct to studs and also provide excellent reduction of sound transmission.

In essence, hardboard panels are the best of two worlds — the beauty and charm of an enduring past and the convenience and advantages of a modern wall material.

PROFESSIONAL COMPOUND ACTION snips M-41R by Wiss, is now available to consumers. It's capable of starting a cutting point anywhere on flat sheet metal, and is perfect for cutting a hole in leaders for downspouts.

Home Handyman Needs Right Kind Of 'Snips'

When it comes to handling repair work around the house, the modern craftsman needs at least one and possiby more metal cutting snips for his workbench. And sometimes this same person is also likely to use the same tools in fashioning handcrafts for some of his more leisurely workshop hobbies.

If you are a do-it-yourselfer who fits either or both of these types, you'll surely want to know how the work can go easier and faster and more pleasantly with the correct cutting implements.

J. Wiss & Sons Co., a leading metal snips manufacturer, says there's a basic assortment of snips that the home handyman should know about for cutting fiber glass, rubber, wire, leather and other tough materials. There are snips that make left or right handed cuts on sheet metal, and those primarily for cutting straight lines.

The hobbyist will also appreciate the capabilities of these same tools (recognized by numbers on their blades such as M1, M2, MPC-3 and A-10) in creating tin-can art and metal wall sculptures as well as for working with metal grill work, aluminum edgings, etc.

For this busy home craftsman, who undoubtedly is doing more of his own repairs today due to rising costs in professional services, Wiss has taken one of its top professional tools — M-41R pipe and duct snips — and packaged it for the consumer. Featuring compound level action that transmits exceptional power with half the effort required of regular snips, they also have a patented ball spreading action for faster, cleaner cutting, even through seams. An extra sharp piercing tip permits you to start your cutting point anywhere on a flat metal sheet.

They cut any shape ducts — square, rectangular or round. They are ideal for cutting an opening to attach a downspout to a gutter and a myriad of other home improvement projects.

They are also excellent for cutting non-metallic sheet materials such as fiber glass panels, vinyl tiles, decorative plastic kitchen laminates, synthetic shingles and lots more. The ball bearing jaw plus the vinyl offset handles protect the hands from cuts and bruises. Wiss snips make a great gift for dad on any occasion. You'll find them attractively packaged at your local hardware store.

Ruthless Sorting Can Mean More Elbow Room At Home

If you feel your home needs something but you don't know what, maybe it's because the rooms are so cluttered with outgrown and outmoded possessions that you can't get a clear picture. Instead of rushing to add something new, why not subtract?

This is a family project. Get everyone into the spirit of shedding excess THINGS. Clear a large area in the garage and stand back. It'll fill up right before your eyes with an amazing assortment of once-loved but no longer useful objects.

The child's furniture that has been taking up space in the bedroom although the child outgrew it years ago — add it to the pile. The darkroom equipment your husband used enthusiastically six years ago for the last time — add it to the pile. Those wornout blankets you keep in back of the linen closet although you haven't the faintest intention of ever using them again — add them to the pile. Your son's mandolin that sits in wall brackets, gathering cobwebs — add it to the pile.

While you're at it, attack all the clothes closets including those that store out-of-season clothes in the attic or spare room. If an article of clothing hasn't been worn in several years, the chances are that it won't be worn again. Though you may feel a momentary pang at parting with a suit that was so becoming seven years ago, you'll get an ever greater sense of satisfaction from bringing wardrobes up to date.

Of course you should be discarding clothes only if they no longer fit into your lifestyle. If it's you who no longer fits into the clothes, that's another story. Start controlling calories the easy way with Slender diet food from Carnation. Mixed with 6 oz. fresh whole milk, Slender has just 225 calories. Substitute this "mini meal" for one or more regular meals as needed, and shed excess weight fast.

When the house has been stripped of unused and unwanted possessions, you'll be surprised how much better it looks. Not only does this kind of home improvement cost nothing, it can even make money for you. Advertise a weekend garage sale in the local newspaper, specifying major objects for sale — such as a tricycle, radio, or baby carriage.

Here's A Checklist:

Safety Begins Indoors

Every homeowner wants her home to be the most comfortable, most attractive, and (although not frequently uppermost in mind), the most completely safe environment for her family to be in.

Authorities state that updating and maintaining safety features in the home not only promotes the advantages of security and peace of mind to the owners but are definite "plus" factors for prospective future buyers.

Taken room by room, the following suggestions are merely guide lists and are not intended to serve as either minimum standards or to override or replace applicable local building codes:

Kitchen:

— Kitchen work areas should be free of traffic and conflicting "group" areas such as eating areas.

— Sink, stove and oven and all working surfaces should be well-lighted. Stove should not be located under a window where a curtain could catch on fire.

— Ventilation system should be checked for obtaining maximum exhaust flow that discharges either directly or through ducts to the outside.

— Gas ovens, broilers, and rotisseries should have pilot lights and should be provided with automatic cut-off mechanisms in case of flame failure.

Bathroom:

— Non-slip floor finishes are a must here.

— Non-slip finishes or surfaces are also important in bathtubs and shower enclosures (or textured or nearly flat surfaces).

— Shower and tub doors should be of safety glazed glass.

— All electrical equipment should be grounded. This, of course, applies to all rooms.

Living Room, Dining Room, Bedroom:

— Floor coverings should be firmly anchored to avoid slippage.

— There should be doors at the top or bottom of stairways so each level of the home can be closed off.

— Each room should have plenty of wall electrical outlets so "octopus" connections do not occur.

— Doors should not open against walls, and should not interfere with foot traffic or with other doors.

— Swinging doors should have windows or some other means for visibility through or over them.

Gives Room Good Looks

Surfaces range from baked-on, melamine plastic to vinyl overlays, which can be installed over existing plaster or plasterboard walls. The paneling is available in decorator colors, and a variety of patterns and textures such as wood-grain finishes or exotic tile designs.

Adding A New Room? Think Windows!

Adding a family room to a comfortable older home can be as challenging as it is exciting.

The excitement comes from day-dreaming about the ways the family will eventually use the room for enjoyment or entertainment as well as from planning the interior decor.

FUN DO-OVER. . .Family and friends will delight in the bright welcome from a newly remodeled mudroom that maximizes floor and wall space. A seating platform lets everyone pull off boots before slipping into warm slippers, oriental style. The white brick of Gafstar cushioned sheet vinyl with foam-backing will stay that way with just a once-over of a damp mop. Panels of primary paint set off open closets that hold sporting goods. Storage plus: $25 rack of drums, sprayed in bright colors, to hold gloves and hats that often have a way of getting otherwise lost. All ideas, including the GAF floor installation, may be realized by the do-it-yourselfer.

Wondering how you'll be able to design a room that will meet the family's needs for comfort and convenience, yet conserve energy, is the challenge.

If you're thinking about adding a room to the back of the house, adjacent to a patio or backyard, ample window space that affords broad views, fresh air and sunshine is a must. Since windows offer the best opportunity for making a new room attractive as well as functional, choosing the right ones can give you all the natural light and fresh air you'll need and still conserve energy.

The quality of the window being installed has as much influence on energy conservation as its size and number. Precision-made wood windows with insulating glass, for example, save considerably more energy than routine, single-glazed metal-frame widows without a specific thermal barrier.

Well-built wood window units keep heat loss at a minimum in several ways. Since wood is a poor conductor, it makes an excellent insulator.

Insulating glass — two panes of glass with an insulating air space between — also reduces the flow of heat through the glass area. And factory-applied weatherstripping limits heat loss due to air infiltration.

Combined with wood sash, insulating glass reduces heating costs in other ways. Indoor condensation on the glass surface and the window frame is minimized. This allows a higher humidity level to be maintained at a lower setting on the thermostat, but with no sacrifice in comfort.

In addition, complete wood window units with insulating glass can be purchased at local building material dealers in a variety of styles and sizes that enable homeowners to get a balance of fixed and operable windows. In this way, a homeowner can utilize daylight and cooling breezes instead of relying exclusively on energy-consuming artificial light and air conditioning.

Kitchens Come Well Equipped

Whether your culinary talents focus on gourmet cuisine or traditional everyday fare, chances are you may use many of the same kitchen utensils and instruments when preparing meals.

A well-equipped kitchen includes a wide variety of tools. Basic utensils for the conscientious cook include: an assortment of wooden spoons, a set of metal implements (big fork, spatula, solid spoon, slotted spoon, ladle and potato masher), a wire whisk rotary eggbeater, four-sided grater, funnels, vegetable slicer and peeler, egg slicer, and food grinder.

And, not to be forgotten are the many implements used when cooking special dishes, such as pastry and basting brushes, French frying basket, and kitchen tongs.

You may vary this list according to your personal needs, but one thing you probably can't change is the problem of washing away the veneer of grease that often coats these many- and oddly-shaped utensils after they've been used.

Cutting Water Use Spares The Wallet

If yours is an average family, you use more than 80,000 gallons of water every year!

No one has to tell you that water rates are going up. So are rates for gas or electricity to heat that water.

And what about those sewage service charges many communities are passing on to residents in this form of direct-user charges. They are often based on the amount of waste water discharged from your home.

It all boils down to this: Save water . . . and you save money!

Saving water isn't difficult, says Kohler Co., a leading plumbingware manufacturer whose products include water-conserving toilets, showerheads and faucets. Depending on daily use, these products could save an average family of four some 30,000 gallons of water a year . . . or more!

The conventional toilet, for instance, uses five gallons of water per flush. It accounts for as much as 40% of all water used in the home. That's some 32,000 gallons of water flushed down the drain every year.

Kohler's "Water-Guard" toilet, on the other hand, flushes with 3½ gallons of water . . . 30% less than most other toilets. That's an annual savings of some 10,000 gallons of water, and a savings of 10,000 gallons less sewage . . . savings that could pay for the installation of the toilet in a few years.

"Water-Guard" features a flushing system designed to complement a new trapway that ensures positive flushing action with less water. This is a far superior system than the "Brick in the tank" which often wastes water because multiple flushes are required to clean the toilet bowl.

Water-conserving showerheads are even more efficient "dollar-savers" if your family enjoys showering.

Kohler, for instance, offers showerheads with automatic flow control that can reduce water usage 50% or more . . . from the six to eight gallons per minute delivered by conventional showerheads to just three gallons per minute. Even at the reduced volume, the bather still gets a thoroughly satisfying and drenching shower.

With water-conserving showerheads, an average family of four could save as much as 20,000 gallons of water per year — plus many "fuel dollars" that would be burned up in the hot water heater, and many "sewer service" dollars, too — assuming each member of the family took a daily five-minute shower.

Flow control showerheads, in chromium or gold electroplate finishes, are designed so that they can easily replace water-wasting showerheads in existing installations.

Flow control is also an available conservation feature in certain Kohler faucets for lavatories and kitchen sinks. Water flow is limited to two gallons per minute per valve, a rate that is ample but not wasteful and saves up to 29% of the water used by conventional faucets.

Kohler Co. estimates that the amount of water saved annually with these products could be as much as 7,500 gallons per person — assuming a daily five-minute shower and five toilet flushings per day.

Colorful brochures describing the complete line of Kohler water-conserving products and other fixtures and faucets are available for 35c by writing to: Save Water, Kohler Co., Kohler, Wisc. 53044.

Safety Reminders For Woodchopping

Woodchopping, an art almost lost in our country's historical past, is fast emerging again as Americans try to blunt the sharply rising costs of home heating.

Because of this growning interest, the Hand Tools Institute has issued some basic safety reminders in using these tools for one of the most basic chores known to man.

First, cautions HTI, make sure you select the proper tool.

Besides selecting the proper tool, HTI warns that the tool also should be in top condition.

For instance, never use tools with loose or damaged handles or cracked, chipped faces. Make sure the cutting edge of your axe, hatchet, woodchippers maul, or wedge is sharpp. Dull tools are dangerous and require more effort.

HTI also urges that you properly dress for your woodchopping job. Safety shoes are recommended. So are safety goggles to protect your eyes from flying chips or fragments.

Also, keep your environment safe. No obstructions in your work area — especially in your line of swing. Keep curious children and others away.

THE HIGH GROUND

EAST LANSING— Avoid low ground for garden spots, advises Michigan State university. Cold air settles there, delaying early growth and likely frosting earlier.

Insulating glass — two panes of glass with an insulating air space between — also reduces the flow of heat through the glass area. And factory-applied weatherstripping limits heat loss due to air infiltration.

Combined with wood sash, insulating glass reduces heating costs in other ways. Indoor condensaton on the glass surface and the window frame is minimized. This allows a higher humidity level to be maintained at a lower setting on the thermostat, butwith no sacrifice in comfort.

In addition, complete wood window units with insulating glass can be purchased at local building material dealers in a variety of styles and sizes that enable homeowners to get a balance of fixed and operable windows. In this way, a homeowner can utilize daylight and cooling breezes instead of relying exclusively on energy-consuming artificial light and air conditioning.

Kitchens Come Well Equipped

Whether your culinary talents focus on gourmet cuisine or traditional, everyday fare, chances are you may use many of the same kitchen utensils and instruments when preparing meals.

A well-equipped kitchen includes a wide variety of tools. Basic utensils for the conscientious cook include: an assortment of wooden spoons, a set of metal implements (big fork, spatula, solid spoon, slotted spoon, ladle and potato masher), a wire whisk rotary eggbeater, four-sided grater, funnels, vegetable slicer and peeler, egg slicer, and food grinder.

And, not to be forgotten are the many implements used when cooking special dishes, such as pastry and basting brushes, French frying basket, and kitchen tongs.

You may vary this list according to your personal needs, but one thing you probably can't change is the problem of washing away the veneer of grease that often coats these many- and oddly-shaped utensils after they've been used.

Cutting Water Use Spares The Wallet

If yours is an average family, you use more than 80,000 gallons of water every year!

No one has to tell you that water rates are going up. So are rates for gas or electricity to heat that water.

And what about those sewage service charges many communities are passing on to residents in this form of direct-user charges. They are often based on the amount of waste water discharged from your home.

It all boils down to this: Save water . . . and you save money!

Saving water isn't difficult, says Kohler Co., a leading plumbingware manufacturer whose products include water-conserving toilets, showerheads and faucets. Depending on daily use, these products could save an average family of four some 30,000 gallons of water a year . . . or more!

The conventional toilet, for instance, uses five gallons of water per flush. It accounts for as much as 40% of all water used in the home. That's some 32,000 gallons of water flushed down the drain every year.

Kohler's "Water-Guard" toilet, on the other hand, flushes with 3½ gallons of water . . . 30% less than most other toilets. That's an annual savings of some 10,000 gallons of water, and a savings of 10,000 gallons less sewage . . . savings that could pay for the installation of the toilet in a few years.

"Water-Guard" features a flushing system designed to complement a new trapway that ensures positive flushing action with less water. This is a far superior system than the "Brick in the tank" which often wastes water because multiple flushes are required to clean the toilet bowl.

Water-conserving showerheads are even more efficient "dollar-savers" if your family enjoys showering.

Kohler, for instance, offers showerheads with automatic flow control that can reduce water usage 50% or more . . . from the six to eight gallons per minute delivered by conventional showerheads to just three gallons per minute. Even at the reduced volume, the bather still gets a thoroughly satisfying and drenching shower.

With water-conserving showerheads, an average family of four could save as much as 20,000 gallons of water per year — plus many "fuel dollars" that would be burned up in the hot water heater, and many "sewer service" dollars, too — assuming each member of the family took a daily five-minute shower.

Flow control showerheads, in chromium or gold electroplate finishes, are designed so that they can easily replace water-wasting showerheads in existing installations.

Flow control is also an available conservation feature in certain Kohler faucets for lavatories and kitchen sinks. Water flow is limited to two gallons per minute per valve, a rate that is ample but not wasteful and saves up to 25% of the water used by conventional faucets.

Kohler Co. estimates that the amount of water saved annually with these products could be as much as 7,500 gallons per person — assuming a daily five-minute shower and five toilet flushings per day.

Colorful brochures describing the complete line of Kohler water-conserving products and other fixtures and faucets are available for 35c by writing to: Save Water, Kohler Co., Kohler, Wisc. 53044.

Safety Reminders For Woodchopping

Woodchopping, an art almost lost in our country's historical past, is fast emerging again as Americans try to blunt the sharply rising costs of home heating.

Because of this growning interest, the Hand Tools Institute has issued some basic safety reminders in using these tools for one of the most basic chores known to man.

First, cautions HTI, make sure you select the proper tool.

Besides selecting the proper tool, HTI warns that the tool also should be in top condition.

For instance, never use tools with loose or damaged handles or cracked, chipped faces. Make sure the cutting edge of your axe, hatchet, woodchippers maul, or wedge is sharpp. Dull tools are dangerous and require more effort.

HTI also urges that you properly dress for your woodchopping job. Safety shoes are recommended. So are safety goggles to protect your eyes from flying chips or fragments.

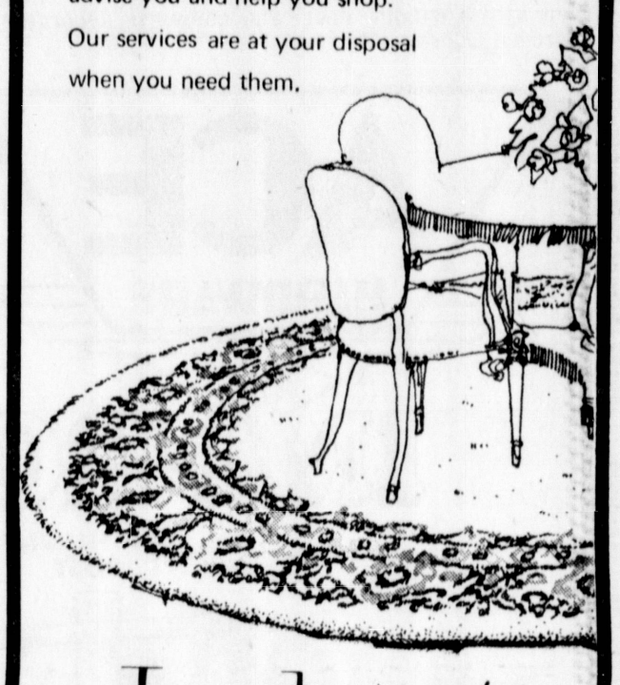

Also, keep your environment safe. No obstructions in your work area — especially in your line of swing. Keep curious children and others away.

THE HIGH GROUND

EAST LANSING — Avoid low ground for garden spots, advises Michigan State university. Cold air settles there, delaying early growth and likely frosting earlier.

Prefabs, Mobiles Right For Small Budgets

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

A lot is happening in manufactured housing, but it may not be easy for the average person who is interested to round up all the facts.

Yet, mobile, modular and prefabricated houses may provide shelter within the means of a house shopper with a small budget. In a book, "Good Shelter," a guide to mobile, modular and pre-fabricated housing, authors Judith and Bernard Rabb have done a good job of assembling useful information to those weighing alternatives to custom housing. They've included cost checklists, specifications and the names of many manufacturers of home in each category.

Mobile homes may be "the cheapest kind of private detached housing to be found in the United States," they explain. "You need fewer dollars." In the end it may prove more costly than expected. In 1973 mobile homes accounted for 48 per cent of all homes of every type and price bracket built that year. The authors advise that the mobile home should be bought as a used home — that way the high depreciation will have been the burden of the original owner.

There are advantages — one can have instant communities with varied recreational facilities. They can be moved (by trailer truck) and additions may be added to them. Some people even build superstructures.

Drawbacks include short-term financing which is usually given on the basis of a personal loan rather than long term mortgages . . . less stringent building specifications which may tend to depreciate the home (they point out mobile homes depreciate while other homes appreciate) . . . smaller rooms and lower ceilings than equivalent rooms in other housing . . . limited range of floor plans . . . drabness . . . may not be safe in windstorms or fire and may not be acceptable in certain communities, a fact that is worth investigating before a site is purchased, they caution.

They also advise visiting a unit. Camera perspective can make rooms appear larger in brochures.

Modular houses are transported to a site and are permanent, requiring a foundation. More expensive than mobile homes, they are less expensive than pre-fabs and can be financed on a long term basis. Most resemble the more conventional types of home.

The homes can be situated on slopes and have a better chance of conforming to prevailing codes than mobile homes, the authors' research showed. About 85 per cent of the work is done at the factory. Masonry, plumbing and electrical work must be done on the site, and this aspect may be handled by the modular home dealer who should be asked to estimate the cost.

Drawbacks include size limitations, low ceilings and the fact that some modulars may not pass building codes.

Prefabricated houses are delivered to a site for erection on a prepared foundation by the owner's crew. Advantages include the fact that the buyer can do some of the work, there is a wide range of home styles and materials, floor plans can be adapted fully to a site. It can be delivered with a minimum of land clearing and requires a minimum of skilled labor man-hours. It should go up faster than a custom-built home. Materials are quality-controlled.

Disadvantages include the difficulty of hiring a work crew in remote areas. The construction quality is subject to the quality of the crew. "The builder of a pre-fab home is crucial to the success of the structure," advise the Rabbs, who suggest the builder should be brought into the planning before the home is purchased. Some manufacturers will supply information but will sell only to builders.

Domes — The dome is an extension of the Mongolian yurt, as the Rabbs point out, and they speak from experience in relating the advantages and disadvantages.

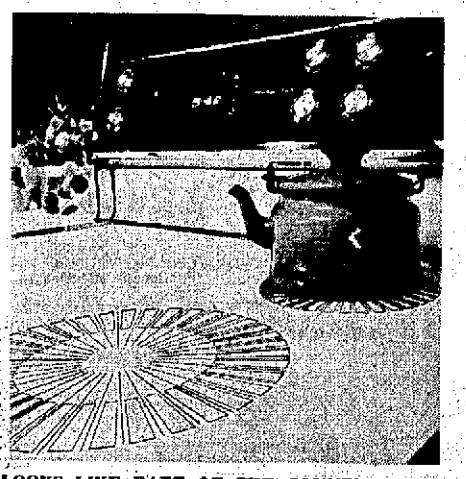

The two have been living in twin 39-inch domes for more than four years. They and friends erected the exterior of both domes in 10 hours at a labor cost of "two cases of beer and about 30 pounds of hamburger and frankfurters."

They have a lot of good to say about domes in area of cost, construction, interior design, spaciousness, strength, wind resistance, acoustics, natural light, unique design.

Difficulties include getting approval from municipalities and building inspectors . . . weatherproofing . . . interior labor because materials are geared for right-angle construction . . . exterior walls curving inward, presenting problems for square furniture.

The Rabbs' dome leaked "like a sieve" for almost a year and at the first rain. Not enough information is supplied by manufacturers in this respect, they claim. Sealants used on the dome "must be sufficiently flexible to expand and contract with changing weather conditions as the wood used in the the shell expands and contracts." They believe the old, tried-and-true felt and shakes attached to the dome by nails is the most reliable method of waterproofing. The Rabbs filed a suit against their builder and received a substantial award in arbitration, they say.

Family Rooms Can Go Beyond 'Basics'

Simplicity is the key to a family room wich is both functional and attractive. And with the various styles of contemporary furniture and accessories available today, the family room can be easily redecorated to suit your lifestyle.

Basics for a family room often include a couch, recliner lounge chair, one of two stationary chairs, end tables with lamps and, perhaps, several small, portable cube tables or a coffee table.

Determine your family's needs — you might want to include a larger card table with matching chairs, bookshelves and cabinets, too. You may find the latter items are especially useful if your family room doubles as a game room or den.

Whatever pieces of furniture and accessories you decide upon, remember they'll need routine maintenance to keep them looking their best.

Many styles are available in the new leather-look vinyls and in laminated and translucent plastics — good, durable materials for family room furnishings as they can be easily cleaned by spraying with Fantastik spray cleaner and wiping with a clean cloth or damp sponge.

Chrome and stainless steel accessories may also be cleaned with he spray cleaner; on wood furiture surfaces, use a polish appropriate for the particular typeof wooden finish.

A family room is meant to be used, not just looked at. By choosing furishings for it that are stylish, functional and easy to care for, you'll have created a room the whole family can enjoy.

YOUNG PEOPLE, BEWARE!

Pitfalls Loom In House Shopping

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Unless they seek help, young people may make some mistakes shopping for a house or apartment. Many pay exorbitant rents, some are in bankrupt condominiums and many find they know absolutely nothing about the house they have bought. Meanwhile, they struggle to meet all the payments.

Spring is house shopping time for many young couples who will be so preoccupied in trying to find a house they can afford, they may forget all else.

That is why many will ask themselves later whether they have copper or galvanized pipe in the new home.

One young couple moved from an apartment into a house and a year later do not know where their well or septic tank are located. They do not know much more about their house than what they can see, and they've been too busy working to pay the mortgage to find out.

"The real estate woman was very nice but she didn't tell us very much," the new owner observed.

That may be par for the course. Ask and you will find out. Don't ask and you will find out, maybe the hard way, later. Some real estate people will put a $10 breakfast order in the refrigerator for the new owners and place a $5 plant on the window sill and then call it quits as they pick up their commissions.

People must learn to ask the important questions. Not only should they know where the septic tank is located, but they should know how old it is and when it was last serviced. In fact, they should insist that it be serviced before they buy the house.

Some years ago a couple bought a beautiful old house only to learn from an exterminator that the house was under service for termites.

These days any house shopper must be armed with a good book which explains the house detective role that must be played before the house is purchased.

A leaky cellar can add considerably to the basic price of a house. No one wants to take on the responsibility of a leaky cellar, and there are many clues to it — dampness, cracks in walls, rotting around window frames, mildew. If the house is on low ground the chances of dampness are increased. In addition to the inconvenience of a wet cellar, there is the danger of mood posts rotting.

It is not only an added expense, but a leaky house is a real bore o cope with. In winter people are afraid to vacation away from their homes because of one or another problem.

That is why the house must be inspected for tell-tale leaks. Yellowed stains on ceilings may come from bathrooms above. In the attic, water damaged areas may be caused by roof damage which can get bigger and ruin ceilings below. Wallpaper stains also can provide clues to leaks.

The chimney should be inspected. The prospective buyer should climb a ladder and make sure it is in good shape. It is a good time, too, to make sure the roof looks sturdy. Bad framing can cause it to sag.

One couple noticed some irregularities — broken putty pieces around windows, gaps in doors, "but the house was enchanting" and they decided to take it without a quibble. Great. But if they had talked about things that were wrong — the floors needed scraping, tiles were cracked in the bathroom — it might have been good grounds to have a few thousand dollars knocked off the price. Now they worry about the expenses of repairs.

Very often the real estate person has a better figure to work with, but he may have promised the owner he will try to get the original price. Any house that has been on the market a long time provides a good chance to the buyer to bargain.

In these times, people who have had a house for 10 or more years may be selling at a considerable profit, and they can usually afford to reduce the price.

There are so many things to check out in a house, it really is worth the expense for the services of a house, it really is worth the expense for the services of a house engineer who will work in your interest. He can check out the wiring, the heating system, the well, the septic tank and he will know where some hidden problems may exist.

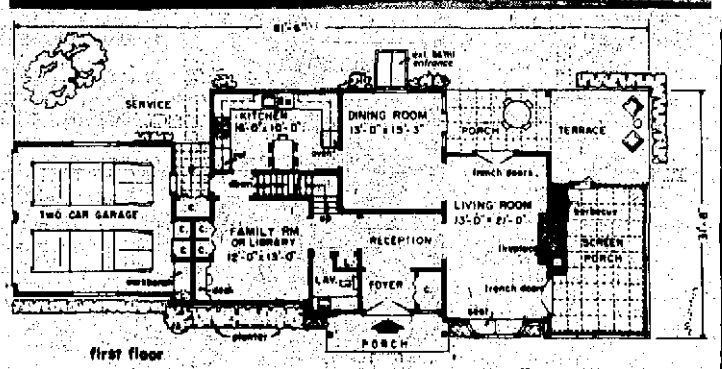

One couple moved in only to find the refrigerator missing. They had always rented an apartment and didn't realize that some houses are sold minus a few important items.

Often a house may not have been sold because the price was too high, but it may be, too, that lots of people have found genuine faults with it fi it has been on the market a long while. It may be a house everybody calls darling, quaint and cozy, and all the rest of it. But when those first leaks arrive the superlatives won't pay the bill for sump pumping.

One couple has always had a leak in the beamed living room of their salt box. Now they want to sell it and pray for good weather. If the fact was known, a buyer could bargain because a big job is necessary to the roof to cure this particular leak.

The Bath Can Be Beautiful

When the urge to redecorate your home hits, don't forget the family bathroom.

There's much you can do to spruce up this "everyone's" room, even though its furnishings can't be rearranged! Here are some of the ways you can do it:

— Cover plain, dull walls with an attractive, colorful wallpaper. Wallpaper can add brightness to a room. If there's a window in the bathroom, have a window shade made from leftover paper to match the walls.

— Hang some art. Many pictures and prints can safely withstand bathroom moisture — and they add interest to the room.

— Keep it shiny. No matter how you decorate, a clean room always looks better than a neglected one. And, especially in the bathroom, it's prudent to kill germs while you clean. With Fantastik Bathroom Cleaner it's easy to clean, disinfect and deodorize washable surfaces at the same time.

Spray tub and basin, shower curtain, tiles, floors, counter tops and other washable surfaces with the foaming bathroom cleaner and wipe off with a paper towel, clean cloth or damp sponge.

In addition to killing staph, strep and other household germs, you'll also help prevent mold and mildew growth for up to two weeks.

— Think green . . . plants, that is. Plants look great anywhere in the home — the bathroom is no exception. If you have enough space, try setting one on a pedestal; otherwise, a hanging plant would do nicely, too. It'll flourish in the room's moisture!

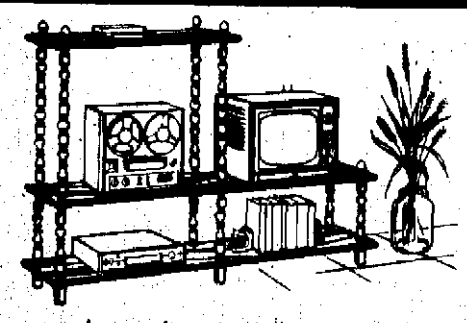

— Hang curtains in front of the bath; protect them with a plastic shower sheet. Shower curtains must be waterproof, but only on the side that gets hit by water — you can use almost any washable material to make a pretty curtain for the "dry side."

Don't Help Potential Burglars

Statistics indicate that most burglaries are attempted while occupants are away, so experts recommend that you don't advertise the fact that you have gone for the evening and most important, for a vacation.

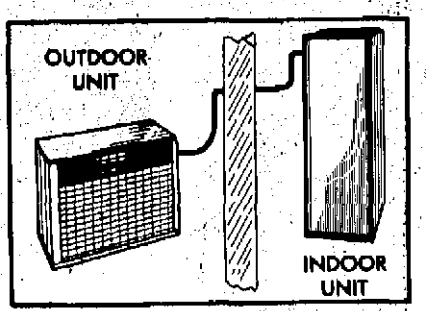

Outdoor lighting, timers that turn indoor lights on and off are some of the devices that may convince potential burglars that someone is at home. If you are going away on a trip, stop mail and newspaper deliveries, to prevent tell-tale piling up of papers and an overstuffed mailbox.

It is also suggested that you keep your garage doors locked at all times, to prevent easy entry into your home.

YOUNG PEOPLE, BEWARE!

Pitfalls Loom In House Shopping

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Unless they seek help, young people may make some mistakes shopping for a house or apartment. Many pay exorbitant rents, some are in bankrupt condominiums and many find they know absolutely nothing about the house they have bought. Meanwhile, they struggle to meet all the payments.

Spring is house shopping time for many young couples who will be so preoccupied in trying to find a house they can afford, they may forget all else.

That is why many will ask themselves later whether they have copper or galvanized pipe in the new home.

One young couple moved from an apartment into a house and a year later do not know where their well or septic tank are located. They do not know much more about their house than what they can see, and they've been too busy working to pay the mortgage to find out.

"The real estate woman was very nice but she didn't tell us very much," the new owner observed.

That may be par for the course. Ask and you will find out. Don't ask and you will find out, maybe the hard way, later. Some real estate people will put a $10 breakfast order in the refrigerator for the new owners and place a $5 plant on the window sill and then call it quits as they pick up their commissions.

People must learn to ask the important questions. Not only should they know where the septic tank is located, but they should know how old it is and when it was last serviced. In fact, they should insist that it be serviced before they buy the house.

Some years ago a couple bought a beautiful old house only to learn from an exterminator that the house was under service for termites.

These days any house shopper must be armed with a good book which explains the house detective role that must be played before the house is purchased.

A leaky cellar can add considerably to the basic price of a house. No one wants to take on the responsibility of a leaky cellar, and there are many clues to it — dampness, cracks in walls, rotting around window frames, mildew. If the house is on low ground the chances of dampness are increased. In addition to the inconvenience of a wet cellar, there is the danger of wood posts rotting.

It is not only an added expense, but a leaky house is a real bore o cope with. In winter people are afraid to vacation away from their homes because of one or another problem.

That is why the house must be inspected for tell-tale leaks. Yellowed stains on ceilings may come from bathrooms above. In the attic, water damaged areas may be caused by roof damage which can get bigger and ruin ceilings below. Wallpaper stains also can provide clues to leaks.

The chimney should be inspected. The prospective buyer should climb a ladder and make sure it is in good shape. It is a good time, too, to make sure the roof looks sturdy. Bad framing can cause it to sag.

One couple noticed some irregularities — broken putty pieces around windows, gaps in doors, "but the house was enchanting" and they decided to take it without a quibble. Great. But if they had talked about things that were wrong — the floors needed scraping, tiles were cracked in the bathroom — it might have been good grounds to have a few thousand dollars knocked off the price. Now they worry about the expenses of repairs.

Very often the real estate person has a better figure to work with, but he may have promised the owner he will try to get the original price. Any house that has been on the market a long time provides a good chance to the buyer to bargain.

In these times people who have had a house for 10 or more years may be selling at a considerable profit, and they can usually afford to reduce the price.

There are so many things to check out in a house, it really is worth the expense for the services of a house, it really is worth the expense for the services of a house engineer who will work in your interest. He can check out the wiring, the heating system, the well, the septic tank and he will know where some hidden problems may exist.

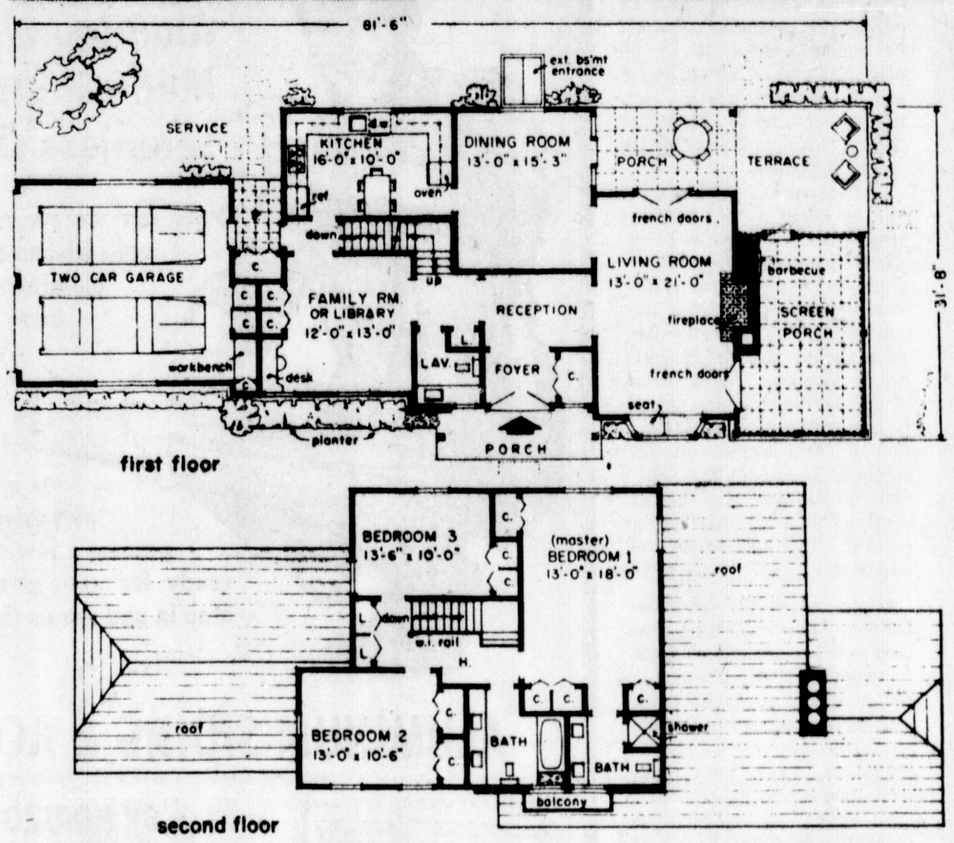

One couple moved in only to find the refrigerator missing. They had always rented an apartment and didn't realize that some houses are sold minus a few important items.

Lincolniana

Historian Homer Cunningham, a faculty member at Whitworth College in Spokane, Wash., toured Kentucky, Illinois and Washington D.C. to gather information on the early life of Abraham Lincoln. Cunningham's investigation turned up some little known facts about the nation's 16th President.

This ramshackle cabin, below, was the scene of one of young Abe Lincoln's few career setbacks — a business venture that flopped with a hard-drinking partner in New Salem, Illinois in 1831. The partner was usually drunk and Lincoln so preoccupied studying his lawbooks, that their dry goods store scarcely attracted enough customers to support their business for a year.

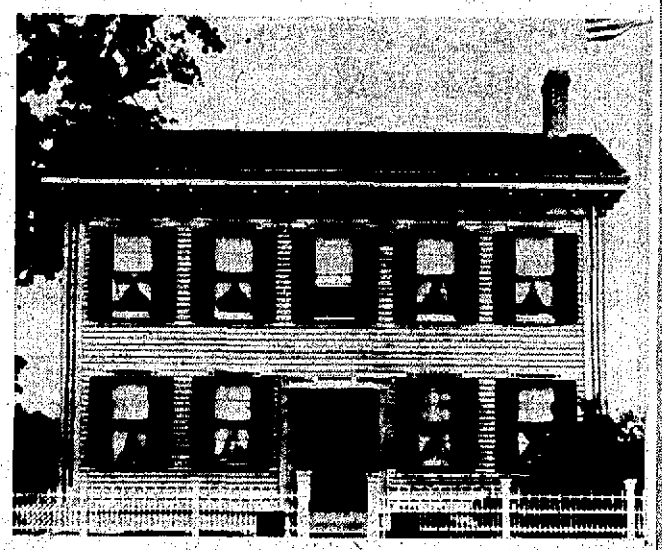

In 1837, Lincoln moved to Springfield, Ill. where a month later, he opened a law office with another attorney. In 1842 at the age of 32, he married Mary Todd and moved into the house below. The parlor, above, was where most of the formal entertaining was held and site of several political strategy sessions for Lincoln's election to Congress in 1846. Historian Cunningham learned that Mary Todd Lincoln turned out to be one of candidate Lincoln's shrewdest advisers. Of $200 raised by friends in his Congressional bid, Lincoln returned $199.25 of it, keeping campaign spending limited to 75 cents.

The elaborate Lincoln Memorial in Springfield houses the original tomb built just after the President's assassination in 1865. During the transfer of the body from the Lincoln family crypt, thieves attempted to kidnap the body for ransom but were caught.

Adding Floor Covering?

Preparation's The Key

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

As with so many do-it-yourself projects, preparation is an essential part of the job in the installation of resilient flooring materials on wood floors.

The first step in this preparation is a decision on whether the floor requires an underlayment of hardboard or plywood. Underlayment is a term for an economical type of either of these materials, being of a service grade that is very strong yet without the unblemished surfaces necessary for visible use.

When does a floor need such underlayment? When it's only a single or subfloor, such as is usually found in an attic. Or when it is of double construction (that is, a top floor and a subfloor) but the boards are more than 3 inches in width. In either case, the base on which the underlayment is to be placed should be sound, clean and dry. If there are any protruding nails, remove them and reinail close by. Raised areas should be planed.

Underlayment usually comes in 4 by 4 foot panels, but can also be obtained in 4 by 8 foot sizes. The panels should be fitted in staggered fashion so that four corners never meet at any one point. An underlayment joint should not fall directly over a floor joint. The direction of the continuous joints should be at right angles to the direction of the boards in the subfloor. Allow 1/8th-inch space between the wall and the underlayment, a gap that will be covered by the shoe or baseboard.

Leave a small space — between 1-18th and 1-32nd of an inch — between panels to allow for expansion. Use grooved or coated nails, available where you buy the underlayment. They should be hammered in along the edges, but not too close to them, and across the surface of each panel at intervals of between 4 and 6 inches. Always start nailing at the center of a panel and work toward the edges. Long staples and a heavy-duty stapler also can be used and may speed up the work.

It's a good idea to condition the hardboard or plywood underlayment in the room where it will be used. This simply means to keep the panels in that room from 24 to 48 hours so they can adjust to the humidity content there before they are fastened. The panels should be placed on edge around the room or, if that is impractical, they should be stacked in some way that will allow air to circulate freely around them. If the room is abnormally damp from some temporary condition, allow it to dry out before installing the underlayment.

When it is necessary to cut the underlayment to fit around one or more sides of the room, either a hand or power saw can be used. With a power saw, use a cross-cut or combination blade. For extensive cutting of hardboard, a carbide-tipped blade is best.

(For either of Andy Lang's helpful booklets, "Using Hardboard" or "Wood Finishing in the Home," send 30 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743.)

Make Your Own Spring

If you can't get away for Spring vacation to sunnier climes, you can still send your house — or at least your furnace — according to the energy experts at the Certain-teed Home Institute, Valley Forge, PA. Adding six inches (R-19) fiber glass insulation in the attic can make an immediate difference in your heating bills. And, the net effect can be like moving your home from Anchorage to Flagstaff, from Portland to Alamogordo, Hartford to Memphis, and so on.

LEAF SCORCH

Drought and hot weather frequently cause maple and other trees to suffer leaf scorch. Margins and area between veins of leaves turn brown. Scorch will usually show up first on the side of the prevailing wind, roads or sidewalks. It is caused by the inability of the root system to restore moisture lost at the leaf surface. Trees on sandy soil usually will show the symptoms first.

To determine the winter relief your home — and pocketbook — can anticipate with six inches of insulation in the attic, consult a winter degree-days chart. Decrease the winter degree days in your local by 30%, then find a city in a warmer climate whose winter degree days correspond in number to the new figure. You might just experience Spring in Chicago at the same time as residents do in Washington, D.C. — or at least your heating bill will reflect "springtime" temperatures, even when there's still snow on the ground and chill in the air.

"SEND" YOUR HOME "SOUTH" By adding six inches of (R-19) fiber glass insulation to your attic. Energy experts at Certain-teed Home Institute illustrate how you can experience winter degree-days corresponing to those in sunnier climes, save on heating bills, with just six inches of attic insulation.

Does working late mean dinner's late? Nope.

Not if you've got an Amana Touchmatic Radarange

The Amana Touchmatic Radarange Microwave Oven revolutionizes microwave cooking. Makes microwave cooking simple as 1-2-3.

- Now you can program defrost and slo-cook . . . or defrost and cook . . . in combination.
- Clean-up is quick, too, because you cook on serving plates, or paper plates!
- Only the food gets hot. So you and the kitchen stay cool.
- Stainless steel oven interior wipes clean in a jiffy, because splatters don't bake on.
- Big enough to roast a 20 pound turkey.
- Digital clock on the control panel displays the time in big bright numbers. When cooking, it's a split second timer that shows remaining cooking time. Then when cooking's done — it "remembers" and displays the time of day . . . automatically.
- The Radarange oven saves energy. Uses 50 to 75% less electricity than a conventional range!

Spanish Styling Lends Distinctive Charm To Two-Story Home

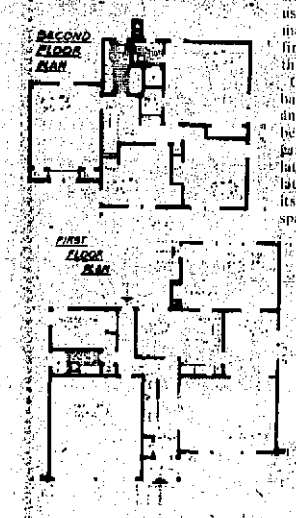

By AUGUSTUS SUGLIA, Architect

HOUSE DESIGN 6014: If you need four bedrooms, a two-story home is your most economical choice. This one with its stucco finish, red aluminum rough shake roofing and wrought-iron balconies has a typically Spanish look.

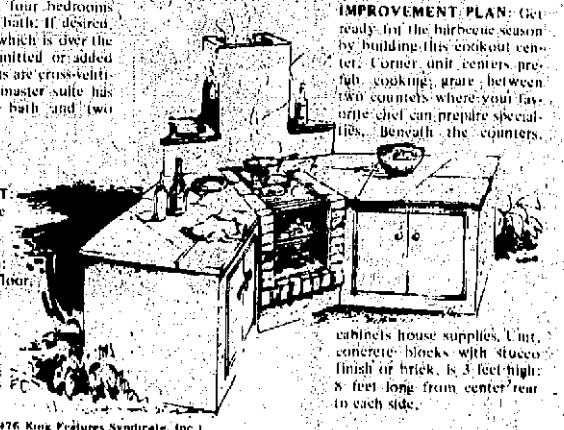

Living room has a front location and a picture-window view of the street. There's a separate dining room as well as a dinette area that's set in front of kitchen windows. Entry from the two-car garage is convenient to a bath with stall shower. Spare room could be used for sewing, den, guest or maid. A recreation room with a fireplace is an optional feature that can be added at a later date.

On the second floor, a center hall leads to all four bedrooms and to the main bath. If desired, bedroom No. 4, which is over the garage, can be omitted or added later. All bedrooms are cross-ventilated. The large master suite has its own private bath and two spacious closets.

SQUARE FEET: 1,145 for house on cellar; 681, garage and spare room; 1,145, second floor.

Survey Of Housewives

Some Jobs Still For Men

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

How do housewives feel about equal job opportunities? In the house, that is.

It's a fine idea out of the home, but many women have no desire to trade dishwasher and washing machine chores for the privilege of climbing ladders, sanding floors or going to the cellar on a cold winter night to see why the furnace "konked out."

A random sampling of women turned up some reasons why men are still welcome to certain jobs about the house.

"After watching my husband scrape window muntins and house shingles on a broiling hot day in preparation for painting our house, I decided not to join any crusade that would give me 'the same privileges,'" said one housewife. She hasn't even had the energy to paint the kitchen moldings, much less scrape a two-story building, she says.

Roof patching is no job for a woman either, in her opinion. She becomes nauseated from the smell of tar paper that is used on such a job. Even her man was a bit timid about accepting the risk of climbing up on their pitched roof, but they couldn't afford to hire someone.

Scraping and staining floors are chores that also are disliked by many women. One woman must leave the house when the floors are sanded as it gets her "teeth on edge." It would take its toll of hands, face and hair, she says, if her slight frame battled the machine that must be carefully manipulated in scraping the floors.

Women are turned off by power mowers, too. Some say they couldn't budge such machines on level ground, much less on hilly spots. Dangerous, too.

Snow shoveling and clearing driveways are other jobs that are "fun when you feel like doing them but not when you must," says one housewife. Not like building snowmen, she added. She also doesn't want to get involved in putting up storm windows.

As for power outage, which seems to occur more frequently in recent winters, the man can take over "and more power to him," one woman insists. In addition to her husband prying firewood out of icy wood piles, there are those dark nights . . .

"I am glad he's there when I think I hear voices or creaking floor boards or windows opening in the dead of night . . ."

It is also the man who is called upon usually to dispose of those nests of yellowjackets or hornets or to provide reassurances that the "enormous rattlesnake" that has been spotted is really a garter snake.

Working women who spend as much time out of their apartments or houses as their partners believe that men should "probably give equal time to cooking and house cleaning" but there are jobs he simply can't do well.

"He may not erase rings in coffee cups or bathtubs, but he's a whiz at putting new sockets in lamps," one young bride said, and another prefers to have her husband "miter lumber for shelves" because he can't quite get the hang of mitering sheets.

It's true men create work. They leave "muddy footprints on freshly scrubbed kitchen floors" and "they never put ice trays back in their cubicles . . ." but as one woman said, echoing the opinions of others:

"When the going gets tough it's great to have him around the house. Other times, too."

Keep Awnings Shining Bright

Awnings made of aluminum or enameled metal can be kept clean and shining bright.

They are easily wiped off, top and under, with a sponge wrung from detergent or soap suds. Rinse with clean water or spray with a garden hose.

In The Spring, Watch Out For Fast-Buck Contractors

Make Sure Agreement's All In Writing

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Spring is the season for unscrupulous building contractors "working out of their glove compartments."

That timely reminder comes from Peter Johnson of Hackensack, N.J., president-elect of the National Home Remodelers Assn. which has just had its first consumer show in 43 years.

"There are good guys and bad guys in the business. People should learn how to sort them out," Johnson said.

In addition to the itinerant contractors cruising about neighborhoods looking for prospects, one must be alert also to choosing the right contractor from those called to estimate on a job.

"Lots of gimmicks are used. A contractor may suggest that if you hire him to put siding on your house, he will pay you a good fee for other business he picks up in your neighborhood. The model-house ploy.

"And there are fear tactics — your roof is about to collapse. Or maybe it is your chimney that will fall down. Or perhaps your furnace will blow up — unless you do something about it right away."

Many fraudulent representatives may be spotted by out-of-state license plates on their cars, he says. Or your suspicions might be aroused when he quickly knocks $1,000 off his top-of-the-head $5,000 appraisal of a job. Or he may even produce a fake card that introduces him as vice-president of a big building materials company.

When contracting with anyone to do a good-sized jjob, be sure to check him out, Johnson cautions. For example:

If it is a sizeable job, make sure he will use an architect, even if he doesn't have one on his own staff.

He should have adequate insurance — property damage, liability and workmen's compensation. If the job will cost more than $2,000 ask for references — his banks and the companies he has done business with.

How many years has he been in business under the same corporate name? If a long-time operator he will honor his guarantees, but if he has changed the name of his company many times, beware.

Even if he is just building a porch, don't settle for a mere mention of dimensions in the contract. Get all the specifications. What kind of materials will be used? If a room is being added ask even about the molding. Will it be crown? Dentil? Cove? If you don't know what they are, ask to see a sample.

There should be a cleanup clause in the contract. You don't want to be stuck with a pile of junk. The contract should specify the area will be broom-swept at least, and the debris removed from the premises.

Make sure the contract states who will pay for the permit necessary to do the job. Some permits run as high as $200, and it is a point well worth settling in advance.

Starting and completion dates should be incorporated into the contract. Weather, deliveries and other things can delay a project, but at least you will have something to work with. Contractors may need some grace period if they have been hampered by things beyond their control. But the job shouldn't lag.

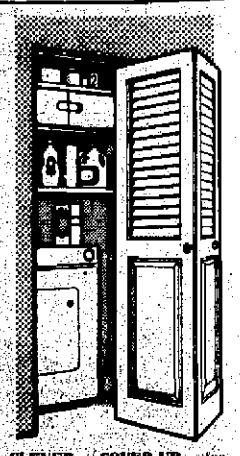

A contractor for almost four decades, Johnson has been appalled at some of the shoddy work he has observed as co-chairman of the better Contractors of New Jersey.

"One woman had a kitchen that a contractor had begun remodeling six months before and it was still a hideous mess. I suggested she should be rebated $700."

Some years ago to help inform consumers, Johnson published a book, "How to Guesstimate Remodeling and Home Improvements." It listed every kind of job and its probate cost to be used as a guide. Today, the book, which he privately published, carries a sticker advising the estimates must be increased by 25 per cent.

He believes in a strict code of ethics for contractors, one of his aims in his new post. He also says he will campaign for national uniform codes in home remodeling, although it might take many years to achieve such goals.

"In some towns you can't even put up a second roof which is ridiculous, whereas other towns would permit two or three, and there may be some that would permit four which would really be too much of a burden for a house," he says.

CLEVER COVER-UP for laundry and storage area: attractive folding doors hide appliances and supplies, make room suitable for other uses when not serving as laundry room.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Despite the great popularity of paint rollers, millions of paint brushes are sold every year. The big difference between now and the past is that most of those in use today have nylon rather than hog bristles.

It is an erroneous impression that the main reason for purchasing a good quality brush is that it lasts a long time. Most assuredly, a superior brush has the durability than an inexpensive one lacks, but there's a better reason than that for buying one. It's because it produces excellent results right from the start. It picks up and retains the paint well. It permits the paint to go on smoothly without excessive sputtering and dripping. The bristles are set firmly in the ferrule (the metal enclosure around the wide part of the handle) and do not shed easily. Cheap brushes, even when new, never give good results.

While it is true that price is a fair indicator of a good brush, there are certain ways to determine quality. The ferrule should be sturdy and fit snugly. The bristles should be springy and elastic and not limp and short. They should be thicker at the base, tapering gently at the ends, where they have splits or "flags".

A paint brush without these characteristics tends to dump most of the paint load the instant it touches a surface. The user then must take extra strokes to spread the paint over an equal or smaller area. The result is less smooth paint film, more effort and a waste of material.

A cheap brush sometimes comes in handy when doing rough work where appearance is not important and when you may wish to discard the brush after using it once or twice.

It's a good idea to use a brush only for a single type of finishing material. Thus, a brush should be used only for an oil-based or latex paint or varnish or lacquer or shellac, and so on. Each handle can be given an initial or other identifying mark so you won't have to remember or guess from one job to the next.

Always use the correct solvent for cleaning — turpentine or mineral spirits for oil paints or varnish; water for latex paints; denatured alcohol for shellac; lacquer thinner for lacquer. When you are using an unfamiliar finishing material, the label will tell you what the correct solvent is.

Use the right kind of brush as well as one of quality. For large, flat surfaces, a 4-inch brush is about right. Use a trim or sash brush 2 or 3 inches wide for woodwork, paneling and trim. Best for sashes, trellises and things of that nature is a flat or oval sash brush from 1 to 3 inches wide. There are flat enamel or varnish brushes, chiseled to permit easier flowing, for furniture, toys and objects with small, flat surfaces.

Whatever you choose to store your brush, be certain that the bristles are not in a bent position.

GOVERNOR'S ADVICE

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Gov. William G. Milliken said Thursday if Ronald Reagan does badly in Wisconsin's presidential primary Tuesday, the former California governor should consider giving up his campaign for the GOP nomination.

A UNIQUE GRAPHIC DESIGN makes an original work of art out of the walls and Levolor Riviera window blinds in this room. This unusual and exciting decor is a low-budget project which will challenge adventurous do-it-yourselfers. Custom-made Levelor blinds come in more than 100 colors and can be striped to carry graphic color lines across windows.

Imagination Can Whip Tight Budget

Tight household budgets can strain the imagination when it comes time to redecorate. One way to cut decorating costs is to create an original graphic design on walls.

With the help of modern slim-slatted Levolor blinds there's no need to let a window stand in the way.

These sleek blinds come in over 100 fashion colors and can be ordered in subtly shaded or boldly striped horizontal patterns to match the wall stripes.

Wall and window blind graphics make a room exciting at little expense. They are easy to maintain, eliminate the need for additional wall or window treatments in the room and give the home decorator personal pride in a "new" creation.

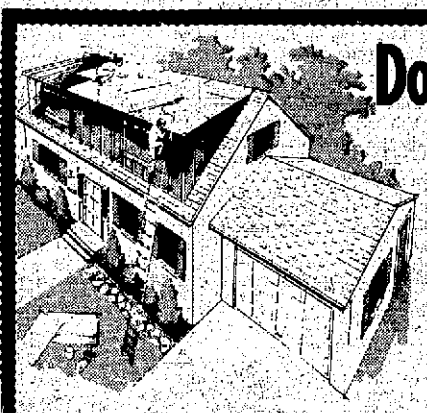

Regular interior house paints, or colorful decorating tape can be used to make the wall graphic, and colors can be conveniently matched to blinds with Levolor's handy color guide.

In no time at all an ordinary room can be transformed into a decorator showpiece. For more ideas on decorating with window blinds, write to: "Levolor Window Graphics," P.O. Box 323, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Paper Ceiling With Roller

If you are papering the ceiling, use a paint roller to apply it with.

You will find it makes the paper smooth, leaves no wrinkles, and doesn't tear as easily.

In The Spring, Watch Out For Fast-Buck Contractors

Make Sure Agreement's All In Writing

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Spring is the season for unscrupulous building contractors "working out of their glove compartments."

That timely reminder comes from Peter Johnson of Hackensack, N.J., president-elect of the National Home Remodelers Assn. which has just had its first consumer show in 43 years.

"There are good guys and bad guys in the business. People should learn how to sort them out," Johnson said.

In addition to the itinerant contractors cruising about neighborhoods looking for prospects, one must be alert also to choosing the right contractor from those called to estimate on a job.

"Lots of gimmicks are used. A contractor may suggest that if you hire him to put siding on your house, he will pay you a good fee for other business he picks up in your neighborhood. The model-house ploy.

"And there are fear tactics — your roof is about to collapse. Or maybe it is your chimney that will fall down. Or perhaps your furnace will blow up — unless you do something about it right away."

Many fraudulent representatives may be spotted by out-of-state license plates on their cars, he says. Or your suspicions might be aroused when he quickly knocks $1,000 off his top-of-the-head $5,000 appraisal of a job. Or he may even produce a fake card that introduces him as vice-president of a big building materials company.

When contracting with anyone to do a good-sized jjob, be sure to check him out, Johnson cautions. For example:

. . . If it is a sizeable job, make sure he will use an architect, even if he doesn't have one on his own staff.

. . . He should have adequate insurance — property damage, liability and workmen's compensation. If the job will cost more than $2,000 ask for references — his banks and the companies he has done business with.

. . . How many years has he been in business under the same corporate name? If a long-time operator he will honor his guarantees, but if he has changed the name of his company many times, beware.

. . . Even if he is just building a porch, don't settle for a mere mention of dimensions in the contract. Get all the specifications. What kind of materials will be used? If a room is being added ask even about the molding. Will it be crown? Dentil? Cove? If you don't know what they are, ask to see a sample.

. . .There should be a cleanup clause in the contract. You don't want to be stuck with a pile of junk. The contract should specify the area will be broom-swept at least, and the debris removed from the premises.

. . . Make sure the contract states who will pay for the permit necessary to do the job. Some permits run as high as $200, and it is a point well worth settling in advance.

. . . Starting and completion dates should be incorporated into the contract. Weather, deliveries and other things can delay a project, but at least you will have something to work with. Contractors may need some grace period if they have been hampered by things beyond their control. But the job shouldn't lag.

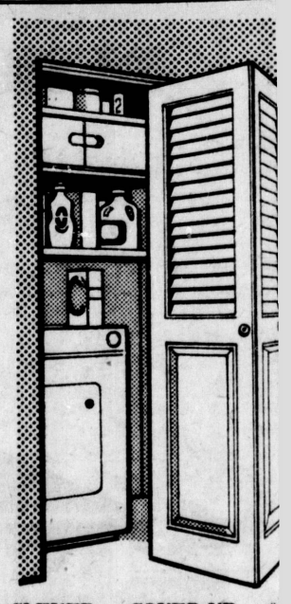

A contractor for almost four decades, Johnson has been appalled at some of the shoddy work he has observed as co-chairman of the better Contractors of New Jersey.

"One woman had a kitchen that a contractor had begun remodeling six months before and it was still a hideous mess. I suggested she should be rebated $700."

Some years ago to help inform consumers, Johnson published a book, "How to Guesstimate Remodeling and Home Improvements." It listed every kind of job and its probate cost to be used as a guide. Today, the book, which he privately published, carries a sticker advising the estimates must be increased by 25 per cent.

He believes in a strict code of ethics for contractors, one of his aims in his new post. He also says he will campaign for national uniform codes in home remodeling, although it might take many years to achieve such goals.

"In some towns you can't even put up a second roof which is ridiculous, whereas other towns would permit two or three, and there may be some that would permit four which would really be too much of a burden for a house," he says.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Despite the great popularity of paint rollers, millions of paint brushes are sold every year. The big difference between now and the past is that most of those in use today have nylon rather than hog bristles.

It is an erroneous impression that the main reason for purchasing a good quality brush is that it lasts a long time. Most assuredly, a superior brush has the durability than an inexpensive one lacks, but there's a better reason than that for buying one. It's because it produces excellent results right from the start. It picks up and retains the paint well. It permits the paint to go on smoothly without excessive splattering and dripping. The bristles are set firmly in the ferrule (the metal enclosure around the wide part of the handle) and do not shed easily. Cheap brushes, even when new, never give good results.

While it is true that price is a fair indicator of a good brush, there are certain ways to determine quality. The ferrule should be sturdy and fit snugly. The bristles should be springy and elastic and not limp and short. They should be thicker at the base, tapering gently at the ends, where they have splits or "flags".

A paint brush without these characteristics tends to dump most of the paint load the instant it touches a surface. The user then must take extra strokes to spread the paint over an equal or smaller area. The result is less smooth paint film, more effort and a waste of material.

A cheap brush sometimes comes in handy when doing rough work where appearance is not important and when you may wish to discard the brush after using it once or twice.

It's a good idea to use a brush only for a single type of finishing material. Thus, a brush should be used only for an oil-based or latex paint or varnish or lacquer or shellac, and so on. Each handle can be given an initial or other identifying mark so you won't have to remember or guess from one job lo the next.

Always use the correct solvent for cleaning — turpentine or mineral spirits for oil paints or varnish; water for latex paints; denatured alcohol for shellac; lacquer thinner for lacquer. When you are using an unfamiliar finishing material, the label will tell you what the correct solvent is.

Use the right kind of brush as well as one of quality. For large, flat surfaces, a 4-inch brush is about right. Use a trim or sash brush 2 or 3 inches wide for woodwork, paneling and trim. Best for sashes, trellises and things of that nature is a flat or oval sash brush from 1 to 3 inches wide. There are flat enamel or varnish brushes, chiseled to permit easier flowing, for furniture, toys and objects with small, flat surfaces.

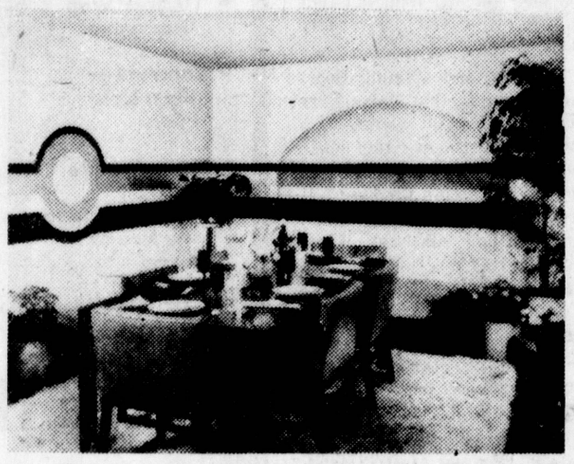

Whatever you choose to store your brush, be certain that the bristles are not in a bent position.

GOVERNOR'S ADVICE

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Gov. William G. Milliken said Thursday if Ronald Reagan does badly in Wisconsin's presidential primary Tuesday, the former California governor should consider giving up his campaign for the GOP nomination.

A UNIQUE GRAPHIC DESIGN makes an original work of art out of the walls and Levolor Riviera window blinds in this room. This unusual and exciting decor is a low-budget project which will challenge adventurous do-it-yourselfers. Custom-made Levelor blinds come in more than 100 colors and can be striped to carry graphic color lines across windows.

Imagination Can Whip Tight Budget

Tight household budgets can strain the imagination when it comes time to redecorate. One way to cut decorating costs is to create an original graphic design on walls.

With the help of modern slim-slatted Levolor blinds there's no need to let a window stand in the way.

These sleek blinds come in over 100 fashion colors and can be ordered in subtly shaded or boldly striped horizontal patterns to match the wall stripes.

Wall and window blind graphics make a room exciting at little expense. They are easy to maintain, eliminate the need for additional wall or window treatments in the room and give the home decorator personal pride in a "new" creation.

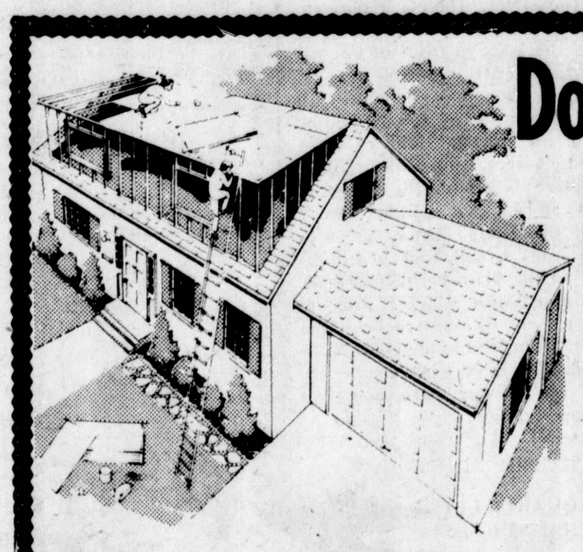

Regular interior house paints, or colorful decorating tape can be used to make the wall graphic, and colors can be conveniently matched to blinds with Levolor's handy color guide.

In no time at all an ordinary room can be transformed into a decorator showpiece. For more ideas on decorating with window blinds, write to: "Levolor Window Graphics," P.O. Box 323, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Paper Ceiling With Roller

If you are papering the ceiling, use a paint roller to apply it with.

You will find it makes the paper smooth, leaves no wrinkles, and doesn't tear as easily.

Book Publishers Flocking To Do-It-Yourself Market

Fueled by double-barreled economic pressure, consumer demand for do-it-yourself books continues to outpace the scramble among U.S. publishers to add new titles to the 2500-plus already on the market.

While gross sales of all books almost doubled during the past decade, growth in the "how-to" segment of the industry quadrupled during the same period.

Much of the sales impetus comes from new-breed DIY books produced by some big corporate publishing names who heretofore avoided the field. Within the past several years, attractively-packaged and mass-merchandised new titles appealing to women and novice craftsmen have proliferated in supermarkets, department stores and home improvement centers.

All have prospered — one is in a fifth printing — and are making solid contributions to corporate earnings.

Some book marketing men in the DIY field, long accustomed to the family-handyman-type consumer, seem somewhat miffed by the new ground rules.

"Our guy already knows the difference between a router and a hacksaw," said the sales guru of an establishment DIY publisher, "he'd get turned off if we held his hand."

Marketers for the new-breed DIY books disagree with this customer profile, while frankly admitting the new format is targeted on women and newcomers.

"We are selling the experienced home craftsman as well as the newcomer," said a spokesman for Signal Marketing Corp., the Long Island-based company that recently quarter-backed a successful promotion of a 16-volume set of Family Circle's DIY's.

The success of this approach can't be denied. A comprehensive, single-volume Reader's Digest DIY manual is in a fifth printing. It sold out the bulk of four printings through an extensive direct mail promotion from house lists at $15.95 per copy.

The 3M Company is a new entry in the DIY market. Familiar to DIY fans through an extensive consumer product line of adhesives, abrasives, and tapes, it is a newcomer to the consumer publishing field. But, its 10-volume, soft cover "Home Pro" do-it-yourself guides at $2.98 per volume are backed by over 40 years experience in DIY products and feature a markedly different content approach.

Before embarking on the book project more than a year ago, the company's researchers came up with basic project classifications indicating areas of greatest consumer interest.

This approach solved several consumer gripes uncovered in the test markets: (1) It's not necessary to buy sets of books to collect all pertinent information for completion of a home repair project. (2) No leafing through several volumes for all project information as in the alphabetized, encyclopedia-type manual. (3) The unusual size of the "Home Pro" books (8 inches wide by 5¼ inches long) allows use right on the job site.

3M books focus on how much instructional data can be retained by the average person and turned into a performance factor in a 30-second period. Each 30-second factor is translated into the books as a step in the instructional path, ending in final completion of a home repair project.

The company markets the book through its own consumer marketing organization. Outlets include department hardware, paint and mass-merchandising stores plus home improvement centers, lumber yards and building supply retailers.

The stringent market research carried out by 3M is in marked contrast to publishing industry research on the DIY market. None of the industry trade associations know how many DIY titles are in print or gross annual sales volumes of the titles.

According to the latest Industry Statistics Report issued by the Association of American Publishers, do-it-yourself and how-to books are lumped under the trade book classification. This area generated total gross sales of $351.5 million in adult hard and soft cover books in 1973. Soft cover sales in this category increased 24.5% in the two-year period 1971-1973.

Market sources willing to venture an educated guess say that 10% of trade book sales or 35 million would be a fair estimate of other how-to sales gross for 1973.

Forecasts for 1974 range from $40 to $45 million in gross volume for DIY publications; topping $60 million by the end of 1974 with a 9% net profit return after taxes.

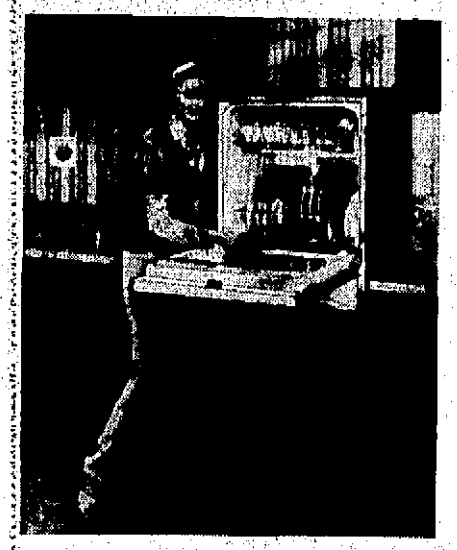

Another educated guess surmised that DIY sales volume has tripled since 1968. This contrasts with total sales volume of all books; increasing from $1.688 billion in 1963 to $2.198 billion in 1973 — an overall publishing industry hike of 89% in ten years.

DIY book marketers base future sales forecasts on factors other than recession. They cite:

- The proliferation of the large 1-stop shopping home improvement centers such as Channel and Bickel on the East Coast.
- While the price of almost everything has increased, the price of power tools has stabilized or gone down due to accelerated demand.
- The lack of new housing starts over the past two years has stepped up the construction of add-ons to present housing.
- A new-breed, younger DIY customer showing more interest in personal customizing of furniture and housing interiors.

Should these optimistic forecasts prove reasonably accurate, the big corporate ventures into the DIY waters should come up with a big catch.

Putting it another way, one marketer said, "As long as a plumber's house call costs more than a doctor's, we're in good shape."

EYE-LEVEL INSTALLATION of a Whirlpool dishwasher means no more bending and stretching to insert or remove dishes. The SAU 440P shown has four pushbutton cycles and features two full-size spray arms, in-the-door lift-out silverware basket and rinse and dual detergent dispensers.

Here's Eye-Deal Dishwasher Idea

It's hard to believe that a work-saving appliance like a dishwasher could make life in the kitchen easier than it already has, but it's true.

An idea for eye-level dishwasher installation has been introduced by Whirlpool Corporation so that no more bending need be involved in the ins and outs of automatic dishwashing.

To customize your kitchen this way, you can use any Whirlpool dishwasher that would generally be installed under a counter and instead install the appliance above the counter. After that, washing dishes will be a breeze.

The above-counter cabinet for the built-in dishwasher can match wall and cabinet panelling, or it can be an attractive contrasting color.

There are six undercounter dishwasher models (or overcounter) in the Whirlpool line which feature additional custom decorating possibilities. Each has a four-color panel pack of two reversible front panels — harvest gold, avocado, copper-tone and white. A one-fourth inch thick wood panel to match cabinets or a smoke color plexiglass panel to match panoramic oven doors can also be installed for further customizing.

Ratings Tell Door Resistance To Fire

Fire is a dreaded concern of every homeowner. It can sweep unmercifully through a home or apartment in minutes snuffing out lives as it goes.

For years, building codes have been formulated to provide as much protection from this reckless killer as possible. Today, fire-resistant construction is required throughout the country.

Few people, however, realize that there are varying degrees of protection available in building materials, especially in doors. A rating system has been used over the years to indicate the degrees of fire protection.

Most residential door systems fall into three categories — Class A (3 hour), Class B (1½ hour), and Class C (¾ hour). Class A doors are usually constructed for fire purposes only.

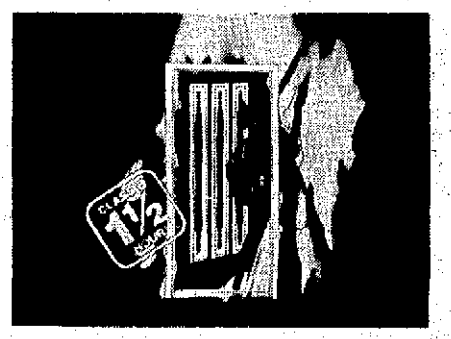

According to Pease Ever-Strait Door Systems, originators and world's largest producer of foam core steel doors, most doors used today carry a Class C rating or less. They meet minimum standards required by many building codes.

Recently Pease Ever-Strait Doors passed tests qualifying it as a Class B door with decorative moldings applied, thus making the company the first ever to receive certification for its regular production door.

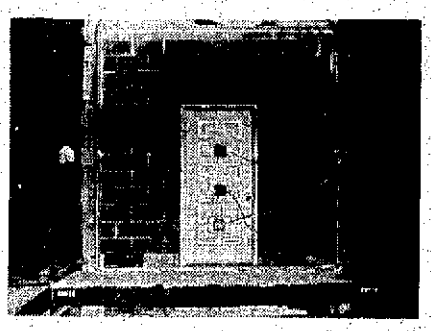

The standard Ever-Strait door comes certified and labeled Class B (1½ hour) with no special ordering required. All doors except those with lights (or windows) or wider 3'6" measurements qualify.

"The advantage," a company spokesman says, "is that fire protection is gained without sacrificing beauty or energy conservation. The new Class B certified and labeled fire door uses the same magnetically weatherstripped steel frame previously available as an energy saver."

Pease said all standard door sizes are available. Now beauty, security, sound control, and fire protection come in one standard door assembly.

FIRES WILL HAVE A REAL DEVIL of a time with the new Pease Ever-Strait Class B 1½-hour rated door. The Class B label, found on the hinge edge of all standard 2'6", 2'8" and 3'0" single Ever-Strait doors, names the ASTM test services to which the door was subjected.

SECURED IN A SIMULATED block wall with heat sensing thermo couplings attached, the Pease Ever-Strait door is subjected to fire conditions exceeding those encountered in real life. Having successfully met the tough requirements of the ASTM E 152-73 tests, the Ever-Strait door was certified and labeled with the Class B 1½-hour rating.

Few people, however, realize that there are varying degrees of protection available in building materials, especially in doors. A rating system has been used over the years to indicate the degrees of fire protection.

Most residential door systems fall into three categories — Class A (3 hour), Class B (1½ hour), and Class C (¾ hour). Class A doors are usually constructed for fire purposes only.

According to Pease Ever-Strait Door Systems, originators and world's largest producer of foam core steel doors, most doors used today carry a Class C rating or less. They meet minimum standards required by many building codes.

Recently Pease Ever-Strait Doors passed tests qualifying it as a Class B door with decorative moldings applied, thus making the company the first ever to receive certification for its regular production door.

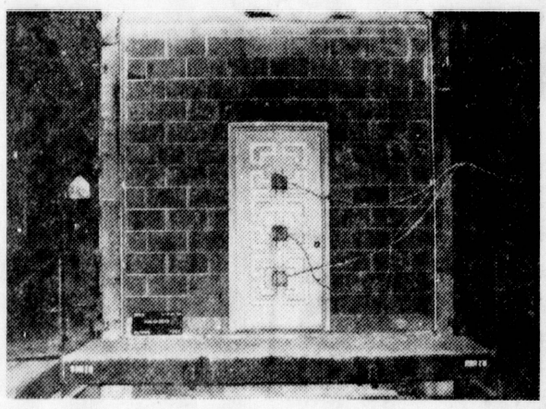

The standard Ever-Strait door comes certified and labeled Class B (1½ hour) with no special ordering required. All doors except those with lights (or windows) or wider 3'6" measurements qualify.

"The advantage," a company spokesman says, "is that fire protection is gained without sacrificing beauty or energy conservation. The new Class B certified and labeled fire door uses the same magnetically weatherstripped steel frame previously available as an energy saver."

Pease said all standard door sizes are available. Now beauty, security, sound control, and fire protection come in one standard door assembly.

FIRES WILL HAVE A REAL DEVIL of a time with the new Pease Ever-Strait Class B 1½-hour rated door. The Class B label, found on the hinge edge of all standard 2'6", 2'8" and 3'0" single Ever-Strait doors, names the ASTM test services to which the door was subjected.

SECURED IN A SIMULATED block wall with heat sensing thermo couplings attached, the Pease Ever-Strait door is subjected to fire conditions exceeding those encountered in real life. Having successfully met the tough requirements of the ASTM E 152-73 tests, the Ever-Strait door was certified and labeled with the Class B 1½-hour rating.

Litton Combination Microwave Range Model 630

Combination, Microwave, Conventional.

Combination of Microwave and Conventional Cooking.

Why microwave and conventional cooking in one oven? Simply because the two in combination cook better as one. Microwaves penetrate and cook the food quickly; conventional heat browns in crispness. And saves time and electric energy, too.

Ratings Tell Door Resistance To Fire

Fire is a dreaded concern of every homeowner. It can sweep unmercifully through a home or apartment in minutes snuffing out lives as it goes.

For years, building codes have been formulated to provide as much protection from this reckless killer as possible. Today, fire-resistant construction is required throughout the country.

Few people, however, realize that there are varying degrees of protection available in building materials, especially in doors. A rating system has been used over the years to indicate the degrees of fire protection.
